

3-00

No. 33075

D. S. 38075

bled him after... with this country... German. and Theodore M. Pease, his capital was much reduced, to resume... men, efficient farmers and, useful 2 year

MARK TWAIN'S

PERFORATED INTERLEAVED

SCRAP BOOK.

VOL. 36

PATENT NUMBER 477,040

December 10, 1915 to June 10, 1916, DIRECTIONS.

Use but little moisture, and only on gummed lines. Press the scrap on without wetting it.

After filling the gummed pages, remove the interleaving leaf at the perforated line, allowing the short stub to remain, which will keep the book of uniform thickness.

DANIEL SLOTE & COMPANY.

321 BROADWAY

NEW YORK

bled him after ... his capital very much reduced to resume ... this country ... men, efficient farmers and useful German, and Theodore M. Pease, 3 year.

INDEX

A

PAGE

B

PAGE

B

C

LOOMIS INSTITUTE READY FOR OPENING

Sept 1913
Work Started on New Founders' Hall—To Cost
$300,000.

When the pupils of the Loomis Institute at Windsor return for the second year of the school which opens next Wednesday they will find work well started on the new building to be known as Founders' Hall. The accompanying reproduction of the architect's drawing shows the building as it will appear when completed. It will complete the quadrangle of buildings, Mason and Taylor Halls on the south side and the dining hall having been completed a year ago. The new building is to cost between $250,000 and $300,000 and will be the most elaborate of the group. It will be dedicated to the donors of the fund which make the institute possible, namely, James C. Loomis, Hezekiah B. Loomis, Osbert B. Loomis, Abbie S. Loomis Hayden, John Mason Loomis.

Founders' Hall will be the administration building of the institute. The architects are the designers of the original building, Murphy & Dana of New York. The hall will be 165 feet long and sixty feet wide, with wings at either end. It will include the library, recitation rooms, the Memorial Hall, the chapel, science rooms and laboratories, faculty headquarters, academic offices, business offices and study rooms.

The Memorial Hall will be in the center of the building running the entire width and in it will be placed a tablet inscribed with the names of the founders of the institute.

The chapel, which will be at the east end of the building, will have a seating capacity of about 300 and has been designed after architecture common to Congregational churches of the early days of New England. The electric lighting system of the chapel will be unique, for while the old style of chandelier lights will be used, each light in the chandelier will be set in an individual cup, making the lighting arrangement conform to the new indirect system.

The library has been carefully planned so as to be attractive to the pupils. There will be individual reading desks, with desk lights and indirect ceiling lights. The building will be three stories high and will be surmounted by an observatory.

The engineers in charge of the work are as follows: Architects, Murphy & Dana, New York; heating and ventilating, Henry C. Meyer, Jr., New York; electrical work, Bassett & Jones; plumbing, Arthur I. Webster, New York. The contractors on the building are as follows: General contractors, Central Building Company, Worcester, Mass.; plumbing, J. N. Knight & Son, New York; heating, Walliser & Chambers, New York; electric work, Albin Gustafson, New York. The supervising architect is S. Munroe of New York, who formerly connected with McKim, Mead & White of New York, and was the supervising architect of the New York's new municipal building. The contract calls for the building to be completed next June, but it is not expected that it will be used by the school until the opening of the school year in September, 1916.

During the past summer a number of minor changes have been made to the buildings already built and extended.

LOOMIS INSTITUTE HONORS HARRIMAN.

Windsor Rector Elected to Trusteeship This Afternoon.

OTHER NEW TRUSTEE, JAMES LEE LOOMIS

Special to The Times.

Windsor, January 18.

The annual meeting of the trustees of the Loomis Institute was held at 2:30 this afternoon, for the choice of officers for the ensuing year and any other business proper to come before said meeting.

It was generally expected that the officers of last year would be re-elected, viz: President, John M. Taylor, president of the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance company; vice president, Henry S. Robinson, president of the Connecticut Trust & Safe Deposit company; treasurer, Connecticut Trust & Safe Deposit company, represented by Arthur Day, its vice-president, and secretary, Miss Jennie Loomis of Windsor.

Handled Here by the Ashwell Se

PREST-O-LITE BATTERY.

268 Main street.
by the firm, which is located at N position will be more fully explained the purchasers. The master pro them recently to the satisfaction & Steere have applied a number types with marked results. Feather both of the pleasure and racin has been used on all types of car
The Mast

Best Fishable mixture.
Beacon Solid Oysters, 50c. qt.
Open Long Clams, 55c. quart.
Deep Sea Scallops, 45c. pint.
22c. lb.
Selected Spanish Mackerel,
lb.
Choice Finnan Haddies, 16c.
Large Fresh Herrings, 8c. lb.
Rancy No. 1 Smelts, 18c. lb.

27c. lb.
27c. lb.

NTS and FISH

20c. lb., 3 lbs. 50c., 10-lb. box $1.50
Sauce or Pies.
7c. lb., 4 lbs. 25c.

ED PEACHES.

Cheese—Benvenuto Farm... 10c.

$2.00.

See also Cityway Books Vol 39-40-88-64,

PAGE

Loomis Institute Opens New Infirmary

Special to The Times.
Windsor, January 13, 1919.
To-day marks the opening of the Batchelder Memorial infirmary at the Loomis institute. Done under the plans and supervision of Murphy & Dana, architects, New York city, who designed the other buildings in the school plant, the structure is of the late Colonial type of architecture and characterizes the delicate lines and styles of that period. Effort has been made to do away with the institutional style of construction, prevalent in buildings of the last decade.

ERECTED AS MEMORIAL TO THE supreme court of this state having decreed that the Loomis institute can be enlarged by further use of the John M. Loomis bequests, plans are being made for an erection of a new dormitory. Work will begin on the building next fall, it is expected, and the plans have already been drawn. The new dormitory will be situated on the east side of the quadrangle next to Founders, and it is expected that it will be ready for use by opening of the next school year. It will be of the same size as the Mason and Taylor dormitory, but will contain some improvements over the old building. A covered way on the exterior will furnish a continuous sleeping porch with doors opening onto it.

NEW DORMITORY FOR LOOMIS SCHOOL

PLANS FOR QUARTERS FOR 33 BOYS.

Special to The Times.
Loomis Institute, Windsor, December 9, 1922.

In the basement will be a large bicycle room, well-lighted locker room, accommodating all the boys in the building, and a generous shower room. The first floor will contain a social room eight feet wider than those in the other buildings, where the boys will gather for afternoon teas, dances and other social affairs. A lobby will lead to this room. The Darwin club, Alan Seeger club and other organizations will be provided with a room in the new dormitory. The "dorm" will accommodate thirty-three boys, two or three unmarried masters, and one married master in a complete house at the south end. It is probable that two or three masters will be added to the faculty.

THE HARTFORD DAILY CURANT: SUNDAY, SEPTEMBER 12, 1915.

New Founders' Hall at Loomis Institute, To Cost $300,000

COL JOHN MASON LOOMIS.
His fortune of $1,120,000, made and invested in Chicago, went to found the Loomis Institute.

OLD PHELPS HOMESTEAD SOLD

Loomis Institute Acquires Historic Property on "The Island" at Windsor, Ct.—Local Talent in "Peaceful Valley" 1918

From Our Special Correspondent

WINDSOR, Ct., Saturday, Feb. 2.—Through deeds which have been recorded in the Windsor town clerk's office, the Loomis institute has acquired title to the farm which was the home of the late Col Ellsworth N. Phelps, it having been bought from his daughter, Mrs Hugh Harbison of Hartford. The purchase includes the old Phelps homestead, the main portion of which was built more than 100 years ago, but has been kept in excellent condition and also includes two large barns and several smaller buildings and 46 acres of land, adjacent to the farm lands already owned by the institute. Col Phelps died on January 17, 1913 and his son, the late Samuel E. Phelps, who survived his father, but by a short time, was the last of the Phelps family to live there, although Mrs Harbison has at different intervals occupied the place. Since the death of Samuel E. Phelps, the property has been in charge of Mr and Mrs Dan Scott, caretakers, both of whom were employed for many years in the Phelps family. The ultimate disposition of the buildings has not as yet been decided upon by the institute officials, but the barns will be used in part to house young stock from the institute farm. The present caretakers will remain until April 1. Mr Scott having been employed there for 13 years, while his wife, who, although no relation to Mr Scott, was previous to her marriage Miss Lucy Scott, a native of Richmond, Va., has worked at the Phelps homestead for 23 years.

The acquisition of the Phelps homestead carries with it considerable historical significance from the standpoint of the Loomis institute, for it now owns all but one farm on "The Island," the Maher property. Its holdings include the Loomis homestead, the new Founders' hall, nearly on the site of the John Francis place, the refectory on the site of the John and Harry Loomis homestead. These four places are the so-called original farms on "The Island."

The institute also has bought 23 acres of farm land from William H. Filley, across the Farmington river from the institute property in the "Big Meadow."

Prominent local men and women

ANGLE.
side.]

bled him with his capital very much reduced to resume

this country. men, efficient farmers and useful

German, and Theodore M. Pease, a year.

THE SPRING

NEW PREPARATORY SCHOOL

LOOMIS INSTITUTE TO OPEN

SITUATED AT WINDSOR, CT.

Starts With a Large Endowment — Plan Upon Which it Will Be Run.

[Written by EDMUND HUDSON for The Sunday Republican.]

The Loomis institute at Windsor, Ct., which was planned over 40 years ago, is about to open its doors to students. The faculty of nine instructors, who are to have charge of the courses, are ready to begin their work. The students, about 50 in number, are invited to present themselves at prayer at 8 o'clock on Thursday. There will be no formal opening exercises at that time. These have been deferred until October 1, when the sixth reunion of the Loomis association will be held in the new buildings of the institute. To this reunion have been invited Jennie Loomis, who owns the homestead, is a member of the trustees of the institute, and of the family association. There will be a luncheon in the dining hall at 2 o'clock the same day. The gymnasium for the winter when there will be a formal reception at the headmaster's residence. The grounds are close by, which will give visitors the opportunity to see the interior of the buildings on this day.

Visitors to the institute will be impressed by the general appearance of the surroundings and the beauty of the grounds which has been effected at a very large cost, under the skilful direction of the landscape architect, Sheffield A. Arnold of Boston. The view from the grounds in all directions is delightful—to the north a lovely stretch of the Farmington river, which here bends from its southerly course straight eastward toward the Connecticut, one mile away; to the eastward a wide expanse of meadow partly covered by forest; to the south the farm lands of the institute and many private owners, and across the interval to the west, the mass of foliage that shuts in the Windsor-Hartford highway and the tracks of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad. From the center of Windsor town the distance is not more than a third of a mile to the institute buildings by the new underpass below the railroad tracks which is not yet completed. The visitor will not fail to note the very agreeable effect of the material used for all the buildings, of which there are to be 12 when the construction is com-

sufficient "pull" at Washington to thus punish him for his fidelity to the government. Adequate tribute to his character and achievements was paid in Chicago in November, 1908, when the bronze bust of him, presented by his widow, was unveiled in the memorial hall of the public library building. The address delivered on that occasion by Maj Horatio L. Wait furnishes the best account that has been published of Col Loomis's military and business career.

Who May Enter the Institute.

The charter provides that in the admission of students to the institute preference shall be given (1) to those of the Loomis family connection; (2) to residents of Windsor, Ct.; (3) to residents of the state of Connecticut; and that there shall be no charge for tuition. This expense must be met from the income of the endowment fund. The descendants of Joseph Loomis, who died in Windsor in August, 1652, are a mighty host. The Christian names of nearly 13,000 Loomises whose histories are known are included in the sumptuous volume, "The Loomis Family in America," on which an immense amount of money and labor was expended, a book of over 860 pages of which the latest edition bears the date of 1908.

stinted nor wasted, in which 150 young men and their teachers be conveniently and comfortably housed. It is one that most architects would not have dared to attempt, and there was no surprise in the competition for the buildings was announced that some of the most class architects in the country sent in several drawings for the group. The construction in recent years of buildings for a number of large private schools in New England—at Groton and Andover, Exeter, N. H., and elsewhere,—has drawn the attention of architects to this class of buildings, and led to a marked advance in school architecture. Murphy & Dana of New York were the successful competitors for the Loomis buildings. Mr Dana, the designer of the plans that were adopted, is grandson of the poet, Longfellow, and the late Richard H. Dana of Cambridge and Boston. His project called for a quadrangle to occupy nearly the whole summit of the knoll (known as "the hill") to the Windsor folks, because at the time of the spring floods the waters of Connecticut sometimes surround it. At the northern end of which the old Loomis mansion stands in its clump of trees. Across the roadway from the Loomis house is the residence of the headmaster.

HANDSOME RESIDENCE OF HEADMASTER, LOOMIS INSTITUTE.

SOUTH END OF LOOMIS INSTITUTE QUADRANGLE

[Dining hall is in the center and a dormitory is on each side.]

It is to be found in all the genealogical libraries. But during the past 2½ centuries thousands of Loomis daughters have married and taken the names of their husbands, and it has been impossible to trace the descendants of most of these Loomis women, all of whom of the school age at the present time are entitled to apply for admission to the Loomis institute.

The act of incorporation requires that the school shall be open to the youth of both sexes, and this requirement will be complied with. But boarding schools of the coeducational type ceased to be regarded as efficient or desirable before the end of ter, a spacious and dignified dwelling. The quadrangle, when completed, will consist of a large school-house, facing the north, and constituting one of the ends of it, six dormitories, three on each side and the same number on west, and at the southern end a dining hall, or refectory, as it is called. The building last mentioned and the dormitories erected this year are shown in the accompanying illustrations. They reveal the success with which the architect has used the colonial style in his plans for this notable group. When all the buildings are completed, as they will be in three or four years, the plan

PASSING OF OLD COVERED BRIDGE

Windsor Structure Has Weathered Storms of Sixty-two Years.

And Scene of Many Hold-ups, Too, as Windsor Folks Will Tell.

(Special to The Courant.)

WINDSOR Sunday, Sept. 24.

The old covered bridge over the Farmington River at this place which has weathered the storms and winters for sixty-two years, will make its valedictory today and by decree of the state highway commissioner pass out of existence as a means of travel, tomorrow morning. It was built in that it will take about five or six weeks to place the new bridge in use. The new bridge will have a thirty-foot driveway with a separate walk for foot passengers.

TEARING DOWN WINDSOR BRIDGE HAS COST.

WILL COST $100,000 TO ELIMINATE WINDSOR'S "DEATH TRAP" gone 1917

and further repairs were useless.
The contract for the new bridge has been let to the Berlin Construction Company and it is estimated 1917

Heroic Measures Will Give Straight Highway Instead of Death Trap.

Work of Eliminating Dangerous Underpass at Windsor Includes Cutting Road Down Seventeen Feet and Raising Railroad Tracks.

Special to The Times.

Windsor, July 26.

Each day here sees the work of excavating and filling, to prepare for the elimination of Windsor's too widely-known "Death Trap," progress by leaps and bounds, while at the office of the highway commissioner in Hartford this afternoon, bids were opened for the construction of the steel bridges, which will carry the railroad over the new Palisado avenue and the road over the Farmington river.

The work to be done is extensive and its completion will bring not only the wiping out of the dangerous turns at the present underpass, but many other improvements. The plans in the office of Highway Commissioner Charles J. Bennett call for heroic treatment. The work is two fold, first the cutting off of the bad corners and narrow underpass by the construction of a new section of the road northeast from the center of the town to the Farmington river bridge, and, second, the construction of a new two-span steel bridge over the Farmington river in place of the present covered wooden structure.

Palisado avenue will run in an unwaveringly straight line from the point where it is to leave its present course, at the northeast corner of the Congregational parish house, to the new bridge, which will be practically on the site of the present one. The trolley tracks of the Hartford & Springfield Street Railway company, which by crossing and recrossing the road greatly increase the hazard of the "Death Trap," will, under the new plan, follow the southern side of the new street all the way from its junction with Broad street to the bridge.

In order to make the straight line road it is necessary to cut down the present street from Windsor Center, making it descend to the proposed underpass on a 5 per cent. grade. This cutting will be one of the heaviest parts of the work reaching a maximum depth of seventeen feet as it nears the railroad track. This section of the present street will also be widened in building the new thoroughfare. Retaining walls will also be built along the sides of this cut, and on top of the wall on the northerly side will be a narrow roadway to provide access to the houses on that side of the street and also to Phelps street, which at present joins Palisado avenue near where the present course swerves from the line of the new one.

The earth taken from the excavation is being carted to the causeway on the eastern side of the railroad over which Palisado avenue goes to the Farmington river bridge, and this causeway will be raised to make a true grade from the lowest point at the underpass to the river bridge. The lowest point will be one foot above the high-water mark of the spring freshets, when the set-back from the Connecticut causes the Farmington river to overflow the meadows, and in the future there will be no more cutting off of traffic because the road is flooded, an annual occurrence at the "Death Trap."

To obtain the required 13-foot clearance at the underpass and at the same time keep the road above the high-water mark, it will be necessary to raise the railroad tracks about three feet. This will necessitate raising the tracks back to the Windsor station, in order to approach the underpass at a reasonable grade from the south, and the tracks will be graded in the same way to the north. The raising of the tracks at the station will probably bring about the construction of a new concrete platform for the station. It will be necessary, to raise the siding of the General Electric company at the same time.

It was the intention of the highway department to keep the old road open until the new one is finished, but for the safety of the public, the contractors have closed the road, and they are having signs prepared to point out a detour by way of Poquonock avenue and Pleasant street. While the new bridge is being built the trolley trestle will be planked over and with the aid of watchmen at each end traffic will be sent across the river in that way.

A concrete roadway will be laid on the new street from Broad street to the bridge across the river, greatly improving the automobile route north from this town. At the point where the road goes under the railroad the space between the abutments is to be forty-five feet wide, this including the roadway and a sidewalk on the northerly side. The bridge across the Farmington river will be twenty-three feet wide. The Hyde Park Construction company, of Boston, is at present at work under its contract, which, besides the excavation and filling, includes the construction of the railroad bridge abutments, the retaining walls at the sides of the cut, and the concrete roadway.

How Windsor Death Trap Will Be Eliminated.

Costly Change in Which Expenses Are Shared by State, Town and Roads.

SITE OF THE NEW WINDSOR ROAD LEADING NORTH.

WINDSOR DEATH TRAP AS IT IS TO-DAY.

Automobilists in general are glad to know that the work on the elimination of the Windsor death trap has been begun and that within a reasonable time it will be perfectly safe in this immediate vicinity, which is more than can be said of the old arrangement, that right angle blind turn under the car tracks, one of the worst spots in the state. During the past two weeks trees along the site of the new road have been cut away. When the work is concluded there will be a straight thoroughfare from Windsor center to the old covered bridge over the Farmington river.

