Biographical Sketch

Oliver Wolcott, Jr. was born in Litchfield, Connecticut on January 11, 1760. He was the eldest son of Oliver Wolcott (1726-1797) and Laura (Collins) Wolcott (1732-1794). After being tutored by his mother he entered the town grammar school to prepare for Yale College, and immediately after graduation in 1778, he studied law under Tapping Reeve. He served in the military during the American Revolution as a volunteer in two minor campaigns in 1777 and 1779. He accepted an appointment in the quartermaster's department and supervised the safekeeping and conveyance of army stores and ordnance at Litchfield. He was admitted to the bar in 1781, and he moved to Hartford where he worked in the office of the committee of the pay-table. In January 1782 he was appointed to the Committee of the Pay-Table, and in May 1784 he was appointed a commissioner to adjust and settle the accounts and claims of Connecticut against the United States. In May 1788 he was selected to fill the office of Comptroller of Public Accounts.

In September 1789 Wolcott was appointed auditor of the new federal Treasury, assuming his post in early November. He was appointed by President Washington, on Alexander Hamilton's recommendation, to Comptroller in June 1791. When Hamilton resigned as Secretary of the Treasury, Wolcott was appointed (February 2, 1795) by Washington to succeed him. He served as Treasury Secretary until November 1800, and after a short period as Judge for the Second Circuit Court (1801-1802), he retired from public life.

Wolcott moved with his family to New York in 1803, where he entered into a business partnership with James Watson, Moses Rogers, Archibald Gracie, and William Woolsey. This group of businessmen formed a commission and agency known as Oliver Wolcott & Company. In 1804 his company made its first venture in the China trade, and after the partnership was amicably dissolved at Wolcott's suggestion in April 1805, he concentrated his main energies in that field.

In 1810-1811 Wolcott was elected to the main board of directors of the Bank of the United States, and after the charter lapsed (March 4, 1811) he played a prominent role in the launching of the Bank of America, serving as its president from 1812-1814.

Wolcott returned to Litchfield in 1815, where he set himself up as a gentleman farmer and promoted manufacturing enterprises in the state. He was chosen as candidate for governor by the Toleration Party in 1816, but was defeated by the incumbent, John Cotton Smith. He was elected by a narrow margin in the following year, and served as governor until 1826. A combination of financial setbacks and election defeat caused him to return to New York where he lived with his daughter, Laura Wolcott Gibbs and her husband George.

Oliver Wolcott married Elizabeth Stoughton on June 1, 1785. They had five sons, three of whom died in infancy, and two daughters. Wolcott died in New York City on June 1, 1833.

Materials in this collection are organized into seven series based on Oliver Wolcott, Jr's filing system. Series I: Wolcott's bound volumes, was arranged by Oliver Wolcott, Jr. and placed in 54 bound volumes. The other six series are based on previous archival arrangement. This arrangement follows Wolcott's filing system with some rearrangement over the years and additions of material from other collections.

Series I: Wolcott's bound volumes consists primarily of letters and supporting documents to and from Oliver Wolcott, Jr. The correspondence was arranged in 54 bound volumes by Oliver Wolcott, Jr. (This series begins with volume 4, as the location of volumes 1 - 3 is not known.) Some of the material has been rearranged by George Gibbs IV. Material has been arranged by correspondent, subject, and/or chronologically. Supporting documents include reports, essays, memoranda, speeches, depositions, interrogations, proposals, proclamations, acts, notes on Wolcott family history, and related print material. The material covers his entire professional career. The majority of these papers appear to have been collected by George Gibbs IV for a biography of Oliver Wolcott, Jr. Later accessions have been randomly interfiled with the original collection. Series includes letters to and from other Wolcott family members including Eliza Wolcott and Frederick Wolcott.

Series III: United States Government appointments consists of material collected by Oliver Wolcott, Jr. while he was employed by the United States Treasury Department and served as a federal Circuit Court judge.