HENRY WATTERSON

BOOKS and AUTHORS

COL WATTERSON GLANCES BACK

Reminiscences of Kentucky Editor. Prominent in American Public Life for Over 50 Years

See page 5
LEADER IN LIBERAL MOVEMENT OF 1872

Associated With Samuel Bowles
In Activity Which Led to Nomination of Horace Greeley for Presidency by Independent Republicans

[Written by Solomon E. Griffin for

WATTERSON TO REBEL VETS

Unable to Attend Confederate Reunion, He Writes of Pretty Girls Soon to Distribute His War-Time Paper to "Ragged Red-Nosed Angels" on the Other Shore

Chattanooga, Tenn., Oct. 10.—Colonel Henry Watterson, veteran journalist, and during the Civil War publisher of the Chattanooga Rebel, has written from New York city a characteristic letter to the committee in charge of the forthcoming reunion of the United Confederate veterans, in which he expressed regret at not being able to attend, and in which he says:

I wish it were possible for me to attend the coming Confederate reunion. It is not possible, so you must take the will for the deed. Chattanooga possesses many claims upon my affections. It was there that I found my dear wife, who, after fifty-nine years of devotion, still abides, and between whom and myself the relations then established remain unbroken and unchanged. She joins me in the regret that we cannot together revisit the scenes of our early love-making. But at four-score and upward functions of every sort are beyond me.

Perhaps it is as well that I may not again look upon the thin gray line soon to disappear forever from the scenes of this world, for it might put too great a strain upon an old man's tenderest sensibilities. My love to the old boys. It cannot be long when we shall meet on that beautiful shore, and when we meet, be sure the bonnie blue flag will be flying at the fore, and the bands will be playing "Dixie" on parade, whilst the pretty girls will be distributing the Chattanooga Rebel to groups of ragged, red-nosed angels who have not forgotten the rebel yell.

Sincerely,

Henry Watterson.

Adams, who was the oldest member of the house when his father was the

and a hater of fast profligacy. How he scorched the "smart set" with his awful denunciations some years ago.

law Reid had been adroitly promoting the candidacy of his chief and was to achieve his desire. The result did not appeal to other liberal editors, but the outcome when reached had to be accepted and supported, as it loyally was to the bitter end of the campaign. Let Col Watterson depict the dinner at which Mr Reid insisted the journalists not hitherto friendly to the Greeley nomination should attend:—"Frostier conviviality I never sat down to than Reid's dinner. Horace White looked more than ever like an iceberg; Sam Bowles was diplomatic but ineffectual. Schurz was as a death's head at the board; Halstead and I, through sheer bravado, tried to enliven the feast. But they would none of us, nor it, and we separated early and sadly, reformers hoist by their own petard."

This is not the place for following the fortunes of that candidacy to overwhelming defeat and the death of Mr Greeley. That political period was of intense interest to one new to the game of politics. Old and tried republican leaders and men of high patriotism came out for Greeley and Brown. The desertions from Grant and Wilson seemed of momentous import when the campaign was in its earlier stages. But it was not long before it became apparent that while many eminent republicans were abandoning the old standard, the rank and file of voters were little moved. They were still too near the war to be of dispassionate mind, and fear of the old and discredited democracy held them back. Nothing in newspaper life has appealed to me more stirring than the cheerful and dauntless way in which The Republican fought a losing fight with a breadth of vision and moral power that never lessened its appeal or dimmed its clear shining. It could afford to wait in serenity of spirit until the American people should more generally recognize and act upon the ideals the paper stood for.

Col Watterson, turning back to a newspaper associates in the Cincinnati convention, writes: "Sam Bowles—the first newspaper politician of his day, with none of the handicaps carried by Raymond and Forney—a man of keen insight and foresight, fertile of resource, and not afraid—stood foremost among them." In calling Mr Bowles the first newspaper politician of his day, the word is not to be applied in its narrow sense. It was used in the sense of ability to understand and reveal the play of political forces as they affected the public welfare. This was always the supreme matter.

Somewhat cynically, in another place, Col Watterson seems to doubt whether there is room for idealism in political life. Bless your heart, faint-hearted old philosopher, the injection of idealism by honest souls impatient for quicker and larger results in government for the people has been the salvation of our democracy in your time and mine, and will be again and again! Sudden parties in power can be spurred to better things only by fear of popular disapproval, and honest dissent must be made articu-should he maintain and defend it, but by constant, painstaking handicraft,

PAGE

YUAN SHI KAI ACCEPTS THRONE

Peking, Dec. 11.—Yuan Shi-Kai, President of the Chinese Republic, has accepted the throne of China, tendered to him by the council of state. Acting as a parliament the council of state today canvassed the 1915

Chinese Here Opposed.

San Francisco, Dec. 11.—Tong King Chong, president of the Chinese Republic Association here, the controlling body of thousands of similar organizations in North and South America, announced today that preliminary measures to oppose the establishment of the Yuan Shi Kai monarchy would be taken at a meeting tomorrow.

Yuan Shi-Kai.

In recent years Yuan Shi-Kai had

YUAN SHIH-KAI

Who Has Consented to Accept Imperial Throne of China

advised by the powers they would be able to maintain tranquility in the event a monarchy was re-established.

The dissatisfaction of the powers with China's reply has been made manifest, and recent cables and correspondence from Peking have been conflicting in the speculation as to whether the monarchy would be established in the near future or indefinitely delayed. But it is now evident that the protest from the Japanese government, backed up by Russia and Great Britain, against the immediate restoration of a monarchical government has been disregarded.

RECEIVES SALUTE YUAN SHI-K'AI.

American Teacher-member Incident

ince of the crown by thereby making a China, recalls a story s general, told by Miss a teacher in China of years, on her re- ford. Miss Sharpe, rb- North Tonawanda, ned to New York cy ling several weeks he on her way home 6, er she had the unique tering saluted by Yuan lie then a commander ht the Chinese army. iv- as the inauguration as president of the P- China, following the s. st the Manchu dy- chers of the college and Miss Sharpe was con- visor of music, were id the inauguration. he the ceremonies the on at the college and he ere soon in jirik- ng from the college city. Turning into e- small, narrow street, a- that the way was he the street joined the riving near the corv the troops were about st, so they decided to arade from where they of attempting to make the reviewing stand in had been reserved for embroidered. Tar

CAVALIER $1.15-

black and tan.

DIAMOND $1.00-

STREET

tan. A perfect fitting—very REYNIER TANNES $2.25—Pig style. Black, white and tan. REYNIER GLOVES $2.00—C REYNIER GLOV

d all the staple styles are here. e ever assembled. It is, as we

SPRINGFIELD, SUNDAY, DE
Emperor Yuan Shih-

Restored Democracy

to China

New President Works Wonders in Public

Life in Pekin—Chief Executive

Is Man of Iron Will

Pekin, July 26.

LI YUAN-HUNG'S accession to the

In graciously yielding to t tions of his countrymen to be emperor, President Yuan S conforming to the best tra etiquet in such matters, "Why
'a crown offer'd him, and be
'him, he put it by with the l
'hand thus." But at every offe the envious Casca, Caesar's weaker.

once expr
of state everybody try-seat a to the cla
the will c

Familia of history
Yuan Shih ambition what he c country.
absolute, a doubt be Personally
the substit public. Bu full conver espoused t
the revolu
that China
he was the ernment be sonality in in the var normal tin played the rather than wide unres which Chin have given ing off the

The decl was natura
and sympa
the announ cision woul
not already of events.
creed that government
want a mo affair. If stood the vo
ly look in tl
his coup d'
upon which tent to expi

Against C
tains no ag relations are pire as wit isolation are closed it wi but through It is mainly strong enou
such intrigu taken the s lutism culmi

tablish a monarchy. It must be confessed of republican institutions eased by the war, so far China is just now efficiency than with at the hands of an outrage which piliation and shame, of the Chinese Gul-

ection of the empire
whether it will be al without opposition at ll to be seen. None
ions is enthusiastic

YUAN, ENTHRONED, IS CALLED "IMPERIAL MAJESTY"

difficulties were met with, on account of the old brook which used to go through this land, but piers were successfully carried away below the bed of the old brook to solid footings, and, immediately these footings were in place the construction of the building began in earnest. The first thing

3

NATIONAL BANK BUILDING
OFFICE BUILDING IN WESTERN MASSACHUSETTS
New Banking Quarters for the NATIONAL BANK
SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

started on the new building. In excavating for the foundations delays and dif-daughter of Mrs. Alice W. Woodruff.

LI YUAN HUNG TAKES OATH.

Chinese Parliament Adjourns Pending Settlement of Party Differences—Government Funds Exhausted.

Peking, China, August 2.—Parliament was convened, yesterday. It was attended by 400 delegates, 100 more than was necessary for a quorum. President Li Yuan Hung, after taking the oath, addressed the legislators, urging them to immediately take up non-partisan and constructive work.

After hearing the president's speech, parliament adjourned indefinitely. It probably would be reconvened within two weeks if party differences can be reconciled.

Tang Shao-Yi, the minister of foreign affairs, is at Shanghai and refuses to come to Peking to take over the foreign office until the cabinet has been approved by parliament. The Kuo-Min-Tang, or radical party, is endeavoring to make Tang Shao-Yi the premier, retiring the present prime minister, Tuan Chi-Jui, to the vice-presidency. This the military party is unwilling to sanction.

The government funds have become exhausted and a bitter fight threatens further to delay their re-

China's hour seems likely soon to call for a man. Evidently he wasn't General Chang, whose hours in the saddle—or, more properly, in the palace—appear to be numbered. President Li seems well satisfied to have escaped with his head in good order. The acting president, Feng Kwo Chang, seems an unknown but hardly positive quantity. Wu Ting Fang is a good adviser, but he'd rather be excused from getting actively into the melee. The position of real leader of China's republicanism is open.

Dec 18 Goodwin Towle 1915
Miss Lulu Towle, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Cadwell, and Wallace B. Goodwin were married today by the Rev. William DeLass Love at his home on Laurel street, Hartford. Mr. and Mrs. Goodwin will reside at No. 71 Freeman street, Hartford, upon their return from a wedding trip to Bermuda. Mr. Goodwin is a member of the real estate firm of the Wallace B. Goodwin company, Hartford.

THE PARSONS THEATER.

Dec 18. Tonight. 1915
Mrs. Patrick Campbell To Be Heard

At the Parsons Theater tonight, and tomorrow afternoon and evening, the talented English actress, Mrs. Patrick Campbell, and her London will entertain theatergoers, particularly the devotees of dramatic offerings, with General Shaw's comedy romance "Juliet." The offering is a new play for two reasons; that it is a new play Shaw has written through it a love story, and be the first time that loc goers will see Mrs. Campbell in her comedy role. Her characterization of "Juliet," played by Forbes-Robertson in London as 1895 called forth the criticism from Shaw's "Juliet," she still fits herself with the hospitable many heart without effort, simply she is a wonderful person, not only in facial prettiness, but in the extraordinary swiftness and certainty of her physical self-command. Physical talent, which is seldom conspicuously recognized except when it is professedly specialized in some particular direction, will, when accompanied by nimbleness of mind, quick observation and lively theatrical instinct, carry any actress with a rush to the front of her profession as it has carried Mrs. Campbell.

Mrs. Patrick Campbell

WINSTON CHURCHILL'S STEP-FATHER IN CITY

Former Cabinet Member's Stepmother, "Once Removed," Also Here.

During her visit to Hartford Mrs. Patrick Campbell, the actress who appeared at the Parsons Theater Saturday, was accompanied, as previously noted in "The Courant," by her second and present husband, Lieutenant George Cornwallis-West, one of the most picturesque figures in English society, a man who is perhaps best first husband found his married life so unhappy that it is said he enlisted for services in the Boer War with the hope of being killed. His hope was fulfilled. There was great disparity of ages in this marriage also, as Mrs. Campbell is many years older than her husband. By this marriage Mrs. Campbell has become, so to speak, Winston Churchill's step-mother, once removed.

Froze His Feet in the Trenches and Got Enough of Rigors of War

MRS. PATRICK CAMPBELL.
GEORGE CORNWALLIS-WEST.

While in Hartford Lieutenant Cornwallis-West and his wife, Mrs. Campbell, stayed at the Heublein Hotel. They left the city last night.

A telegram was received, this morning, at the office of the Trout Brook Ice & Feed company, announcing the marriage of Frederick Wadsworth Arnold, of West Hartford, president of the company, and Miss Mary Heppe, of Los Angeles, Cal., which took place, Saturday, in Los Angeles. The bride formerly lived in Hartford. Mr. Arnold, with his mother, Mrs. Edwin Hop-

Mr. and Mrs. Fred W. Arnold of Hartford went south about a month ago and spent three weeks at Palm Beach. They are now at Ormond, Fla., and expect to return to Hartford about the middle of the month. Mr. Arnold is president, treasurer and manager of the Trout Brook Ice and Feed company, and has been president of the Connecticut Ice Dealers association and of the West Hartford Business Men's associa-

Hartford Couple at Palm Beach

MR. AND MRS. FRED W. ARNOLD ENJOYING LIFE AT FLORIDA RESORT.

He now lives in New York.

Mr. Arnold controls the ice business of Hartford. He is president of the West Hartford Business Men's Association.

Company of Pearl street.

DECEMBER 18, 1915.

happy years. They congratulate them with equal sincerity for their common sense.

Irs. Frederick W. Arnold ed to Hartford and are ie Allyn House for the er their honeymoon trip . Mr. Arnold, is id treasurer of the Trout ind Feed company, Mrs.

TERSON OBSERVES GOLDEN WEDDING

cans, Dec. 20. Colonel erson, the veteran news- of Louisville, Ky., and on quietly celebrated their ling anniversary here Jo- ends and relatives. "Both son and myself are in per- today and very happy," ssage the colonel gave to ermen.

leans, December 21.— nry Watterson and Mrs. celebrated their golden e yesterday. They made rly that they did not in- bothered with interview. BE HAPPY, THOUGH MARRIED.

days of the sex novel, of nable divorce, of news- res by maiden ladies who l about keeping husbands nd bringing up children, genic theorist who would ce of gods as you breed of soul mates, feminists eraments ajar—in these sorrowful days we hail word of plain, old-fash- mon sense on the subject ony from Colonel Henry

The noted editor of the Courier-Journal has been , with Mrs. Watterson, th wedding anniversary. t alone talking over No. 46 Whit-ve spent to- 7.

t clear that iss Ruth E. "bothered." ille, Mass., to onfide to a ord, has been recipe for rey's mother, the recipe West Somersand her at happiness cle of friends atterson has y resided for I have let Miss Seavey w I needed High School, he could aid Jackson Col- anything, I w assistant in id help her. ilosophy at erson was the class of el and Mrs. of el and Mrs. they will go

a. Stewart ne and help-many more congratulate

OCTOBER 7, 1915

PRESIDENT TO WED

MRS NORMAN GALT

Ceremony V THE PRESIDENT.

in Dece

Hor

Woodrow V
ed States, an night his eng of Washingto has not been take place in the bride-cle

The brief a House, made as a surprise to a number been expecte
night the st culmination in the troubl tion's chief

It was Mr cousin, Miss into the Wh her first in t and were so they sought quently and rapidly ripe macy. Mrs mer at Corn history and president's e this intimac
that the pre meet and kn interesting indeed, as to dent's daugh Galt for the before their

Mr Galt
business m eight years ness that s lived in Wa 1896. She is Miss Edith Va., where where her was a prom

In the ci
Mrs Galt f regarded as a natural as being co lightful con on her thou for anything

For ma
tives hav
the Whit panied th is not q dark hair stylish at strikingly dent, with charity w

Friends pleasure not only happiness companion and comf
during th tion's pre his two

Wilson in life had be absorption on him phy ago, he be

In reply to a request for a short sketch of Woodrow Wilson, the New York Times prints the following:

President Wilson's parents were both of Scotch-Irish descent. His father's people left Ireland in 1807. His father was a Presbyterian minister in Staunton, Va., when Woodrow Wilson was born, December 28, 1856. The family moved to Augusta, Ga., when he was two and a half years old, and he spent his boyhood there. In 1870 his father became professor in the theological seminary at Columbia. Woodrow Wilson was educated in private schools. In 1873 he went to Davidson college, a small old-fashioned Presbyterian school, but he became ill and returned to his home, where he staid until the autumn of 1875, when he went to Princeton. He was graduated from Princeton in 1879, studied law a year at the University of Virginia, then went to Atlanta and opened an office with a partner. He soon decided that the practice of the law was not the profession best suited to him, and went to Johns Hopkins for two years of post-graduate work in political science.

In 1885 he published "Congressional Government," which brought him a recognized place among writers on political subjects. In June, 1885, he married Ellen Axson. That autumn he went as associate professor of history and political economy to Bryn Mawr. From 1888 to 1890 he was at the Connecticut Wesleyan university, in 1890 he was made professor of jurisprudence and politics at Princeton, in 1902 chosen as president of Princeton, in 1910 resigned and became governor of New Jersey, and in 1912 was elected president of the United States.

He is the author of "The State," 1889; "Division and Reunion," 1893; "An Old Master, and Other Political Essays," 1893; "Mere Literature and Other Essays," 1893; "George Washington," 1896; "History of the American People," 1902; "Constitutional Government in the United States," 1908, and "The New Freedom," 1913. He has the degrees of LL. D. from Lake Forest university, 1887; Tulane university, 1898; Johns Hopkins, 1902; Rutgers college, 1902; University of Pennsylvania, 1903; Brown, 1903; Harvard, 1907; Williams, 1907, and Dartmouth, 1909; and Litt. D., Yale, 1901.

The notable events of his administration, prior to the outbreak of the European war, include the revision of the tariff, the passage of the currency bill, and the establishment of the federal reserve banks.

President Wilson and Mrs Norman Galt, whose engagement to be married was announced Wednesday night, were the recipients yesterday at Washington of congratulatory messages from all parts of the United States and from the representatives of foreign governments. Telegrams came to the White House in such numbers that an extra force of operators and clerks was needed to handle them. Many were read by the president and Mrs Galt together. Count von Bernstorff, the German ambassador, was one of the first to send congratulations, and there followed messages from other members of the diplomatic corps conveying the good wishes of their governments.

Wilson in August, 1914, the president's life had become one of solitude. His absorption in official labors began to tell on him physically and when, a few months ago, he began to take a renewed interest in personal affairs, his friends and members of the family welcomed the distinct change which it brought about in his health and spirits.

Last night—at the end of a busy day for the president, during which he announced he would vote for woman suffrage, took a firm position in favor of national defense and received a number of callers—Mrs Galt was a dinner guest at the White House. At the moment when Secretary Tumulty stood in the executive offices announcing the engagement to a large number of Washington correspondents who had been summoned for the occasion, the president and Mrs Galt were spending the evening with Dr Cary T. Grayson and Miss Bones in the White House parlors.

The news was given out in a brief statement which read:—

"The announcement was made to-day of the engagement of Mrs Norman Galt of this city and President Woodrow Wilson."

Mrs Galt was present at the first social affair participated in by the president and Miss Margaret Wilson in more than a year. It was at a tea given by Miss Wilson to neighbors in the artist colony at Cornish, N. H. Since the return of the president to Washington he and Mrs Galt have spent many evenings together, sometimes at the White House and often at her home. Last week she occupied a prominent seat in the president's reviewing stand at the Grand Army parade.

The Republican.

SPRINGFIELD, THURSDAY, OCT. 7, 1915

It is the best kind of news for the women suffragists that President Wilson is to vote for the state constitutional amendment in New Jersey. He does not do this as the leader of the democratic party, but as a private citizen, his belief being that this question should be decided by the states and not by the national government. It is very much in order for Dr Anna Howard Shaw, president of the woman suffrage association, to point out, as she does, that those in the fellowship who sought to hector the president of the United States were making a great mistake. The American way is vastly better than the English way in this matter, as Dr Shaw contends. It now remains to see whether the president's declaration will avail to carry New Jersey, as it is hoped and expected to do.

All the world a lover loves and a candidate who goes a wooing doesn't hurt his chances we may state. The world goes on and who stands still is the gloomy celibate. So we'll boost the boom of the coming groom as his party's candidate. Puck wrote that about Benjamin Harrison when he prepared to take unto himself a wife. Some of us are old enough to remember it.

Traces Descend From Pocahontas.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 7.—Mrs. Edith Bolling Galt, President Wilson's fiancée, attended the Powell School for Girls here, now closed. She is of that branch of the English Bolling family which traces direct descent from the Indian Princess, Pocahontas, who married John Rolfe. In the year of her debut Miss Bolling spent part of the social season here.

WILSON BETROTHAL SURPRISES CAPITAL

Announcement of President's Engagement to Mrs. Galt Delights Washington.

WHITE HOUSE BRIDE-TO-BE IS BEAUTIFUL VIRGINIAN

Miss Wilson First Met Jeweler's Widow—Quiet Wedding Expected Before January 1.

The last president to be married in the White House. Should Mr. Wilson eventually decide to be married there, it will be the third wedding in the mansion under his administration, the first, that of Jessie Woodrow Wilson, and Francis B. Sayre, being held in the East room, and the second, that of Secretary McAdoo and Miss Eleanor Wilson, being solemnized in the Blue room.

Mrs. Galt witnessed the naval review in New York in May from the presidential yacht, the Mayflower, where she was a guest of Miss Margaret Wilson. At that time rumors were afloat that the president had developed a strong liking for Mrs. Galt and that another White House romance was to be expected.

Later Mrs. Galt went for a visit at Harlakenden house, the summer home of President Wilson, and for a month or more she was a member of the circle there. The president made two visits to Cornish during Mrs. Galt's stay.

Romance in the Country.

It was then, as Washington understands it, that the romance developed. They took long drives together in the big White House touring car in the beautiful mountain country of Vermont and New Hampshire.

It was noted then that the president had abandoned his practice of riding beside the chauffeur of the White House auto and that he preferred a seat in the tonneau with his daughter and her guest. The president derived a great deal of pleasure, it is said, from reading with Mrs. Galt, finding that their literary tastes were a source of common interest.

With Mrs. Galt's departure from the summer White House in August reports that they were to be engaged took tangible shape. These reports were received, of course, with the greatest interest in official and social circles at the capital, but the president's friends refused to discuss the matter in any way. Indeed, it was intimated broadly that the president would resent any effort to pry into his personal affairs.

Mrs. Galt returned to Washington several weeks ago after visiting friends in Massachusetts. Last week she sat near the presidential box in the reviewing stand for the Grand Army parade.

Dr. Grayson, the Cupid.

Dr. Cary T. Grayson, U. S. N., White House physician, and the president's close friend, is credited with having had a good deal to do with the development of the president's romance. Dr. Grayson, who had gained similar prominence as a romance between Miss Eleanor Wilson and Secretary of the Treasury McAdoo, which resulted in their marriage last spring, met Mrs. Galt more than a year ago and in turn introduced her to Mrs. McAdoo and Miss Margaret Wilson.

Dr. Grayson met Mrs. Galt through Miss Gertrude Gordon of this city. Miss Gordon is a daughter of the late General Gordon, who, upon the death of her father here several years ago, contested his will and obtained from the court a large sum of money. At that time Miss Gordon applied to the court to have Mrs. Galt appointed as her guardian and Mrs. Galt has acted in that capacity ever since, having travelled extensively with Miss Gordon.

Miss Margaret Wilson especially was attracted to Mrs. Galt and they became warm friends immediately after they had met. Through Miss Wilson and Miss Helen Woodrow Jones, Miss Wilson's cousin, who lives at the White House, Mrs. Galt was brought into the highest official circle and met the president. She has maintained the strongest friendship with the president's two daughters and Miss Bones and has been republican.

7

LAST SATURDAY, OCT. 9, 1915

of the Folks"

ried of the words "human sed so much of late, but what attaches to the news

Wilson's engagement at a news of a less pleasing to do the force of mighty events

front. It will be a relief mind to turn from the

of Woodrow Wilson, the public burdens, to the

as soon to have someone turn for sympathy with what it will be given. As a the requirements of his

there is wisdom in this resident. The old saying a man when bearing his usually justified, and always

other burden-bearer is of broadening sort.

for man to be alone in

se. There are social obliet there that can only be ged by a tactful woman.

Mrs Galt is by birth a Vir-self warrant of charm and

h the certainty that she

to the duties that fall

president of the United

re not defined by law, but he less real and important.

uch The Republican gave

Mr Wilson and Mrs Galt

She commanded the attention

as no other single feature uld do.

of the presidency to decide make appointments to ofhes, messages to Congress.

among a hundred million

r Bryan has called "our entitled to some life apart and we shall all be glad given to Mr Wilson. It red by sensible people that not appear to belong to the en type of woman. When tell a woman reporter

s interested in woman suf-interviewed on any other revelation and reassurance

the "restful woman" still the scheme of human af-course this chosen one will

of the president of the land discharge the duties of

White House in the tact-ing way that distinguished

she may be sure of the re-tion of the people. Doing

l to the popularity of the 28-inch triple value $3, sale 89¢ quality Switches and Transformat

Saturday N

Switch

The Sale of

un

will off

pro

sets

sing

even

The

pieces of furniture for the home.

are looking about you for odd buying wedding gifts, or if you surely interest you if you are

The sale of gift furniture will

Furniture

Week

AT AUCTION 29c 57c

Give Sale Prices.

204 WORTHINGTON

Saturday, Oct. 9, customers will buy Listerine

over before as a result of the attractive magazine ad-

These goods, consisting

Rugs, 300 pieces of Bulgar

Antique Brass

The New Mistress of the White House

(Copyright by Arnold Genthe)
MRS. NORMAN GALT.

Washington society has been buzzing for some time with talk of the attentions of President Wilson to Mrs. Norman Galt, widow of a well-known jeweler. They have been seen at baseball games and on the golf links together and she visited his daughter at his summer place in Cornish. It is now announced that they will be married in December. Mrs. Galt is about 38 years old.

Pictures Do Not Do Her Justice.

By this time Mrs. Galt's picture has been printed in almost every daily newspaper in the country. These photographs, which everywhere have commanded admiration, do not do the subject justice because of the inability of the newspapers to reproduce the exquisite coloring of her skin. Her complexion is very fair and her rosy cheeks bespeak the outdoor exercise of which she is so fond and of perfect health.

"Mrs. Galt is about five feet and four inches tall and a trifle plump. Her hair, which is abundant, is very dark brown, seeming black at first glance, and wavy. She wears it simply. Her large, well set eyes are full of soft hazel. These eyes fill with lights and shadows when she smiles. Her eyes speak pages.

"Another of Mrs. Galt's most fascinating features is her mouth, with its red lips and white, even, perfectly shaped teeth. It does not take a seer to tell by her mouth that she is simple, sympathetic and sincere.

"Her face is rounded well and seems to light all over when she smiles, which she seems to be doing almost all of the time. Summed up Mrs. Galt's expressions are almost beyond description.

"Her smile would win any one," said a friend of Mrs. Galt to-day. "It is more than a smile—it is radiance.

"She is alluring, and one of her pretty ways is her fashion of dropping her eyes and then suddenly flashing them up again at you. She does this entirely unconsciously and you find yourself fascinated, registering a mental query as to whether or not she will look up again.

"I have tried to settle in my own way just what Mrs. Galt's chief charm is and I have talked with others about it. It seems that her leading distinction lies in her knack of surprising you.

Mrs. Galt has made it her custom to go abroad each year since her husband's death and had planned for her usual European trip this summer when the war caused its abandonment. The last time Dr. Bolling saw his sister was two years ago when she visited another sister, Mrs. M. H. Maury at Williamsburg, Ky. She never has been in Louisville, although she had intended coming here sometime this winter, he said. The Louisville relatives will attend the wedding, and it was said that there is a possibility that the ceremony will be performed in old St. John's Episcopal church, Washington, where Mrs. Galt's first marriage was solemnized. Members of the family expressed the hope that the Episcopal bishop of Washington would officiate.

Dr. Bolling came to Louisville in 1887 to study medicine and was graduated from the University of Louisville, medical department, in 1891. He married Miss Maytie Keller of Lexington. He now is connected with the scientific research department of the Park-Davis Drug company, Detroit, as local representative. For a time he was acting assistant surgeon of the United States Marine hospital service at Samp Lowe, Sandy Hook, N. J.

The jewelry establishment of Mrs. Galt's husband still is owned by her and managed by her two brothers, Julian and Randolph Bolling. Besides these and Dr. Bolling, she has two other brothers, William, a real estate man of Washington, and Rolfe Bolling, manager of a branch of the Washington Commercial National bank at Acnon, Panama; and three sisters, Mrs. Anna Lee Maury of Abbeville, Ala.; Mrs. H. H. Galt, of Washington, and Miss Bertha Bolling, who lives with their mother in Washington.

Thousands in New York Give Future "First Lady" a Rousing Welcome. Dinner at Home of Colonel E. M. House—To See Game In Philadelphia Today.

New York, Oct. 8.—President Wilson and his fiancée, Mrs. Norman Galt, came to New York today for a brief visit to the President's closest friend, Colonel E. M. House. From the time of their arrival this afternoon until late tonight they were New York's chief objects of interest and each time they appeared in public they were followed by thousands.

For the first time since he became President, Mr. Wilson gave way as a center of attraction to another. The people showed anxiety to see him, but their eyes were centered on the woman who, within the next two months, is to become the "first lady of the land."

Both the President and Mrs. Galt were evidently pleased by the reception accorded them. Both were slightly shy on their first appearance in public as an engaged couple, but accepted applause with smiles. They made no attempt to hide themselves and every time they appeared in public they were side by side. The President gave himself up for the time being to entertaining his fiancée. He was happy and jovial throughout the day and his usually stern face was constantly wreathed in smiles.

The program of the couple included a long automobile ride through the parks, a dinner party this evening at the home of Colonel and Mrs. House, and a theater party tonight. Tomorrow they leave at 11 o'clock for Philadelphia, where they plan to witness the second game of the world series baseball championship. Immediately after that, they will go to Washington on a special train.

Ovation In Theater.

At the theater tonight "Grumpy" was the play, but the President and Mrs. Galt were easily the stars of the evening. As they entered the theater the entire audience arose and applauded. The applause continued until the President, Mrs. Galt and Miss Helen Woodrow Bones, the President's cousin, appeared in their box and were seated.

Several hundred persons were gathered at the Pennsylvania station when the couple arrived. They were accompanied by Mrs. W. H. Bolling, Mrs. Galt's mother; Miss Bones, Secretary Tumulty and Dr. Cary T. Grayson, U. S. N., the President's physician and naval aide. An unusually large number of secret service men headed by Chief Flynn was with them.

Crowd Cheers Mrs. Galt.

Colonel House and Dudley Field Malone, collector of the port of New York, were at the station to greet the President and his party, and hurried them into a limousine. The crowd cheered and applauded and pushed forward for a chance to see the future Mrs. Wilson. She beamed upon the crowd and the President looked at her and smiled.

"They are applauding you," he said. Along streets where everybody seemed to recognize the couple in the automobile, the presidential party was driven to the hotel, where Mrs. Galt, Mrs. Bolling and Dr. Grayson spent the night. The President was then driven to Colonel House's apartment on East Fifty-third street.

After a brief interval, the start was made on a long automobile ride. Mrs. Galt, Mrs. Bolling, the President and Dr. Grayson rode in the car and they were easily recognized. The President called at Mrs. Galt's hotel for her. As the party left the hotel they were held up a few minutes by a large corps of photographers. The President and Mrs. Galt sat smilingly, side by side, as their pictures were snapped.

Early on the ride the President's familiar face was recognized by automobilists and pedestrians and people turned, bowed, smiled and waved handkerchiefs and hats. Frequently the President raised his hat in reply and Mrs. Galt bowed and smiled.

Autos Pursue Wilson's Car.

Automobile parties sought to get near the President's car to see the couple, and as a result before he had proceeded far upwards of 100 automobiles were in pursuit, and the secret service men and city detectives had a hard time keeping them back. The return ride to Colonel House's apartment and the hotel was made just as the sun was going down.

For the dinner and theater party afterwards, Mrs. Galt wore a low cut gown of black, relieved by a large corsage bouquet of red roses. Over her gown she wore an elaborate opera cloak of red and black.

The guests at the dinner party included the President and Mrs. Galt, Mrs. Bolling, Miss Bones, Secretary Tumulty, Dr. Grayson and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Auchincloss, the latter the daughter of Colonel House. Mrs. House was hostess.

Many had heard in advance that the President and Mrs. Galt would be at the theater and had gathered at the entrance to applaud the engaged couple. The members of the box party included those at the dinner and Mr. and Mrs. Dudley Field Malone, the latter the daughter of Senator O'Gorman.

Washington, Oct. 10.—President Wilson and Mrs. Norman Galt, his fiancée, motored to Baltimore today to visit the President's brother, Joseph R. Wilson, who had not met the next mistress of the White House. While there they attended church and were the guests of honor at a family luncheon.

Several hundred people in Baltimore learned of the presence of the couple and crowded about the church and the apartment house in which Joseph Wilson lives, to catch a glimpse of the President and his bride-to-be. Because it was Sunday, the applause of Friday and Saturday in New York and Philadelphia, was missing, but the people voiced their approval of the President's choice in audible comments.

Mrs. Galt wore a beautiful blue taffeta gown, a black velvet hat trimmed with fur, champagne colored gloves, and a short face veil, and smiled happily at the crowd. The President, too, smiled continually.

Washington, October 18.—President Wilson and Mrs. Norman Galt, his fiancée, had a quiet Sunday. The president took a long walk alone this morning, not attending church, as is his custom, and later he walked to the home of Mrs. Galt, Groom 59; Bride 43.

The marriage license was issued Thursday at the local municipal bureau. It disclosed for the first time that the ceremony would be performed by a clergyman of Mrs.

the Rev. Herbert Scott of St. Margaret's ch. The president is and an elder in his

PRESIDENT WILSON AND MRS GALT

YORK CITY

W. Bolling, Mrs Galt's Mother, out to Start for a Morning Trip

Photograph Taken During the Baseball Season Just Closing, Shows President Woodrow Wilson and Mrs Norman Galt, Widow of a Prominent Jeweler of Washington, D. C., and Formerly a Miss Bolling of Virginia, Whose Engagement to Marry Was Officially Announced at the White House Wednesday Evening, Closely Examining a Baseball, Just Before the President Started the Game by Tossing Out the Ball

Miss Frances Folsom took place in the blue room of the executive mansion. It was comparatively a private affair, for the invited guests included only the cabinet members, their wives and a few friends and relatives of the couple.

President Wilson's wedding is the third in his family since he took office. The first White House wedding of his term was that of his second daughter, Jessie Woodrow Wilson, to Francis Bowes Sayre, and the other was that of his youngest daughter, Eleanor, to Secretary McAdoo. The president now has two grandchildren, the little son of the Sayres and the baby daughter of the McAdoos.

White Calf, are now in the mountain country just south of the border in quest of the game. They already have secured a variety of game, including sheep, elk, four kinds of deer, mink and marten.

Some of the more valuable pieces have been in the possession of the Blackfeet chief for half a century. Notable among these is a white buffalo skin. There is a sacred legend connected with this rare trophy, which is cherished by the Blackfeet, and Chief Three Bears has repeatedly refused good offers for this particular skin. When the furs are in hand arrangements will be made with the interior department for Chief Three Bears, who is 96 years old, to visit Washington with his bundle and make the presentation to Mrs Galt. According to Indian custom the ceremony will be made a week or so before the date set for the marriage in order that the distinguished recipient may have time to prepare her trousseau.

THE WEDDING

Dec. 18, 1915

CEREMONY AT 8.30

Wilson-Galt Nuptials in Bride's Washington Home—Wedding Party Numbers Less Than 30—Services Marked by Extreme Simplicity

President Wilson and Mrs. Galt were married at 8.30 o'clock last night and to spend their honeymoon at Va. The president and his in a private car attached to a train leaving Washington at 11.10 a. m. The train is due to arrive at Hot Springs at 8.15 a. m.

At Hot Springs Mr and Mrs Galt will live at the Homestead after New-year's day, unless development should necessitate the president's earlier return to the White House. The automobile has been sent on ahead and the president expects to spend their honeymoon golfing and walking the mountains. Besides the secret service party was accompanied by the president's physician. The president will remain at the White House over the night.

Because the hour of the wedding was known to comparatively few guests, there was not a large crowd in the bride's home, although a guard had been provided. The wedding ceremony was carried out perfectly, the president arriving at his bride's home at 8 o'clock and the wedding party, which was following soon after, began, as has been known, at 8 o'clock and the reception luncheon. Mr and Mrs. Galt and Mrs. E. C. Galt were in the train.

Take Soon after Mrs Wilson's Washington House announced that the president's wife, Mrs. Galt, was a member of the Wesleyan church at Washington. Wilson's father, Dr. Smith, was a Protestant minister. After the president's formal statement on the wedding, it was just as simple. It was just as simple. It was just as simple. It was just as simple.

The wedding was simplicity. It was just as simple. It was just as simple. It was just as simple.

The prayer book which the officiating clergyman used once was the property of the late Judge William H. Bolling of Virginia, father of the bride, and was used at her request. Several guests added to the list at the last moment included Prif Stockton Axson, a brother of the late Mrs Wilson; A. Bolling Galt, Mr and Mrs Sterling Galt, the former a brother of Mrs Wilson's first husband, and Mrs Tumulty, wife of Secretary Tumulty. One of the added guests was Matilda Braxton, an old Negro mammy of Wytheville, Va., who has been a servant in the bride's

The ruse by which the wedding party got away to Alexandria was complete. When the White House automobile pulled away from Mrs Wilson's house, lines of police blocked pursuit in all the adjoining streets. At the union station the presidential entrance was fully lighted and lines of police were spread all about. Those who were attracted to the railroad station by the show of preparation were disappointed while the president and Mrs Wilson were speeding to the station across the river, 10 miles away.

The president dined as usual at the White House at 7 o'clock with his daughter and his bride's

PRESIDENT WILSON.

—[Copyright Underwood & Underwood, New York.
FROM PORTRAIT BY MARION SWINTON FOR MANHATTAN CLUB
OF NEW YORK.

Smith began the words of the presidential marriage service, the president making his responses first, and then the bride making hers. After the bride promised to "love, cherish and obey," the president placed the wedding ring upon her finger and then after a prayer and while the couple clasped their right hands together Dr Smith declared them man and wife. The brief and simple ceremony was over.

The entire party then turned to the dining room, where a buffet supper was served. The decorations there were of pink and on the buffets were banked growing ferns and

The President Out Again

The President Out Again

A bracelet of Brazilian tourmalines and an ornament of tropical bird feathers came from South America. From Belgian s at the wedding included: Mrs. Bolling of this city, the mother; Mrs. Matthew H. Maury of Ala.; Mrs. Alexander H. Ty, and Miss Bertha Bolling the bride; her five brothers, Richard W. Maury, E. Bolling of this city, E. Bolling of Louisville, E. Bolling of Panama-in-law, Alexander P. Ty; three sisters-in-law, Mrs. Ty, Mrs. Rofe E. Bolling and W. Bolling; Secretary Sam G. McAdoo; Mr. and Mrs. Sayre of Williamstown, Margaret Wilson, Miss Helgeson, the president's cousin, Joseph R. Wilson of former the brother of the president; Alice Wilson, the president's sister; Miss Anne Howe of Philadelphia, the president's niece; Miss Johnson, the president's grand-daughter; Dr. Grayson, Dr. Gordon, Mrs. Galt's J. Wilson Howe of Richmond, the president's nephew, and after the list of guests was read and joined the wedding.

the president's family at the christening of Ellen, daughter of Secretary, and the president's only. The christening was in the White House. The president and Mrs. Francis B. Y's aunt, and Miss Helen, cousin of the president, Rev. Roland Cotton of St. John's Protestant church, christened the baby, last May.

He paid an early morning
call, and after a brief visit to the bank, where he spent half an hour through his safe deposit box and over some accounts.

t completed what was for breaking day in extending signing papers, just before xecutive offices for dinner.
en from jail. He commuted once the three-months' sen-Turner, convicted in the ria federal court on a charge guor illegally, and remitted e of Zhuck-Que-Ah, an In-in Kansas of introducing Pottawatomie Indian reser-

"We were not off our trolley," T. Ley, chairman of the meeting, said. "We did exactly what we were told to do."

Takes an Automobile Ride Lasting an Hour and a Half, Accompanied by Mrs. Wilson and Dr. Grayson

MARCH 22, 1920

PRESIDENT WILSON yesterday took the longest automobile ride he has had since becoming ill. As the touring car bearing the chief executive, Mrs. Wilson and Rear Admiral Grayson, his physician, turned out of the White House grounds the President waved a smiling hand to a crowd that had collected at the east gate. The President lifted his hat and bowed to the cheers of the crowd.

He posed more than five minutes for moving picture men. The pictures showed him somewhat thinner than before his illness. Throughout the trip the President chatted amately with Mrs. Wilson and Dr. Grayson and on returning to the White House seemed not in the least bit tired, but strengthened and invigorated by the long ride. His cheeks were red from the fresh air of the park.

box and a large mahogany dining table.

HOME OF THE FIANCEE OF THE PRESIDENT.

—(Photograph by Buck.

Washington, December 15.—The national capital is taking greater interest in an informal event scheduled for Saturday of this week. It is the marriage of President Wilson to Mrs. Norman Galt, residence of the bride, No. 1,808 Twentieth street, N. Y.

PRESIDENT WILSON AND BRIDE REACH HOT SPRINGS, VA.

Messages of Congratulations Come From All Parts of the World.

Hot Springs, Va., Dec. 19.—President Wilson and his bride arrived here shortly after 9 o'clock this morning to spend their honeymoon in the state in which both of them were born. They were met at the station by a crowd of several hundred people, who applauded as they alighted from their private car. Waiting automobiles took the couple immediately to their hotel.

Congratulations have arrived here from almost every part of the world. Messages of good wishes came from rulers of nations in Europe, Presidents of South and Central American countries, governors of states, diplomats, members of the Senate and House and justices of the supreme court and from scores of personal friends and relatives. Many they will answer personally from here.

During the two weeks or more before returning to Washington to take up the official and social duties of the White House, the couple will golf, motor and climb mountains together, and as far as possible be protected from the prying eyes of the outside world.

Hot Springs and its colony of visitors welcomed the President and his bride enthusiastically. When the crowd began applauding at the station, the President and Mrs. Wilson appeared to be just as happy as the bride and groom.

and at the raised his briskly to automobile ahead for the

The President and Mrs. Wilson today celebrated their first wedding anniversary with a motor ride, a family dinner party and a visit to the motion pictures. The President and his wife are consistent theatergoers, but it was their first visit to "the movies."

Notice of the anniversary was taken in the House, where Republican Leader Mann, just before adjournment tonight, aroused hearty applause by making it the subject of a brief address.

"The beauty of American politics," said Mr. Mann, "is that we accept results and remain friends. Mr. Wilson recently was re-elected President. I did not vote for him. Today is the anniversary of a very important day in his life, and I wish to felicitate him and Mrs. Wilson on their happy union of a year ago and wish for them a continuance of that happiness and a long and pleasant life."

The Warm Springs valley, in which the honeymoon is being spent, is entirely surrounded by hills and mountains. Trails and roads lead to the slopes and Mrs. Wilson will have unlimited opportunity to indulge her fondness for walking. She has become a devotee of golf, the President having taught her the game since they became engaged. Both brought their golf clubs and tonight it was said they would be up early tomorrow morning for a game.

The President will attend to only the most important public business while here, but arrangements have been made for connecting the hotel with the White House by a special telegraph wire if necessary, and he will keep in direct telephone communication with Secretary Lansing and other officials. The eastern newspapers arrive here an entire day late, and, therefore, the President will have to depend entirely on word from the White House for his news. His stenographer brought along several applications for pardons and some important correspondence and the President will devote a part of each day to work.

Students of card etiquette will not fail to note that the cards announcing the marriage of

PRESIDENT WILSON CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY

Gets Many Messages—Cake Designed By Mrs. Wilson.

Hot Springs, Va., Dec. 28.—President Wilson, on his fifty-ninth birthday, worked several hours, read hundreds of telegrams of congratulation from people all over the country, took a long automobile drive over snow-covered mountain roads and in the evening had a quiet birthday dinner.

MRS. WILSON TAKES UP WHITE HOUSE DUTIES

Two Diplomatic Dinners To Be Given Because of War.

Washington, Jan. 4.—Mrs. Woodrow Wilson took up her duties today as mistress of the White House. Soon after her arrival with the President from their honeymoon at Hot Springs, she was busy with arrangements for the brilliant social season that opens Friday night with the Pan-American reception in the Blue room.

The state department's list dividing foreign diplomats between the two diplomatic dinners that will be given this year because of the European war was sent to the White House during the day. It will be gone over carefully by the President and Mrs. Wilson before it is made public or invitations issued.

The task of determining to which of the dinners the representatives here of neutral governments should be invited, which for a time presented a difficult problem, was solved by designating them alternately from the official diplomatic list. The neutrals, under this plan, will be divided equally between the dinners at which representatives of the Teutonic and those of the entente powers will be present. One of the diplomatic dinners will be held January 11, and the other January 21.

Editor

President's Message Dec 7

Mrs Galt's Incisive

Woman Suffrage

DR

Pres

ARRIED
Gordon, Downed, 6 to 1
last night started east club carrying a record, having won its western trip number of consecutive
The Giants accomby defeating accon-1. Up to the Choin, chess' battle, with letter of the argu-
The poor support
the score.

emony was performed by William J. Cox of Philadelphia, used the Episcopal service. Miss son had no bridesmaids and was given away by Patrick W. Flournoy of Charleston, W. Va. Her aunt, Mrs Wood Flournoy of New York, was also present. Surgeon A. M. Fauntleroy, United States navy, acted as best man,
and Col W. W. Harts, United States Army, military aid to the president, and Capt Robert L. Berry, United States navy, the president's naval aid, were ushers, all three accompanying the groom in the walk to the chancel.

After the ceremony, the wedding party went to Mrs Flournoy's residence for a reception. Only a small group of relatives and intimate friends of the couple attended. Both at the church and at the home of Mrs Flournoy several hundred people clapped and cheered when the president arrived and departed. A large contin-gent of city police and secret-service men were on hand to guard him.

Dr and Mrs Grayson left last night for a three-weeks' wedding tour and afterward will live in Washington. Presents were received by the couple from the president and his wife, employes, at the White House, members of the cabinet and many government officials, senators and representatives.

The wedding cake, which was served at the reception, was made at the White House under the personal direction of Mrs Wilson, who has been Miss Gordon's closest friend since the death of the latter's father several years ago. Both Mrs Wilson, prior to her marriage to the president, and Miss Gordon were guests of his family last summer at Cornish, N. H., and the romances of the president and his wife and of Dr Grayson and Mrs Grayson proceeded together.

Dr. Grayson, a member of an old Virginia family, is a passed assistant surgeon in the navy and has served as the White House physician during the entire Wilson administration. To him has fallen the task of preserving the health of Mr. Wilson during the many trying days since his inauguration. He has accompanied the President on all of his trips and is a regular partner at golf.

MISS LEE TO MISS WILSON.
Daughter of General Lee Presents Historic Washington Plate.

Washington, February 18.—Miss Mary Custis Lee, daughter of General Robert E. Lee, has presented to Miss Margaret Wilson for the White House collection of presidential china a plate of the George Washington Cincinnati dinner set. It is one of a set presented to General and Mrs. Washington by American officers of the Society of the Cincinnati, founded at Annapolis in 1783 by American and French officers who served together in the Revolution and which had General Washington as its first president.

The plate, considered in many respects the most valuable piece in the collection because it has more historical associations and is better known than any of the Washington relics, is of Cantonese ware with deep blue mottled border and gold lines and bearing in the center the figure of Fame with a trumpet to her lips and holding aloft the insignia of the Society of the Cincinnati.

The relic has been placed in a cabinet in the lower corridor of the executive mansion with the extensive and valuable collection of presidential ware.

RTFORD DAILY TIMES, SATURDAY, JUNE

ND COL. E. M. HOUSE.

MATE PERSONAL FRIEND, ROSLYN, LONG ISLAND, EN ROUTE
HE CHIEF MAGISTRATE ARRIVED FRIDAY.

THE HA

PRESIDENT WILSON AN

PICTURE TAKEN DURING PRESIDENT'S STOP AT HOUSE OF INTL TO CORNISH, NEW HAMPSHIRE, WHERE T

RD DAILY COURANT: MONDAY, FEBRUARY 28, 1921.

President Wilson as He Appeared at His First and Last Cabinet Meeting

Photographs of President Wilson made at his first and last cabinet meeting. Picture on the left was made at the first cabinet meeting after Mr. Wilson's election eight years ago. The one on the right was made on February 15th, 1921, and shows the marked change in the President since his illness.

Where President Is Honeymooning.

(Copyright by Underwood & Underwood, New York.)

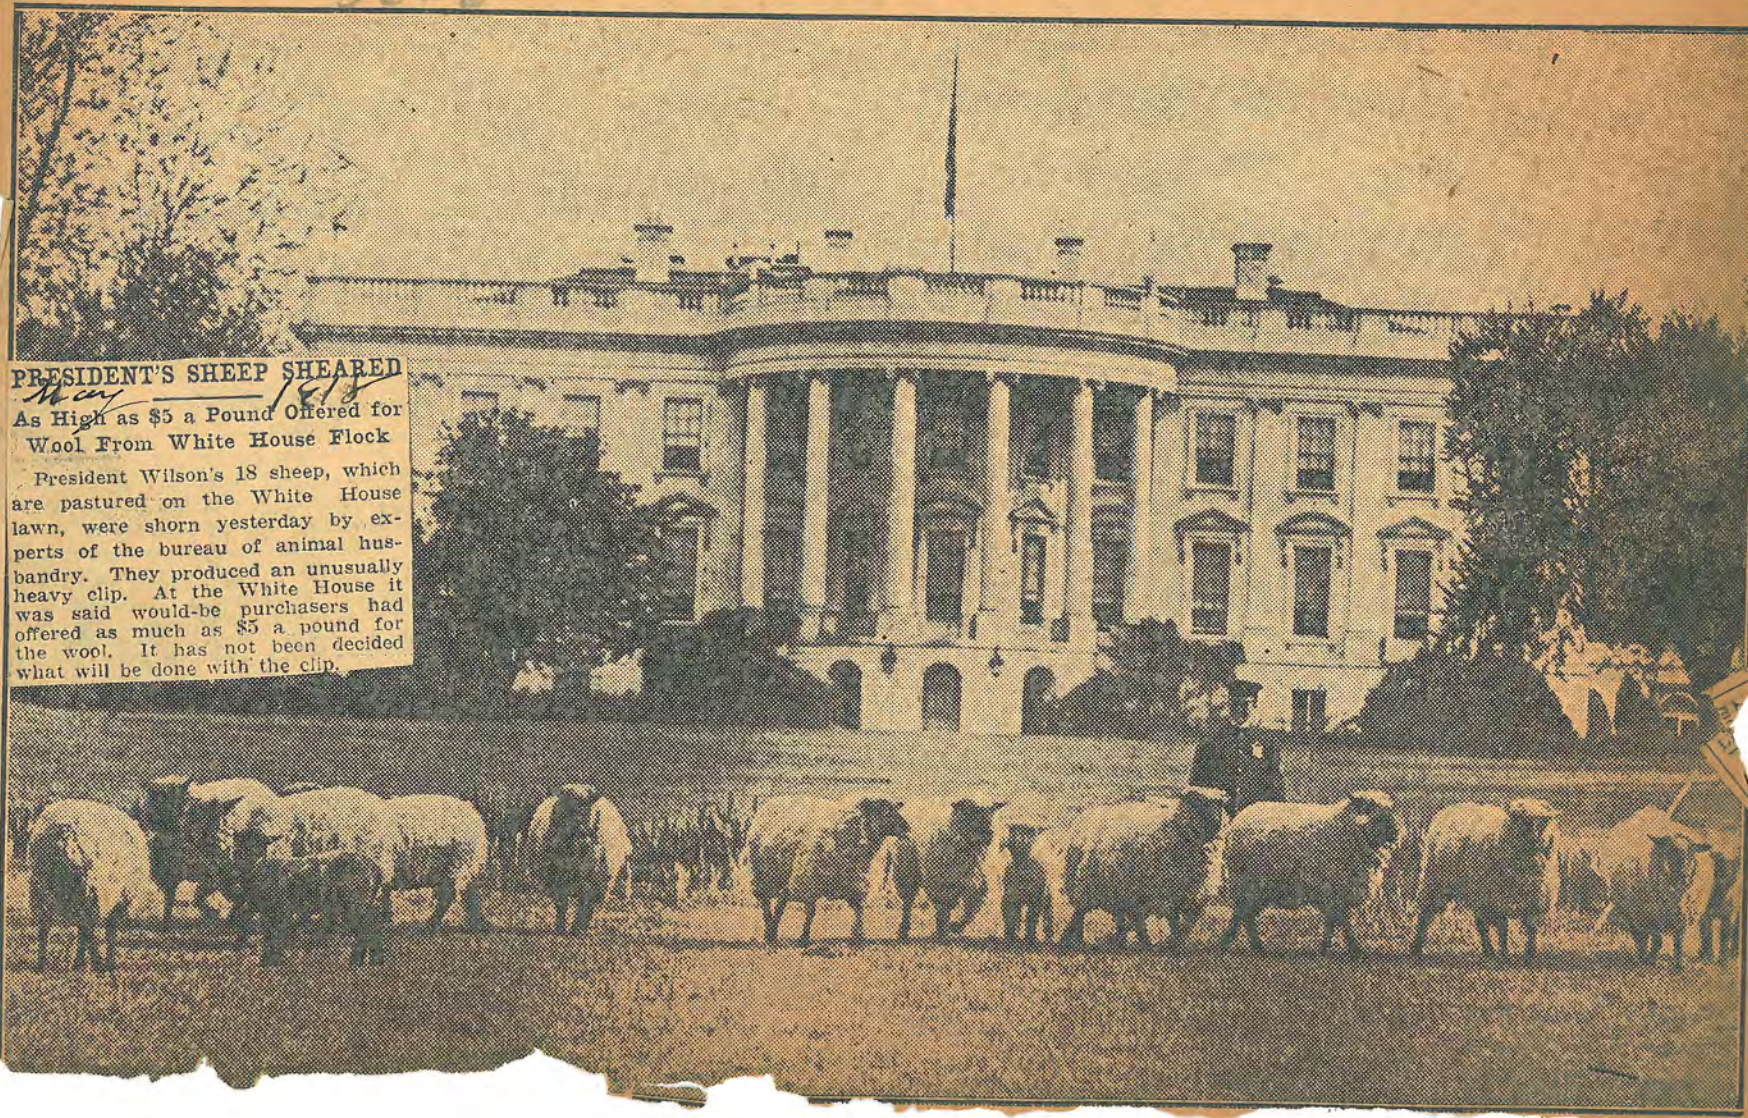

Hot Springs, Va., December 22.—President Wilson and his bride, the former Mrs. Norman Galt, are making the most of their honeymoon stay here. The president's suite of four rooms is on the third floor of the wing of the Homestead hotel, shown at the right of the lower picture. The porches outside the windows overlook the golf links seen in the upper picture.

The President's Flock on the White House Lawn

PRESIDENT'S SHEEP SHEARED

As High as $5 a Pound Offered for Wool From White House Flock

President Wilson's 18 sheep, which are pastured on the White House lawn, were shorn yesterday by experts of the bureau of animal husbandry. They produced an unusually heavy clip. At the White House it was said would-be purchasers had offered as much as $5 a pound for the wool. It has not been decided what will be done with the clip.

the most beautiful voice in Amer-d the explanation of this statement. said that Mrs. White, although assessed of a beautiful high soprano voice, refused to sing in public, so he and Congress will probably continue long in session. This, with the presidential campaign, makes it desirable for him to keep close to the mainspring.
Governor Fielder in his letter
urged the president to spend next summer in New Jersey, to receive Shadow Lawn, Long Branch, N. J., the New Summer
White House.

Wilson Takes Former Home Of the Late John A. M'Call, "S" ELBERON'S ASSOCIATIONS "Elberon, N. J.

Memories Awakened by the President's Choice of a Summer Home

[From the Boston Herald.]
Acc "Shadow Lawn," the estate in Elberon, N. J., which President Wilson has engaged for his summer home, appears in several respects interestingly reminiscent. On it the late John A. McCall, president of the New York life insurance company, expended not less than $1,000,000, making it one of the show places of the Atlantic seaboard. And his own rise in life and in fortune was in no small part traceable to the favor of President Wilson's last democratic predecessor, when governor of New York. The president only smiled Call, then a clerk of 34, who had become an deputy superintendent in the state insurance department, its head. This directed his steps into the outside insurance field, where he finally became president of one of the great companies.
Elberon was a familiar date line to the American people of 34 years ago, as the seashore point to which tender hands carried President Garfield for his long battle for life.
President Wilson is wise to select a seashore home within easy running distance of Washington. Next summer will be busy.
Congress will probably continue long in session. This, with the presidential campaign, makes it desirable for him to keep
close to the mainspring.
Governor Fielder in his letter
urged the president to spend next
summer in New Jersey, to receive Shadow Lawn, Long Branch, N. J., the New Summer
White House.

varied career since it was built, some thirteen years ago, by Mr. McCall.
He was at that time President of the New York Life Insurance Company, and Shadow Lawn was considered one of the most beautiful Summer homes in America. It stands on a hill in the center of about forty acres of rolling land which have been beautified by every art of the landscape gardener. The house is of Colonial design, from plans by Henry Edward Creiger, and the numerous observation towers, outhouses, and barns are all built in perfect harmony with the main structure.
Approaching the house from the main entrance to the grounds through a massive gateway, there is a series of wide granite steps, from either side of the balustrade. Beyond is a circular porch of stone, the roof of which, on a level with the roof of the house, is supported by classic stone columns.
Groups of evergreen trees soften the lines of the gateway and porch, and the walls of the house are covered with trailing vines.
The main hallway is lofty and spa-

See, Rejecting, How-Shall Be Rent Free
in of Renomination.

ad tidings" of his renoma-
The president only smiled
Mr. Wilson announced that he would accept the invitation armly applauded, and all the on insisted on shaking hands im.
acceptance means he will not to Harlakenden House, the ce of Winston Churchill, at N. H., which he has occueach summer since becoming nt.
McCall mansion is not so seas Harlakenden House and
r. Arrangements for turning over to the president have already been made by the commission which saw him to-day.

MAJ MOTON NAMED

Committee's Choice is Unanimous for Hampton Institute Head as Successor to Booker T. Washington

New York Herald 10/19/15

Maj Robert R. Moton of Hampton institute, Hampton, Va., was selected to succeed Booker T. Washington as president of Tuskegee institute, Tuskegee, Ala., at a meeting of the special committee of the trustees of the institute at New York yesterday. The choice was unanimous. The committee making the selection was composed of Seth Low, chairman of the Tuskegee trustees; Frank Trumbull of the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad; Edgar A. Bancroft, W. W. Campbell and Victor H. Tulane.

Maj Moton will not be installed as head of the famous Negro institute until the commencement exercises in May, 1916. Until that time he will give his services to the campaign for the Booker T. Washington memorial fund. The new head of Tuskegee has been commandant of cadets at Hampton since 1890. He was born in

The new head of Tuskegee has been commandant of cadets at Hampton since 1890. He was born in Virginia August 16, 1867. He is a full-blooded negro and traces his ancestry direct to African chiefs. His grandmother was the great granddaughter of an African prince. This prince was stolen from Africa brought to Richmond and sold in the slave markets of that city. Major Moton's early childhood was spent at Vaughn's Mansion in Prince Edward county, Va., where he was waiter and general house boy.

Early Struggle.

Something of the early difficulties young Moton had to overcome in his early struggles for an education is told in a series of magazine articles, written by himself in the April, May and August numbers of the "World's Work" for 1907. He tells of his mother's first teaching him how to read. His first days at school he was taught by a Mr. Morrisette, an ex-officer in the Southern army, who was very kind and took a great deal of pains with him. He worked for the Vaughn family before school in the morning and after school in the evening.

The Start At Hampton.

After the death of the Vaughn family he heard of the Hampton Institute, wrote to General Armstrong and receiving a satisfactory reply, entered Hampton in October, 1885. He remained at Hampton until 1888 when he left to teach school in Cumberland county. In October, 1889, he returned to Hampton and finished his course.

The summer preceding his returning to Hampton he had found work in Philadelphia in John Wanamaker's store, where he came directly under the influence of the late Robert C. Ogden, whose office among others it was his duty to clean. He was graduated from Hampton in June, 1890. After graduation, he accepted a place under General Armstrong as drill master and later under Dr. Frissell, General Armstrong's successor, became commandant of the School Cadets, a position which he has held for twenty-five years.

In a statement issued by the committee it is declared that by the election of Major Moton, "the policies, aims and attitude of the institute will continue unchanged."

MAJOR MOTON HAS PURE NEGRO BLOOD. Is Scion of African Chief Once Power in West Africa.

Major Robert Russa Moton, commandant of the Hampton Institute, who was elected by the special committee of five in New York last Monday to succeed the late Dr. Booker T. Washington as president of Tuskegee institute, was born in 1867 in Amelia county, Virginia. He entered Hampton in 1885 and was graduated in 1890. For one year he served as a drill master and then became commandant of cadets.

Since the death of General Armstrong in 1893, Major Moton has served Dr. Hollis B. Frissell, principal of Hampton institute, loyally and efficiently both as commandant and as a speaker in the Hampton educational and financial campaigns throughout the country.

In 1908 Robert Moton became the secretary of the Negro Rural school fund board, Anna T. Jones foundation. Since 1912 he has served as president of the Negro Organization society of Virginia, which works through several hundred negro organizations for better schools, better health, better farms and better homes. This society touches the lives of at least 350,000 negroes in Virginia. Major Moton is the trustee of several negro institutions.

Friend to Washington.

Dr. Booker T. Washington and Major Moton were life-long friends, says the Montgomery Advertiser. In recent years, Major Moton has toured a number of southern states with Dr. Washington and has addressed thousands of white and colored people on the value of working together in the spirit of mutual helpfulness for the improvement of community of race conditions. At the recent Boston meeting of the National Negro Business league, Dr. Washington asked Major Moton to sum up the proceedings and give his interpretation of the negro's real progress.

In 1907 Major Moton wrote for the World's Work, the story of his life under the caption, "A Negro's Uphill Climb." He has also contributed important articles on problems of race adjustment to the Southern Workman, an illustrated monthly magazine published by Hampton Institute. Major Moton's public addresses have been widely printed throughout the south as well as the north. They have been seasoned with enough wit and humor to make them entertaining without interfering with the serious purpose of his message.

Major Moton's philosophy is founded on common-sense and experience. He has constantly urged his people to cultivate race pride; to stand together on all questions of race uplift; to lead clean lives; to be progressive in business; to give an honest day's work for a day's pay; to build better houses, homes and schools and, above all, to work with their white friends. Major Moton has wisely and skillfully interpreted for white men and women the fundamental problems which

HAS
BLOOD
an Chief in West Moton, com-
on Institute,
special comrk last Mon-
Dr. Booker
ant of Tus-
in 1887
He en-
and was for one year and then of color.
Moton has trained, products, loyalty commandant
the Hampton al campaigns
he became the Rural school
some friends as well as Organization which works
ed negro coeducation, beter and better tunes the negroes in the true education.
Moton and long friends, adventures. In Moton has other states and his advocate and colleagues of working at mutual improvement of the race. At the instigation of the League, Dr.
Moton to and give his negro's real write for the story of
him. "A Ne-
He has also articles on ment to the illustrated published by Moton's been widely the south as are have been well and bu-entertaining with the seriousness.
anthology is entire and extensively urged the race pride;
all questions of the race fires; to the race; to give the race for a day's the race, homes
the race, to work the race. Major the race, to in-
the race, to in-
the race, to in-
the race, to in-

relate to masses of negroes who live side by side with a strong and dominant white race.

Washington's Tribute.
Dr. Washington in his book called "My Large Education," said of Moton
MOTON INSTALLED AS HEAD OF TUSKEGEE

Makes Plea for Unselfish Co-operation and Consecration Tuskegee, Ala., May 25. Major Robert R. Moton was installed as

BOOKER T. WASHINGTON'S SUCCESSOR

Robert R. Moton of Hampton Institute is Chosen to Succeed Booker T. Washington as President of Tuskegee Institute

BERLIN.
Dec 21 1915
Miss Field Weds B. F. Field and Will Live in St. Louis.

Mrs. J. B. Field announces the marriage of Miss Juanita Emily Field, daughter of the late Burr Kellogg Field to Walter Archer Wells of Williams-town, Mass. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Samuel A. Fiske at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. J. B. Field on Worthington ridge, Tuesday evening, December 21. Miss Field was given in marriage by her uncle,

St. Louis, Minn. of New Britain, was matron of t Gray Schaffler, onel C. M. Jarvis, s. Frank K. Field, grandmother of ent, and assisted room in which the e was decorated x and mistletoe me in the south. to Bermuda, Mr. l be at home to Louis, Mo., where he &

BOY-ED.

nde ay me is iar nd ul
all ws
to.
rt.
za-
th ly.
es,
at-
in

- city of this vital essential of success.
If teamwork is necessary in this College's games
- Mobile 8, Memphis 3.
 - New Orleans 7, Little Rock 2.
 - Nashville 3, Birmingham 2.
 - Chattanooga 11, Atlanta 2.
 - Southern Association.
 - Columbus-Indianapolis, rain.
 - Louisville 4, Toledo 3 (12 innings)
 - Millwaukee 3, St. Paul 0.
 - Minneapolis 4, Kansas City 3.
 - American Association.
 - (Only three games scheduled.)
 - Buffalo 5, Baltimore 4.
 - Montreal 8, Richmond 1.
 - Toronto 4, Providence 3.
 - International League.
 - Philadelphia-Cleveland, wet grounds
 - Chicago 3, Washington 8 (14 ins)

WILL RECALL ATTACHES TO OBLIGE AMERICA

Berlin, via London, Dec. 12.—Speaking of the recall of Captains Boy-Ed and von Papen, the "Cologne Gazette" says:—

"The relations of governments are more important than consideration for individuals. Therefore the sacrifice will be made to these relations of recalling diplomatic persons with whom the other government believes it cannot work comfortably further in pending affairs. The recall is, then, an act of international obligingness and nothing more."

Major Robert R. Moton

Slated to Succeed Booker T. Washington as Principal of Tuskegee Institute

A COMMITTEE of five of the trustees of Tuskegee Institute will meet in New York this afternoon to select a successor to Booker T. Washington as head of the Institute. The choice is said to lie between Major Robert B. Moton of Hampton Institute, Hampton, Va., and Emmett Scott, acting head of Tuskegee since Dr. Washington's death, with the chances favoring the former.

Of all the men mentioned for the presidency of Tuskegee Major Robert R. Moton is perhaps the best acquainted with the ideals which dominated the life of Booker T. Washington. Major Moton was one of Dr. Washington's closest friends, and though not sharing directly in the late educator's labors, accompanied him on many of his trips and as a result, understood his aims and his hopes. Major Moton is an orator of wide renown. He is a man of massive build and traces his ancestry direct to African chiefs. He is a graduate of Hampton Institute, where he has been commandant of cadets for many years.

The election of Mr. Moton will have the added advantage of filling the vacancy without disturbing the school's organization. Vice-president Logan and Secretary Scott, who are also suggested as principal, have been connected with Tuskegee for many years and in fact "ran" the institution while Dr. Washington was away on his many trips. The principal of Tuskegee must of necessity spend much time away from the Institute and while he is away someone must administer the school's affairs efficiently and sympathetically. With Major Moton as principal, the Logan-Scott arrangement can continue as in the past.

There are some people who have tried to discount the ability of the negro, as a race, to produce leaders by harping on the point that Booker T. Washington, admittedly one of the greatest figures produced by our democracy in the last generation, had a strong strain of white blood in his veins. But such an argument falls down in the case of Major Moton, who, like Paul Laurence Dunbar, the poet, is of unmixed blood. Indeed, this negro traces his ancestry back to 1735.

Here is Major Moton's story as told by Will Cousin in the New York Evening Post:

eral Armstrong in the administration and development of the institute. Indeed, when the major was chosen to fill Dr. Washington's place at Tuskegee he left a vacancy at Hampton which it will be a serious problem to fill.

Booker Washington and Robert Moton were intimate friends, admired and respected each other's abilities as no one else could, and were heartily agreed as to the best methods of dealing with the race problem. Dr. Washington founded the National Negro Business League, an organization of growing size and importance; while his friend has developed in the Negro Organization Society of Virginia, of which he is founder and president, one of the greatest forces for race harmony and the improvement of the negro which there is in the country.

Author and Orator

Like Dr. Washington, Major Moton has written several books and contributed articles to such periodicals as the Southern Workman and World's Work on various phases of the so-called negro problem and negro education. Both in his speeches and in his writings he has shown a wonderful ability to get right to the heart of the subject without mincing words and at the same time win and hold the respect of both races, including the Southern whites. Here are some things he said in a Commencement address at Tuskegee in 1912:

"You and I belong to an undeveloped, backward race that is rarely for its own sake taken into account in the adjustment of man's relation to man, but is considered largely with reference to the impression which it makes upon the dominant Anglo-Saxon. The negro's very existence is itself somewhat satellitious, and secondary only, to the great white orb around which he revolves. If by chance any light does appear in the black man's sphere of operations, it is usually assumed that it is reflected from his association with his white brother. . . .

"The question that the American nation must face, and which the negro as a part of the nation should soberly and dispassionately consider, is the mutual, social, civic, and industrial adjustment upon common ground of two races, differing widely in characteristics and diverse in physical peculiarities, but alike suspicious and alike jealous, and alike more or less biased and

FINDING A WAY OUT

An Autobiography of Booker Washington's Successor

Finding a Way Out. An Autobiography. By Robert Russa Moton. Garden City, New York: Doubleday, Page & Co. 1920

IF not so romantic as the autobiography of his predecessor, Dr. Booker T. Washington, the founder and principal of Tuskegee Institute, nevertheless this story of the life of the present head of Tuskegee, which he tells himself, is a document of vital interest and commendable example. A descendant of the son of a chief of an African tribe, who was tricked into captivity by the captain of a slave-trading vessel—the episode he tells effectively as the opening of his autobiography—Dr. Moton was brought up on a Virginian plantation in Amelia County, where he was born on the 26th of August, 1867. The story of his early efforts to obtain an education, nearly averted by his candidacy to the Virginia Legislature, which would have succeeded except that his mother would not consent to advance his age to twenty-one when he was only twenty, with the final decision to go to Hampton Institute, which Dr. Moton entered in 1885, is recorded with a simplicity and interest that reaches a high level.

At Hampton Dr. Moton made his way by sheer force of character and application which attracted the attention of General Armstrong. So much was General Armstrong impressed by the young man that at the close of his studies at the school he was persuaded by its head to remain in charge of the department of discipline and military instruction of the Institute. In this capacity Dr. Moton remained at Hampton until he was called to become the head of Tuskegee Institute, and he was next to the principal the most responsible and influential official of the school. General Armstrong died soon after Dr. Moton took up his official work, and it was with Dr. Frissell, of whom he gives us in this book an affectionate portrait, that he was so long associated in the progress of the school during the last quarter of a century.

The chapters on "From Hampton to Tuskegee" and "At Tuskegee" are among the most important of Dr. Moton's autobiography. He recounts how he was called to Tuskegee by its board of trustees, of his contentment there and reluctance to leave. "I knew," he writes, "the difficulties that I should have to face, not only at the institute itself, but in the country generally. I had lived a sort of independent life at Hampton, and I felt, of course, that I was accomplishing some good, and while I was in no sense lacking in appreciation of the honor and the opportunity offered by the work of the Tuskegee Institute, I had no particular enthusiasm about giving up the life and work at Hampton. I knew, too, of Dr. Frissell's

The Republican

SPRINGFIELD, FRIDAY, MAY 26, 1916
Robert Moton and Tuskegee

The inauguration at Tuskegee institute yesterday of Robert Russa Moton as principal, in succession to the late Booker T. Washington, founder of the institute, may properly be regarded as marking the beginning of a new period in the history of the development of the American Negro. Washington was the pioneer in the establishment of a new policy for Negroes in working out for themselves the problem of finding their place and their welcome as citizens of the United States. The inspiration came from Hampton, where Gen. Armstrong, wise and far-sighted in his friendship for the backward races, had seen the necessity of a development within them of habits of industry, self-reliance and capacity to do the work for which there was need. From Hampton went forth not only Washington and Moton, but many others fully convinced of the soundness of the Hampton idea. Among the Negroes as a race, however, there was a sort of leadership that in effect scorned the beginnings at the bottom of the ladder, or feared that in devotion to such matters something would be lost in at least the appearance of a waiving of rights to equality before the law and to opportunities for the highest individual development. That point of view still in some measure divides Negro leadership, though into less and less hostile camps. The difference between them is really one of emphasis rather than of principle. It is Booker Washington's great achievement that the wisdom of his policy as the head of Tuskegee institute is acknowledged with practical unanimity among his own people. Its proof is in its results already accomplished.

Mr. Moton, a graduate also of Hampton, and with an undergraduate and graduate record paralleling that of Booker Washington in many respects, begins his administration with its policy in broad outline determined in advance by the institute's experience during a generation of growth and of cautious but not timid meeting of the problems which have come to it. It was 35 years ago, as Mr. Moton recalled yesterday, that Booker Washington went to Tuskegee to found the school, sent there by Gen. Armstrong in response to the request of a southern white man, a former slaveholder, who had faith in the Hampton idea. Washington's successor has been chosen with a purpose that his policy shall be continued, and under the leadership of a man who believes thoroughly in that policy and who

CANFIELD OPENS

REAL ESTATE OFFICE

Nov. 7, 1913
The real estate business is daily becoming more of an attractive field for progressive young business men who are seeking an opportunity to enter a remunerative line which has every promise of offering something for the future. Thomas E. Canfield, for several years connected with the real estate firm of F. G. Whitmore & Son, has opened an office for himself at Room 311, Hartford National Bank Building, and will be pleased to receive calls from business friends and acquaintances of the past. At least, that is the impression gained by the real estate man when he dropped into Mr. Canfield's office rather unexpectedly yesterday morning to inspect the new quarters of the new realty firm. Mr. Canfield was busy, which is nothing unusual for a real estate man nowadays, but was still willing to spare a little time to talk, after being assured such action was expected of every realty business man who really knew anything about the business.

Mr. Canfield is a member of the class of 1910, Yale, and well known among the college men of Hartford, especially those hailing from Old Eli. He is a member of the Yale Alumni Association of Hartford, the Hartford Golf Club and the University Club of this city. Mr. Canfield entered the real estate business in Hartford shortly after being graduated from Yale, associating himself with F. G. Whitmore & Son. He counts the experience gained with this firm as a valuable asset, for he not only secured an insight into the realty market but he widened an already large circle of friends and acquaintances and became an integral part of the business men's circle, a necessity if a man is to make good in business these days. Mr. Canfield has handled about every line of the real estate business, according to reports from his former office, and has every promise of speedily becoming one of the successful handlers of real estate in Hartford. He has been more of a student of Hartford's real estate possibilities than the ordinary young man entering the field and, for this reason if for no other, his chances of becoming a leader are more pronounced.

Miss Helen Fenton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Wilbur Fenton, and Thomas Elton Canfield of this city will be married on Friday evening, December 24, at the home of the bride's parents on High street, Thomaston. Mr. Canfield, who was graduated from Yale University in 1910, is a member of the University Club and the Hartford Golf Club and is in the real estate business in this city. 1915

Several Hartford people attended the wedding of Miss Helen Fenton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Wilbur Fenton, of Thomaston, and Thomas Elton Canfield of this city.

JANUARY 6, 1917.

A son, Thomas Elton Canfield, jr., was born yesterday to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Canfield of No. 401 Farmington avenue.

SEPTEMBER 11, 1918.

A daughter, Barbara Fenton Canfield, was born yesterday morning to Mr. and Mrs. Thomas E. Canfield of No. 16 Arnoldale road.

Buck-Bennett.

(Special to The Courant.)

Stafford Springs, Dec. 25.

Miss J. Beatrice Bennett, daughter

Thomas E. Canfield, Now Has Realty Brokerage Office.

and Mrs. S. gfield, Mass., Hartford, son P. Buck, of 1 this after-in the Buck The cere- ice, was per- om's father, ist Church. of the groom, dding march. only the im- participants e's dress was sh point lace l trimmings. toque broad- ca satin. A a Christmas mony at the s beautifully reen, holly, santhemums. ce from out s. William C. Mr. and Mrs. N. Y., Mrs. N. Y., and Boston. The

Mr. and Mrs. Buck, within a month, will be at home in Hartford, where the bridegroom, holds a responsible place with R. G. Dun & Co.

Dec 27 1913
Mrs. Thomas B. Chapman of Prospect avenue went to Brooklyn, N. Y., last Monday to assist at the debut of her niece, Miss Elizabeth Haight, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Haight, who was formally presented to society that evening. Miss Haight entertained nine former boarding school friends at her home over this affair.

Daughter of Inventor Marries New Haven Young Man.

Milford, December 29.—Miss Margaret Lake, daughter of Simon Lake, the noted inventor of the even keel type of submarine, now being used by the Teutonic powers, became the bride last evening of Herbert Diamond, Yale, '14, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. F. Diamond of New Haven. The MIDDLETOWN, Wednesday, Dec. 29.

The marriage of Miss Frances Blanche Hale, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Hale of Pleasant street, to William Ferguson of New York was solemnized yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of the bride. Bishop Suffragan E. Campion Acheson performed the ceremony. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Rosalind Hale of this city, while the best man was David Ferguson, a brother of the bridegroom. The bridegroom is a graduate of Yale University in the class of 1903, and was graduated from the Harvard Law School in 1906. He is now practicing his profession in New York. He is a member of the Yale and Harvard clubs in New York. After a wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Ferguson will live at No. 430 Clinton street, Brooklyn, N. Y.

GIFT FOR AETNA LIFE PRESIDENT. Officers and Agents Pre- sent Old English Wine

Coole: Former

ernor

Miles

Former

Morgan G

Aetna L

reached t his age on of his bi home on the senato

of messag

birthday

many reti

Senator

surprise v

ficers of t

tives of t

assembled

over the last October

the visitors arrived at the senator's house shortly after

8 o'clock in the evening and, after extending their congratulations on his anniversary, presented to him in behalf of the agents an English wine cooler of solid silver and of unique design. The hall marks on the silver showed that it was made in England in 1846. It is ornamented with grape vines and tendrils engraved on the silver. It contained the following inscription:

Presented to President Morgan G. Bulkeley by

Nine Hundred Aetna-Izers
as an appreciation of his courtesy and liberality in providing a transcontinental trip to the Aetna-Izers Convention.

San Francisco, California.
October 6th, 1915.

The presentation speech was made by Robert C. Knox, local agent for the company. Senator Bulkeley assured the visitors that he appreciated their gift. He thanked them for their kindly remembrance and for the sentiments of goodwill and friendship of which the gift was an expression. The visitors enjoyed the senator's hospitality for an hour or so and then left for their homes.
They were: Vice-Presidents Walter
C. Faxon and J. Scofield Rowe; Secretary J. M. Parker, jr., Charles H.
Remington, assistant treasurer;
Dwight G. Stone, assistant secretary of the Aetna Accident Insurance company; Clifford C. Morcom, assistant secretary of the Aetna Life; Oliver C. Beckquit of the law department of the company; David Van Schaack, director of the publicity department; Morgan G. Bulkeley, jr., assistant treasurer, and Agents Arthur G. Hinckley and Robert C.
Knox; Harold K. Remington, manager of the company's Springfield office; and Robert B. Hall, special agent.

The idea of making the presentation had its origin in the return trip of the agents from the convention in San Francisco. The agents

Hon. Morgan G. Bulkeley.

are delighted with the most able manner in which they had been treated by the company during the trip across the continents and their stay in San Francisco. Every agent felt personally grateful and it was decided that this individual sentiment should be expressed by a presentation that would represent it collectively. A fund made up of the contributions of the agents was established on board the train. Later it was decided to make the presentation to Senator Bulkeley on his birthday.

Senator Bulkeley is a native of Haddam, this state. In early life he came to Hartford with his father who was one of the leading citizens of the city. The senator has been at the head of the Aetna Life for thirty-ty-six.

Senator Bulkeley has served his native state as chief executive, a position which he filled for four years, and for six years he was one of the representatives of Connecticut in the United States senate. He has been a member of the court of common council and for six years was mayor of the city. He has also served the people of the state on a number of important commissions, including the commission on the building of the new state library of which he was the president. He is also president of the Connecticut River Bridge and Highway district commission which built the bridge over the Connecticut river between Hartford and East Hartford.

President Bulkeley was born in East Haddam, December 26, 1837. He became president of the Aetna Life in 1879. He has held the highest offices in the gift of the people of this city and state. He was mayor of Hartford from 1882 to 1888, governor of the state from 1888 to 1892 and United States senator from 1905 to 1911. He is the head of the bridge commission and a man of wide interests and activities. Despite his age, he is active in the work of the Aetna companies and is at his desk every day.

Dec 27 1915
One of the most delightful events of the holiday season of entertaining for young people was the dance given Monday evening at the Hartford Golf club by Mr. and Mrs. Samuel R. McBurney for their daughters, Miss Isabella Willard McBurney and Miss Evelyn Way McBurney. The Christmas decorations and banks of palms formed a background for the dancing. The regular Golf club orchestra provided the music and there were about 170 guests.

HERE FROM CAROLINA.

Dec 25 1915
Joseph Hyde Pratt, secretary of the North Carolina state highway commission, with his wife and son, are visiting Mr. Pratt's parents, Captain James C. Pratt and Mrs. Pratt of No. 726 Farmington avenue. Mr.
Pratt has charge of the state prisoners engaged in work on the trunk roads in North Carolina. The men, numbering 100, are quartered in three camps, and the camps are under rigid inspection relative to health and sanitation. Mr. Pratt received 100 Christmas cards from a Hartford store, and sent them to the camps, where they will be used as place cards for the Christmas dinner. Mr.
Pratt says the 2,200 other prisoners in North Carolina are employed in building and maintaining county roads.

Mr. Goodrich scored an equally notable success in building up the Hartford & New York Transportation Co. He took possession of it was practically built it up. The company and tugs which the decided it must Morgan G. Bulkeley, on His 79th Birthday, Says He Never Felt Better; Hopes to Stay Long Time.

resident of Aetna Life and Former Governor and Senator, Spends Day at Office—Admits He Hasn't as Much "Fight" as in Old Days.

HE'S 79 YEARS OLD TO-DAY.

Morgan Gardiner Bulkeley, president of the Aetna Life Insurance Co., former mayor of Hartford, and former governor of Connecticut and United States senator, was born seventy-nine years ago to-day.

His 79th birthday was celebrated at his home in Hartford. His wife, Mrs. Bulkeley, and his children were present. The day was spent in the office and at home.

to Massachusetts in 1835. Morgan Thorpe of Waterbury called G. Bulkeley's father was Eliphalet Thorpe was vocal and instrumental. A. Bulkeley, a graduate of Yale in 1856, was in the reception. 1827, and in his day one of the big financial men of Hartford.

Morgan G. Bulkeley began his business career at the age of 14 as an errand boy in the banking house of H. P. Morgan & Co., New York, and Hartford, Torrington, Waverly, Manchester and represented his branch of the when he served as an incorporator. He was chosen as the old second district and was re-elected in by large majorities. man of the committee throughout his three senate.

NO T

rich made a trip to a-Pacific exposition the er in company with his s members of a party of d was one of the most he tourists throughout the AIN, Tuesday, Dec. 28.

Oldershaw, son of Mrs. ershaw of this city, and Louise Bold, daughter of s. F. W. Bold of Thomas-married at 6:30 o'clock last Trinity Episcopal Church ton. The ceremony was by Rev. Hamilton Phelps, re church, in the presence number of guests. The decorated with Christmas white chrysanthemums. laurel and twining vines n the windows and pillars. he ceremony E. M. Wire-list of the church, gave a Clifford Wadhams of Wa-ing solos. The bride was arriage by her father. She wore a gown of white pussy ta with trimmings of pearl Her veil of tulle was held th lilies of the valley and cap effect. She carried ouquet of bride roses and

The maid of honor was Bold, a sister of the bride, yellow crepe de chine with f tulle and lace, and a pic-gold lace and yellow roses. a bouquet of yellow chrys-s. The best man was Har-n of Naugatuck, and the Stanley B. Bold of Bos-l DeWolf Hotchkiss of Louis Griswold of Thom-rancis Underof of Thom-ception at the home of the ents on Litchfield street e church ceremony. The prettily decorated with wreaths, ropes of laurel ers. A wedding lunch was shaw is the youngest son Alderman Hiram Olders-engaged in the engineer-s with his brother, ex-City rank H. Oldershaw. He is of Yale Sheffield Scientific ss Bold is one of Thomas-popular young women.

FABRICS
WASH
IN THE MACHINE

Wicks and Coalings
SALE PRICES
TO BUY

Dinner
low ciety

Mr an meadow doors l debut cheer gloom
sion.

Eleaze
have l of Lou made liant c
Miss l
of the daught from f had be throug
debut her she chiffon Tenney
with s arm bo
ley an ney's Tenney
quent many Hartfo
That o as well with g by a s blue bi

The r covered addition beautif larney
ley rose the vall bouquet living r cent yea similar ing ban and old with Jan America
of roses
and the trance h and fern nearly a tions.

The d were of room wa beamed antique ceiling l suspended of the sa
about th
of the
had each with a l lilies of in with a these de

by the hostess he d Service Medal at a dinner at the dow of the Hotel Kimball. It was conferred by window sent we Assistant Secretary of War J. M. variety of dair Walnwright, representing the govern man & Steele's ment. Colonel Tenney, who during decorating. the war was in charge of finances and auditing for the government, lived for a number of years in Hartford Conn.

Those who pe
non were Mis
Fred T. Ley, Mrs. Samuel M. Green,
Mrs. O. W. Bullock, Miss Clara Fay Hall and Mrs. William F. Poiree. The young girls assisting were Miss Mil and Miss M. Katherine Lincoln.

Miss Dorothy Peirce, Miss Margaret Reed, Miss Marjorie Rice, Miss De by Steeles, Miss Pauline Harris of Miss Elizabeth Tenney

Daughter of Mr and Mrs Charles H. Tenney. Miss Tenney was introduced at a tea given by Mrs Tenney at their Longmeadow home the 28th of last month, which was followed in the evening by a dance given by Mr and Mrs Tenney at the Hotel Kimball.

department. He went to Washington Monday to fill his new position.

Mr. Tenney is president of the Springfield Gas Light Company, the Suburban Gas & Electric Co., Malden and Melrose Gas Light Co., Malden Electric Co., Haverhill Electric Co., American Tar Company, Chicapee
Gas Light Co., Exeter Railway & Lighting Co., Fitchburg Gas & Electric Co. as well as several other companies in central Massachusetts. His family will remain in Londmeadow.

MARRIED 70 YEARS AGO

Mr and Mrs A. M. Allbe of Bellows

Falls Celebrate Anniversary To-day

BELLOWS FALLS, Vt., Wednesday, Dec-

The fifth debutante reception of the season will take place on Thursday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock when Mrs Samuel Martin Green of Long Hill street will introduce her daughter, Miss friends, Miss e from Miss school in Bos- several of her tante festivi- evening, the given at the Mr and Mrs daughter to te set. Thurs-

21

Presented at its on Long 80-1845
ception of the ory yesterday
amuel Martin
est daughter,
local friends.
y Hill street,
es of flowers.
of the valley,
and 6 o'clock
Mrs Green
200 or more ie clear win-a larger num-t other func-

laughter received ving room, stand-palms arranged them were a gifts to the le variety of colonial bou-
f the valley.
een appeared velvet, with nd iridescent utante wore dored taffeta,
and trimmed
s were worn ied a number ng the after-

d in the din-direction of h bowl was here Mrs Al-
rs Henry J.
c. Bushnell of centerpiece,
e by Aitken, nk Cincinnati
maidenhair som was en-
Those who
rs Ernest D.
Page, Mrs G.
s H. Tenney, Holyoke and of Willman-

Miss Mildred Green

Daughter of Mr and Mrs Samuel M. Green, who was introduced Decem- ber 30 at a tea given by Mrs Green at their Long Hill-street home. Mr and Mrs Green gave a dance for Miss Green at the Woman's Club.

New-year's eve.

the Continental army, whose funeral was the largest ever held in West- minster. She and Mr Allbe have been the parents of five children, three of whom are living. Mrs Fred A. Pierce of Fitchburg, Mass., Mrs Cara A. Allbee, widow of Dr Elmore S. All- bee, for many years one of the lead- ing doctors of this town, and Mrs A. C. Spear of Beverly, Mass. Mr and Mrs Allbe are members of Immanuel church of Bellows Falls. He is a member of Vermont chapter, Sons of the Revolution, and the Masonic blue lodge in Springfield. It is Mrs Allbe's boast that for 68 years of their mar- ried life she kept house for her hus- band without employing help of any kind.

MRS ALBERT M. ALLBE

tic, Ct.

The young women who assisted in serving included the debutantes of this and last season, and were Miss Eliza- beth Tenney, whose coming out recep- tion and dance took place Tuesday, Miss Doris Taylor, who was presented in Worcester earlier in the month, Miss Margaret Beebe, a New-year's debut- ante of last year, Miss Lucy Besse, Miss Edith Dutton, Miss Marjorie Rice, Miss Katherine Lincoln, Miss Olive Bliss, Miss Eleanor Reed, Miss Marion Quimby, Miss Dorothy Fulton, Miss Elizabeth Chapman, Miss Con- stance French of Boston, Miss Pris- cilla Kimball of Bath, Me., and Miss Katherine Metcalf of Holyoke.

IN GIRLS' PLATTSBURG

MISS GREEN POPULAR "ROOKY"

Local Debutante Making Good at Preparedness Camp in Chevy Chase, Washington, D. C. 1916
Special Dispatch to The Republican

WASHINGTON, Thurs., May 4

Miss Mildred Green of Springfield, Mass., is one of the most earnest students and most popular "rookies" in the woman's preparedness camp at Chevy Chase, just over the District line, known as the National service school. Meanwhile her mother, Mrs. Samuel M. Green and her sister, Miss Lydia Green, are sightseeing in Washington and renewing acquaintance with many prominent society people.

Miss Green's course in the camp ends the 15th, but she is seriously considering re-enlisting for another two weeks. She has been selected for the responsibility of guard duty and is very sure her company, B, first battalion, is going to win the drill championship of the camp for which service medals are to be awarded.

The Springfield girl was one of those specially commended for proficiency in the first picturesque camp demonstration. This was the taking down, moving and setting up again of two of the instruction tents. This work was done by a squad of 10 girls and Miss Green was one of three specially commended by the drill sergeant. He said: "I have been drilling companies for more than 30 years—Indians, Malays and all sorts. I have never seen a group that caught on so quickly and obeyed instructions so explicitly. They did not make a single mistake." This is high praise from an officer of the United States marine corps.

Miss Green has also been assigned to assist some of the rawer recruits in learning the signal code. This is one of the courses in which she is particularly interested. She is also taking first aid and knitting, daily wigwagging, wireless telegraphy, surgical dressing,—which is compulsory twice a week,—if a student is absent more than once from this class she loses her diploma. The girls are making 4000 yards of gauze into bandages and dressings which are to be made up into soldiers' kits.

Miss Green is also attending all of the lectures, three a day, six days a week for two weeks. These are given by men and women of national reputation, such as Assistant Secretary of War Roosevelt, Charles J. Bonaparte, Miss Mabel Boardman, John Barrett, director general of the Pan-American union; Mrs. Richard Wainwright, national commander of the Girl scouts.

MISS PEIRCE PRESENTED AT PRETTY DEBUTANTE DANCE

Dec 80
Home of Col and Mrs. on Armory Grounds
Banked With Flowe

The spacious and stat the house on Armory serves as the residence of ing officer at the local quantities of rare and bea made a wonderful settin for the debutante dance and Mrs William F. Pe their daughter, Miss Do The guests at the dance to the members of the and the 100 or more gu ceived by Col and Mrs P daughter in the reception left of the broad hall. Bl and black net, with silve fashioned the gown o while the debutante was a girlish French frock of willow taffeta. The babi ished with straps of taf with tiny pink rosebuds, illusion fell just above th flies were used upon the sl caught at close intervals rosebuds.

Pink was chosen as the dominate in the decora rooms, and it was carrie quantities of azaleas and the various rooms, all arr Posy shop. In the recept cial attention was paid to The hearthstone was bri mass of pink azaleas, palms and smilax, whil mantel smilax, palms an used to make a dark against which the pink vivid patches of color. branching to the mantel cluster of pink roses, whe birds perched. On the three baskets of flowers: debutante, one of ophel freesias, another of ophe narcissus, and the third co roses and steevia.

In each corner of this rc ilarly in the room adjoin cluster of palms and pink the chandeliers in all the lower floor were festoon feathery asparagus fern casings of the long Fre southern smilax was arra rooms, and in the hall again used in quantities. The larg fireplace in the room adjoining the r ception room was also decorated wit pink azaleas and pink roses, while similar decoration other rooms.

The broad veranda Daughter of was inclosed for the William S. Pei ering being complet Mrs Peirce ga branches of hemlock Miss Peirce l among which glea their home on l lights, carrying out the nationa cors of red, white and blue. As th lower floor indoors had been almos completely cleared, the furniture wa arranged in cosy fashion upon th veranda, where large lamps threw sof light. In the dining room, the servi table was arranged, the centerpiece also prepared by the Posy shop, bein an arrangement of pink Killarney roses, steevia and lilies of the valley.

Miss Peirce's gift flowers were un usually beautiful, consisting mostly of arms bouquets, an exquisite one being composed of or... lets, tied with orchid ribbon. A stunning bouquet was of lilies of the valley and with West Point col-

Col William F. Peirce

Commandant at the Arsenal.

Constance Fowler, Miss Ruth Wadsworth, Miss Frieda Powers, Miss Marjorie Robbins and Miss Catherine Chapin.

The world has not had fifty years of Rudyard Kipling, though Kipling has had fifty of the world's years. He was born, so we are told, December 30, 1865, but really only about half of that half-century of the most famous living English author's life has been productive of the writings that have made him what he is—a great power to be reckoned with wherever the English language is read and appreciated.

Rudyard Kipling did not make fame by being as other men are. From the first he was different. His Indian stories that brought him into the public eye were not stories read; they had a word has come speaking of Kipling was was irresistible was his character fully made words. Before Kipling out fear of really made his fellow men but a name.

The breadth of Kipling's art while he wrote and intended sophisticated for the child to survive his; no writer has approached and the splendor that are common. For any child in Kipling people immediately who are ready holiday books Elephant and the Boy and the Boy and all the will buy the in the years.

For all that Kipling has only of a nature of dreams a far beyond possibilities ordinary man of the Night March lightful as realistic and full tales ever written; so great is its art that it is perfectly easy while reading the story to feel that the whole thing is a clever man's report of actual happenings—and when a writer of purely imaginative stuff does that he has set the seal of greatness on his own brow. The tales (before the war) of the fleet, the torpedoboat maneuvers, the gunboat stories, the automobile-infantry tales, are all wonderfully clever and show the writer as an insatiable seeker after the interesting things of life; and the creator of McAndrew is welcome in any gathering where seafaring men are found. Of the friends of all of us—Mulvaney, Learoyd and Ortheris—it is hardly necessary to speak. They have spoken for themselves and their deeds and misdeeds have made them kin of all the world.

Kipling has not only elected to convulse his readers with laughter—as in classics like "My Lord the Elephant" and "Brugglesmith;" to enthrall the lovers of "the true romance" in many and many a tale; to take the lover of virile, vivid verse take note of the fact that there is a poet not to be judged by any standards save those of his own worth; to flay evil and hypocrisy as he has seen them; but to take up the cudgels for a great, united Britain and to do as much as any one man of his time to make British solidarity what it is. Kipling is a true Briton, a true patriot in the best sense of the word. He has not always made friends by what he has said and written of his ideas for British world-supremacy, but he has made men think—which is even better than making friends, sometimes.

In the war Rudyard Kipling has been one of the bitterest writers against the enemies of England. His pen has been dipped in venom, his words have been like whips of scorpions. But this is not to be wondered at, nor to be held against him by those whose utterances may be more moderate, even though their thoughts are hardly less bitter than his. For Kipling is a man of intensity of feeling—intensity that cannot be disguised even by the apparent ease of expression that seems his by nature. He feels deeply; his nature is against all restraint; his paterfamilias did not develop year by year into the masterful man; for one in what he says and does he is simply expressing himself—as has been his custom for more than five-and-twenty years of writing.

nothing inspired by the present crisis. Rudyard Kipling's fame as a writer has come from his pen which has made him secure; likewise his fame as patriot portance; indeed, he has bluntly declared that it is a time for deeds, not for words. But it would be premature to conclude that the war which is changing everything will have no effect on Rudyard Kipling. When the time comes, the right mood and a year of fifty years of life as a great Englishman may yet give a masterpiece for the new age into which his second half-century takes him.

Phenomenon
A GENERAL CLEANUP OF

RUDYARD KIPLING

Various Poems Written During 20 Years Collected in "The Years Between"

1919.

HARCOURT FOR VICEROY OF INDIA

—DAY, JANUARY 1, 1916.

pont Morgan. Although J. Pierpont Morgan was born in Hartford, it was said to-day by the Rev. James Goodwin, a distant cousin, that he

Mrs. L.

Right Hon. Lewis V. Harcourt and Wife

"Right Hon. Lewis Vernon Harcourt has resigned from the cabinet to become viceroy of India," says a cable dispatch which Mr. Harcourt has declined to confirm, probably awaiting announcement by the King. Mrs. Harcourt, who would become "vicereine" of India, is a granddaughter of the late Junius Spencer Morgan, a niece of the late J. Pierpont Morgan, a cousin of the present J. P. Morgan, and a second cousin of Rev. Dr. Francis Goodwin of this city. She was also a second cousin of the late James Junis Goodwin. Before her marriage, Mrs. Harcourt was Miss Mary Ethel Burns, daughter of the late Walter H. Burns of New York, and Mrs. Burns, who was Miss Mary Morgan, daughter of Junius Spencer Morgan and a sister of J. Pierpont Morgan.

trustee and Ivanhoe Chap-
book occasion at e lodge at Odd ening to honor
nd Mrs. Malles wife, as their te, joining the e and holding length of time,
own, a record-
of fraternal or-cut. Mr. Dow, office of trus-also the senior
e Grand Chap-
the oldest livchapter. Both 1872 and have ty-three years.
in a nucleus of

—[Copyright Underwood & Underwood, N. Y.]

AMERICAN WIFE, WITH HARTFORD TIES, OF BRITISH STATES-MAN WHO MAY BECOME VICEROY OF INDIA, ACCORDING TO CURRENT NEWSPAPER ADVICES.

Was, Before Marriage to Distinguished Englishman, Miss Mary Ethel Burns, Granddaughter of Junius Spencer Morgan.

Burns, eldest daughter of the late Walter H. Burns of New York and Mrs. Burns, who was Miss Mary Morgan, daughter of Junius Spencer Morgan and a sister of J. Pier-about forty members he had seen the chapter grow to have an enrolment of about 400. They have recently been re-elected for another term and await installation Thursday evening, January 6. Both have lived in Hartford

CHILDREN OF LEWIS HARCOURT

—[Photograph from Underwood & Underwood, N. Y.]

Doubly interesting are these charming girls and this serious little boy who form the family of the Right Honorable Lewis Vernon Harcourt and Mrs. Harcourt of England, because they are the children of a niece of the late J. Pierpont Morgan, and great-grandchildren of the late Junius Spencer Morgan of this city, which make them distant relatives of the Goodwin family of Hartford. They are Doris Vernon Harcourt, Olivia Harcourt, Barbara Harcourt, William Harcourt, and appear to be typical English children. Their father is one of England's leading men. He was mentioned as possible viceroy of India and is recently reported to have declined appointment as secretary of Ireland in succession to Augustine Birrell. Mrs. Harcourt was Miss Mary Burns of New York before her marriage, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Haynes Burns. Her mother was formerly Miss Mary Lyman Morgan. Mrs. Harcourt is popular in the most exclusive circles of London society and is a favorite at the Court of St. James.

ORD DAILY TIMES, WEDNESDAY, NOVEMBER 20, 1918

Lady Harcourt, Voluntary Aid

—(Copyright, Underwood & Underwood, N. Y.)

Lady Harcourt, who was formerly Miss Mary Ethel Burns, only daughter of Walter H. Burns of New York and Hatfield, England, whose mother was sister of the late J. Pierpont Morgan, is now an ardent worker in the St. John's Ambulance Voluntary Aid. Lady Harcourt has been one of the hardest working members of the American colony in London since the outbreak of the war. She has helped to organize several hospitals and the American Nurses' club in London. She is here seen in the uniform of the St. John's Ambulance Voluntary Aid.

—:- F Clothe
So mi corset this hour for fig
w
s

for fifty-four years, coming from Minneapolis July 22, 1859.

Mr. Dow has been in the court of common council, and has served the city both as building inspector and appointed by Mayor reappointed of the old knighted in August 2, he Masonic

James Madison Dow.

ed in honor ed, by Secadett, who nts of the n tendering ehalf of the ed a large g of which 1830-1915. ie recipient.

mplete sur-
ow who re-itted to the

KING CONFERS TITLE OF BARON ON ASTOR

Earl Curzon and Duke of Devonshire Made Knights of the Garter.

He died 1919
London, Dec. 31.—Among the honors conferred by King George at the New Year are the following:—

Barons: William Waldorf Astor, Lord Charles Beresford, Sir Alexander Henderson, Sir Thomas Shaughnessy, David A. Thomas and Captain Cecil William Norton.

Among those who receive baronetcies are Vice-Admiral Sir Frederick
C. D. Sturdee, Sir William Goschen, ed A.

BARON ASTOR TAKES SEAT IN HOUSE OF LORDS

FORMER AMERICAN IN HIS PLACE THERE FOR FIRST TIME—HOUSE
SITS ONLY TWENTY MINUTES

London, Feb. 16.—Baron Astor of Haver-Castle (William Waldorf Astor) took his seat for the first time today in the House of Lords. The House sat for only twenty minutes. There was no debate.

Baron Astor has appeared in the land six-House of Lords in a three-cornered hat, a crimson robe bordered in ermine and with a diamond ring which dazzled the assisting functionaries and spectators. The report that he appeared to feel uneasy is probably a base insinuation. Unalloyed happiness must have accompanied this realization of a great and fond ambition.

in the United States
She has been an active worker among the wounded.

If the king and the British people and Baron Astor are pleased, that is surely all that matters. The American people won't care, and it is, of course, absurd to suppose that they will feel flattered by this royal honor to an "American."
There is no hyphen in the baron's Briticism, in spite of the $80,000,000 source of his income in New York city real estate.

G. F. Heublein Incorporates Himself, $500,000 Capital; Four Others a Share Each.

"I have incorporated myself. That is about the size of it," explained G.
F. Heublein to-day concerning the filing in the office of the secretary of state of a certificate of organization, with a capital of $500,000, divided into 5,000 shares of $100 each.

The subscribers to the stock in addition to Mr. Heublein and his son are employees of G. F. Heublein &
Bro. Mr. Heublein has 4,996 shares,
Dr. Arthur C. Heublein, his son; George Graves, Jacob Balgley, and James W. Booth, the latter of West Hartford, have one share each. Mr.
Heublein is president, Dr. Arthur C.
Heublein vice-president, and George Graves secretary.

Mr. Heublein said the new com-

(Special to The Courant.)
MANCHESTER, Wednesday, Dec. 30.

Mr. and Mrs. C. B. Ellsworth of rate the fiftieth rriage January received during
ing. Although chester for the y have made

William Waldorf Astor.

born in East Ellsworth is a l it was in the ere married by pastor of the AYS $567,000 TAXES.

ew York From English and Expatriate

May 3.—A check for taxes on his New York s received Tuesday from am Waldorf Astor of England, by the re-xes. The total collec-ll boroughs Monday, the en taxes for this year d, were $11,689,482. The y from the borough of alone was $2,852,649.
check received was one 6 from the Interborough

Among the honors conferred by King George at the new year, announced Friday night, the greatest surprise was caused by the conferring of a peerage on William Waldorf Astor, who gave up his American citizenship in 1899 to become a British subject. His title is considered in London the fulfillment of the ambitions which caused him to relinquish East Hartford.
his American citizenship, also four grandchildren.

Jan 1916

1916

1916

NOISY GREETING IS GIVEN TO 1916 BY HARTFORD FOLKS

Thousands of People Gather at City Hall in Miniature Bedlam As Old Year Passes Into History, Giving New Year One of Warmest Welcomes Ever.

Hush, the old year dies—is dead.

Hooray, the New Year!

With the blare of the trumpets, with the strident notes of factory whistles splitting the air, with the ringing of bells and with the sibilant hiss of popping corks joining in making a bedlam of noise, Hartford last night cast off the old and received the new. As battle-scarred and worn-out 1915 made his few final tottering steps, fell at last under the scythe of Father Time and joined the procession of the centuries, a large part of the city's population, gathered in front of City Hall, sent up a mighty welcoming blast of noise, and another part, gathered in hotels and in clubs, raised their glasses in toast to the little stranger. It was the warmest reception which the new year has received in many a twelve-month.

As the minute hand of City Hall clock slowly marked off the inevitable space of time yet allotted to 1915, the crowd on the streets steadily grew larger and more boisterous, until a ten minutes before the mystic hour it packed the sidewalks of Main street from curb to curb and overflowed into the street. One minute left—the deafening noise diminished ever so slightly in pity for the old year Twelve—and as a man appeared in the balcony underneath the clock of the old State House and swung a lantern slowly to and fro like a pendulum the crowd packed closer and closer until Main street from Pearl to Asylum was but a dense mass of people. The lantern stopped, the crowd went wild, blowing horns by the hundreds, ringing cow bells, sending the harsh notes of automobile horns into the air,—

And from the chimes of a church came sweetly the notes of an anthem, hailing the new year and wishing it well-speed upon its short journey.

It seemed as though all Hartford was on the streets, wearing paper hats, using ticklers with democratic freedom and throwing confetti everywhere. But this was evidently not the case, for at 11 o'clock

The restaurants of all the hotels were crowded to capacity. Every space that could hold a table contained one, every table had as many chairs as possible, and every chair was occupied. The ceremonies of welcoming 1916 differed at all the restaurants, but in each case the welcome was a warm and a joyous one. For one minute before midnight—as is customary—the noise of popping corks ceased and voices were hushed, while the lights were lowered. The minute passed and as 1916 made his appearance the joy was redoubled. Until early morning the restaurant crowds celebrated the coming of today, and then they had breakfast.

The clubs also were crowded. Each had its form of entertainment during the early part of the evening, followed by dancing. The little stranger received the same joyous welcome here as elsewhere.

As early as 7 o'clock the crowds began to appear upon the streets. Many people gathered in front of City Hall to listen to the fife and drum corps, the municipal part of the celebration. When the music had ceased they took up the tunes upon their tin horns and played them again and again. Many people also flocked to the Municipal Building to witness the exercises there. At 8 o'clock the crowds on the streets dwindled somewhat, making their way into the theaters. All of them played to full houses.

As the hours of life of 1915 grew shorter the crowds on the streets grew denser until, with the closing of the theaters, the sidewalks were but black masses of people. It was one of the largest crowds which has greeted a new year in Hartford. A few men began a parade up and down the sidewalk on Main street, to the accompaniment of tunes from tin horns. At every step others joined in, until fifty or more were marching. They took cardboard signs bearing such legends as "Lamb, 32 cents a pound" from a grocery store and hung them from the horns, so that the effect was like that of heralds of by-gone days.

Ticklers good-naturedly brushed many a masculine cheek and many a feminine chin and confetti flew in showers. The drivers of delivery sleds were cajoled into giving them up and rides were taken up and down Main street by groups of laughing people. And amid it all the "cops" watched carefully and tried to appear unconcerned.

Yes, 1916 received a warm welcome—on the streets, in the restaurant, everywhere. Not until after 1 o'clock this morning did the noise subside on the street and it was to the rattle of milk wagons that men in black and white and women in evening gowns made their way homeward.

Miss Joan S. Sanford and Sanford
Brewster Married at the Bride's Home in Litchfield, Ct. 1916

Special Dispatch to The Republican.
WINSTED, Ct., Saturday, January 1

Before a large and fashionable assemblage in St Michael's Episcopal church in Litchfield at 1 o'clock this afternoon, Miss Joan Satterlee Sanford, daughter of Mrs William H. Sanford of Litchfield, became the bride of Sanford Brewster of New York, son of Mrs A. Maclay Pentz. The ceremony was performed by Rev Dr Storey of Seymour, rector of the church. Miss

GOVERNOR'S BROTHER FIFTY YEARS WED

NEW BRITAIN, Monday, Jan. 3.

Today is the fiftieth wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Carlos O. Holcomb of No. 35 Winthrop street. Mr.
Holcomb is a brother of Governor Marcus H. Holcomb of Southington, and His Excellency was here New Year's Day to congratulate him and incidentally presented to the happy couple a $50 gold piece. Mr. and Mrs. Holcomb had all the celebration they planned for New Year's, when the governor and a number of friends called. Mrs. Holcomb said yesterday that her husband is a very busy man and he is going to work today, as usual. She also had her work to do. The couple are enjoying excellent health and they propose to spend their golden wedding day much the same as any other in their half century of happy married life. Mr. Holcomb is foreman of the stockroom at the P. & F. Corbin Division of the American Hardware Corporation.
They were married in Bakersville, January 3, 1866, by Rev. J. B. Cleaveland, father of Judge Livingstone W.
Cleaveland of New Haven, who was one of the guests at the wedding.
There were over eighty present at the wedding, among them still living being Wesley B. Griffin of Granby, who played the wedding march. A dozen of the guests are still living. Governor Holcomb was best man at the wedding. Mr. Holcomb was 22 years old and his bride, who was Miss Sarah Elizabeth Baker, was only 17. She was the daughter of John F. Baker and Martha A. Moore and was born in Bakersville March 4, 1848. Mr. Holcomb was born in New Hartford June 19, 1842. He was the son of Carlos Holcomb, sr. Mr. and Mrs. Holcomb have a daughter, Mrs. Frederick H.
Hill, and a granddaughter, Miss Lillian Hill. Besides the governor, Mr. Holcomb has two other brothers, Judge Walter Holcomb of Torrington and Hiram B. Holcomb of New Hartford, and a sister, Mrs. S. A. Weaver of Southington, who makes her home with the governor. Mrs. Holcomb is a cousin of Mrs. Charles E. Wetmore, the late Mrs. Fred N. Stanley Martin and William J. P. Moore of New York, and a niece of the late Colonel Samuel A. Moore, James Moore and Mrs. Andrew Corbin. Mr. and Mrs.
Holcomb have lived in New Britain for the past twenty years.

M. G. BULKELEY, JR.

MADE LIEUTENANT

OF CAVALRY TROOP

Young Insurance Official

Chosen as Junior Officer was last tenant of dry. Since

James L. me enlisted mission has of conver-members, althe election
be assured.
night, First ing put in ant Bulket Sergeant
e be made done with ne election, een serving of three the service nce of the

The "rook-
g drill shed
; exhibition which they he able in-D MAN. f

ent of Thef

Lieut. Morgan G. Bulkeley, jr.

Cavalryman.

Jan 3 — 1916
John M. Sweeney, jr., of No. 32
West street, to-day, joined the advertising department of THE TIMES.
Mr. Sweeney has had several years experience in this line of work and of friends.

JOHN M. SWEENEY, JR.

brother, Edward F., '07 academic and '10 law, and brother, William S., '13 Sheff.

MEDICAL SOCIETY

ELECTS DR. ROOT.

Succeeds Dr. Simpson as President at 62th Annual Meet

Jan.
A year
Hartford
in the reg
nual meet Monday
T. Simpso eighty ph
ports were
H. Grisw
Bunce, Li
executive,
health, p practition
Steiner rep

A
The Hart
cupies a po
ence in the claims for its own be joys the use to over $1
former men Bacon fund and there a the Russell fund. The sc equipped m disposal of its members or any medical association in the country.
It musters 7,400 volumes and Dr.
Walter R. Steiner, who holds the post of librarian, has a trained as sistant librarian who is always on duty. A telephone message from a busy physician for a certain volume or special data will result in its awaiting him when he reaches the society home. The stereopticon lan tern owned by the society has a cost value of $1,000 and is considered one of the best in the country.

The society has a membership of 192. Then members were added during the year and four lost. The average attendance on the part of members to the regular meetings is very high, being about 60 per cent.

One of the quaint customs to which the society clings is "smoking the pipe of peace," following the transaction of regular business at the meetings. The tobacco box and ancient snuff box are brought out and pipes passed around. When the smoke wreathes upward the physi cians enter upon a scientific sympo sium, in the course of which a member may relieve his mind of the details of some case which may be troubling him, preserving of course complete anonymity, and receiving the advice of his brethren.

Dr. Brigham, founder of the Hartford Retreat, willed the snuff box to Dr. Butler, who was his suc cessor. In turn the box was passed along to Dr. Stearns, who presented it to the society. It is of silver of unique pattern. The tobacco box was formerly the property of the late Dr. Gurdon Russell at whose house meetings of the society were held in the early days, when the pipe smoking became an institution.

DR. JOSEPH E. ROOT.
President.

The New President.

Joseph Edward Root, B. S., M. D., is a direct descendant from families that have been conspicuous in the history of New England. From his mother, who was Seraph Marsh Haynes, the ancestry traces back to John Haynes, one of the original proprietors of Hartford and the first governor of Connecticut. Likewise to John Putnam, ancestor of Gen eral Israel Putnam. In the family line of his father, the Hon. Thomas Pitkin Root, himself representative and senator in the Massachusetts leg islature, the doctor is descended from John Root, one of the first set tlers in Farmington (1640). Joseph Root, one of the descendants, served through most of the Revolutionary war.

The doctor also is descended from the Rev. Dr. Peter Reynolds and the Rev. Dr. Stephen Williams, through his grandmother, Lucy (Rey nolds) Root. The Rev. Dr. Reynolds was the second minister in Enfield.
The Rev. Dr. Williams was the son of the Rev. John Williams, whose family were among the victims of the Indian massacre at Deerfield, Mass., 1704, when several of their children were killed and the father and son were taken to Canada as prisoners. The son Stephen after his release was graduated at Har vard and served in the French and Indian war as chaplain. The doc tor's grandmother, Lucy (Reynolds) Root (born 1789), was a direct de scendant of the Hon. William Pit kin, member of the Colonial assem bly from Hartford, attorney-general and treasurer; and also from Wil liam Pitkin, for twenty-six years in the general assembly and also chief justice of the supreme court of Con necticut.

Dr. Root was born March 4, 1854, in Greenwich, Mass. Attending the public school in Barre, Mass., he was graduated from the high school there. In 1876 he received the de gree of B. S. from the state college at Amherst and in the same year a like degree from Boston university.
He was a prominent man in col lege and was one of the pioneers in organizing Phi Sigma Kappa—to day one of the best known fraterni ties with chapters in most of the leading colleges. For five years the doctor has occupied the eminent po sition of chancellor of the supreme court of the national body. The doc tor taught school winters and after leaving college was connected with Dr. Brown's institute at Barre, where he remained until in 1879 he was appointed to a position at the Wal nut Hill asylum in this city. Con tinuing his studies, he was gradu ated at the College of Physicians and Surgeons of New York in 1883, and that same year was made as sistant physician at the Retreat for the Insane in Hartford. He re mained there until August, 1884, when he withdrew to devote him self to general practice.

In 1884 he assisted in reorganizing the Hartford dispensary and held the office of secretary and treasurer and chief of the medical depart ment. Also he was appointed on commissions by Governors Harrison and Morris. For five years he was a delegate for the Connecticut Med ical society to the meetings of the American Medical association. From 1891 to 1894 he was secretary of the Hartford County Medical association.
He served for ten years as surgeon

HENRY HURLBURT HALE

Miss Doris Marie Woodward.

—(Photograph by the Vayana Studio, No. 903 Main street.

Little Miss Woodward, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clinton S. Woodward of No. 16 Tremont street, is an accomplished dancer and delighted those who saw "The Magic Bushroom" at Parsons's theater in January with her ability. She gave graceful demonstrations of modern dancing as well as aesthetic numbers, and played her part with the charming self-possession and lack of self-consciousness which was a feature of the work of all the children in the production. Miss Woodward afterward danced in the performance of "Passatori" given by the College club of Bristol, being one of the few from other towns who took part.

Young voice imitated that of Mr. Hale of No. 3 Fenway street.

Fla., that she was granted a decree from her Turkish husband and given the right to resume her former name, Alma Miller.

of Former Hastings, R. Spiegel to Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Cleveland, O. place Wednesday years. Mr. and wife of third of this many of this groom and ing a trav. matron of npany, and ate relatives Mrs. Hast transferred wedding trip cashier for February pany, man-eld avenue. ment of the auditor of Mrs. Hast-e company.

was Miss 6
ren. old J. Conn or and Mrs. Herbert W. ity to Miss Anna Carter
FOR COUNTESS.

Stratford Couple Foling of "Hornets' Nest".
ics Judson.

January 5.—Stratford with intense interest Ima Miller Caprillian wanted an absolute de- ce from her husband, an, an alleged Turkish chased her through the ie old village with a d-looking knife. He ked up by the fire de- ch had been called out oance he made. Mrs. o is the widow of Wil- , is a strikingly hand- e and is a society fa- tford.

er Mr. Miller's death her residence in the onial residence in staid on Main street. It was "count" met her and The marriage took urprise. The bride was int Caprillian through uean on the honey- stayed for some time here one sultan rules ascent.

smooth, however, for ouple upon their re- eland. Domestic trou- happy couple caused a this vicinity. The late stirred up a hornets' spread interest through proceedings which fol- superior court here. In uent and forceful man- Judson pictured the t as a villainous rascal described the pursuit cher knife the count e charming widow principal streets of the ng one of the greatest the town since the Brit- through in the 70s. The nt was called out and was finally behind the he could molest the e no more.

r Mrs. Caprillian and Mrs. Seitzinger, are an- visitors to the sunny was at St. Petersburg, Fla., that she was granted a decree from her Turkish husband and given the right to resume her former name, Alma Miller.

Madeline

A. E. BU
Formal D.
New York Samu
liver Ad
GENERAL
RECEI BRILL

R

Thursday, January 6.
Call of Winchester Calvin Coolidge of tenant-governor of
They took the oath
his noon, while the e of Representative
ve council, practi-official, former tenant-governors

The R
of the offered
of the
to Gen man o commi
Mahon
Mahon
review buildin ated t firms selfish
new bu very li the co
had wo tion of no frie disputes Dwight
the oth
tee, Ric
H. Nayl
Arthur
larly co to Dr. I due lar efforts a distri
the fine erected while th deeply in felt und for the in study model s relating and rec

Thanks Committee

The Hart

ANUARY 7, 1916 — EIGHTE

Establ

WEDNESDAY MC
M'CALL'S W

The decision of Massachusetts
the primary States senator END OF

(Springfield
Governor McCa
his name as a publican nomin States senator w terpreted as a
that his entry
that his chances come negligible probably is that how arduous th
he were to fig
highly-protected he shrank from ernor now feel
sonal canvass
with the time
the people are incident as a
to his political hearts of the yond the seas
when Governor candidacy. Presuma
drawal will not give Walsh a case of severe
It would be a curious democratic candidate clude that the hearts are so far beyond the himself should give w

GOV SAMUEL W. M'CALL

The p ing was Russell
Mr. Per of Hart addition stitution ideals o dividual
said:
"To-d interest baseball game. T crs for mond.
going in ricals themsel to see o
some so bring n watchin in the a means let ever life and which he magnific excellent take an the south
ulated on a structur

several will come to the twenty, fifty or one led a high story into a the correct position to to answer such questhat still abound in employed in some of or girls, some of whom It is a good to say, will fairly "lap

the fire department
the city
to learn the city
proved by the fire prevention society for A second lesson should be highly ap-your representative in the Legislature?"
"In what ward do you live? Who is allowed this privilege?
ernment? What offices? Why are women Can women hold office in the city gov-mayor to take care of the city?
Who is the present mayor? Who helps the office? For how long is the mayor elected? government? What are the duties of the What is the highest office in the city run at nine o'clock?
"Why does Brookline have a curfew
Explain the incident.
with a city department. If so, what one

partment up as a because the department during the last fiscal year increased its income more than 50 per cent. The audience applauded but the word went the rounds of the wise that the governor had made a fluke. The weights and measures department's huge increase in income was due to nothing in particular except an act of the 1914 Legislature transferring to that department the licenses from peddlers.
All fire laws and regulations were disregarded in the packing of guests and members of the Legislature into the House chamber for the inauguration. Every seat was filled and sitting on the floor were tucked in every chair. The aisles and

... in front of the speaker's desk were filled with camp chairs and every available inch of standing room at the rear and in the doorways was taken until the governor had finished reading his 58-minute message. In the galleries the women guests filled every bit of space.

Weeks Attracts Attention

The presence at the inaugural of Senator John W. Weeks, huge and polished, attracted considerable attention. He did no talking about the recent flurry in which it was reported Mr. McCall declined to pledge his support to the Weeks candidacy for the republican nomination for president of the United States. With him to the inaugural marched all of the living former governors of Massachusetts except William L. Douglass. In the party of honor were former Govs John Q. L. Brackett, John L. Bates and Eugene Foss, and former Senator Bridge and Edward F. McLaughlin of Boston as the Senate half of the joint committee to inform the governor-elect and lieutenant-governor-elect that the two bodies were in session and ready for the inaugural. The House committee contained Representatives Chapman of Ludlow and Mitchell of Springfield.

Mr. McCall and Mr. Coolidge, with the military staff in full regalia, entered the House chamber soon, followed by a mass of invited guests. With President Wells of the Senate in the chair the ceremonies were carried on.

JUNE 5, 1916

MCCALL GOES TO NEW YORK

Governor Will Receive an Honorary Degree from Columbia University—Will Leave for Chicago Wednesday Afternoon

Coolidge near the governor's th-thoughter his nahogany the chief Act

At Boston on the one day Walsh New York, where on his sec- he will be given an as judge Columbia University. out. This ave New York for 7. McCall afternoon, arriving in s soon as ay morning, one day eived the National Convention ar to Gov ernor arrives there. he Butler Congressman Butler he council m. During the gov-ands with Boston, Lieutenant few well ill be at the State

MANUM CHURCH FORTY YEARS OLD

Present Pastor, Rev. J. H. Roberts Will Remain

HARTFORD, Sunday, Jan. 9. years ago, the building of Manum Congregational Church for construction the work have started early in December a frame was "raised" on Dec. 4, 1876. The first preaching in the new church was held in 1877. Three months later an istical council was held with uron C. Adams of Wethersfield S TO OREGON ch was or- members.

es Boston for a Three was ded- ip—Will Rest at Son's iginal cost lwin Pond d the ded- P. Clancy dual W. McCall left among his trip through the West. Mr. McCall, who R. Waite, was accompanied by Charles S. Baxter, Hartford his campaign manager, departed on the Francis P. 12.30 train for Chicago and Vancouver. B. C. From the latter city Mr. McCall le Talcott will go to Prineville, Oregon, 175 miles ch. It is east of Portland, where his son, Henry, the date has a ranch. Mr. McCall intends to en-he present joy ten days' rest at the ranch. From-berts, was Prineville he will go down the Pacific the Asy-coast to San Francisco, where he will church. The spend one or two days at the exposition, church is On the return trip, Mr. McCall will stop. Roberts, one day at Chicago, at the home of an-ignation to other son, Sumner. The governor-elect, ot accepted pects to be back at his office by Dec. 1, as withdrawn it and has informed the members that he will remain at least another year.

Nov 15 1915

LIEUT-GOV CALVIN COOLIDGE

in the corridors hummed with activity. The gold braid of the militia was much in evidence and the floral tributes to Gov McCall and Lieut-Gov Calvin Coolidge turned the executive council chamber into a conservatory. Members of the district police in dress uniform guarded the executive chamber and all the stairways and every precaution was taken to prevent a hitch in the inaugural ceremonies.

The inaugural ceremonies began when the Senate and House went into session at 11 this morning. After due formality, President Wells of the Senate appointed Senators Gordon of Springfield, James W. Bean of Cam-

Springfield

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., FRIDAY, J.

THE GOVERNOR'S RECOMMENDATIONS

Constitutional Convention, Reforms in Administration, Civil Service, Taxation, Labor Laws and Prison Administration—Encouragement For Agriculture

Recommends constitutional convention, following precedent of 1853; the bill of rights and the judiciary not to be submitted.

Calls attention to too great increase in cost of government; work of administration is too expensive; commissions should be reduced in number; committee on commissions recommended.

Recommends civil-service improvement; extension of merit system; greater powers for civil-service commission; consolidation of efficiency and civil-service commissions.

Recommends reforms in taxation; uniform income tax on intangibles, with compulsory return of incomes.

Recommends legislation to place "reasonable restriction" in the hours of labor in industries continuously operated for 24 hours, according to platform declaration.

Recommends act to correct small loan abuses, to protect the who patronize brokers from the evils of assignment and powers attorney.

College Men Enter

Waiter Whalen of Dean academy, who two years ago set a new inter-scholastic record for the high jump in the "B. A. A." games with an ascension of 6 feet 1½ inches, has signified his intention of entering the Fisk athletic association meet to be held at Fisk park the 16th. Whalen in a recent performance cleared the bar at 5 feet 11½ inches, but lack of competition is said to be one of the reasons for his stopping at this height. He will enter only the high jump in the tiremakers' meet.

There are a number of other school and college athletes who have also entered in their entries to the committee in charge of the meet. Capt. Bjorn of Trinity will compete in the 100-yard dash and the broad jump. The coach of the Trinity team has also stated that he will send six other men to the meet. Middlebury will send Fred Jones, its two-miler, and Louckes and Darby, sprinters. "Billy" Lietteritz, the Holyoke long distance runner, will also be in the meet. The committee reports that negotiations for other stars are nearly completed, and that within a short while the entries of many of the most prominent athletes in this section of the country will have been received.

M'CALL SWORN IN JANUARY 5, 1917 WHITMAN IS GUEST

SCENE A BRILLIANT ONE

GOVERNOR'S LONG MESSAGE

Calls for Old Age Pensions, Compulsory Insurance Against Sickness and Prevention of Increasing Use of Drugs

From Our Special Reporter

John Hancock Residence for Governor

The land fronting upon Beacon street, which was taken in accordance with an act passed at the last session, includes the site upon which stood the historic house of John Hancock. I am informed by one of the architects of the state house that detailed drawings of this house exist, and that it can be substantially reproduced at a moderate expense. I am further advised that its reproduction would not merely be in harmony with the proper development of the state-house grounds, but that the architect regards that plan for the development of the grounds, which includes the house, as the most effective and artistic that has been made. The state now has title to the site, which costs very much more than will the structure itself. Its architecture was characteristic of the old colonial time and its destruction was lamented almost as a piece of vandalism. The reproduction of the house would provide for the governor a simple and dignified residence. It would embody again an old tradition which is now but a memory, and it would add to the attractiveness of the state-house grounds and to the interest and beauty of the city. I recommend that you authorize its substantial reproduction, with such changes and extensions as may be approved in order to adapt it to the present demands of a governor's residence. I suggest the completion of the development of the grounds, which is a necessary adjunct to what has already been done and which I am informed can be accomplished at a moderate expense.

GOVERNOR'S STAFF, and walked the full length of the room to a seat on the rostrum without attracting apparent attention from the throng. Evidently the discoverer of the North pole was unrecognized or else the claims of Dr Cook are given much credence here. Mayor Frank E. Stacey of Springfield was another of the guests who sat well forward.

Samuel W. McCall, Victorious Republican Standard Bearer

Latest Photograph of the New Governor-Elect of Massachusetts, Made on the Steps of the Town Hall in Winchester, Just After He Had Cast His Vote

The marriage of Miss Lucy Anderson Harbison, daughter of Mrs. Hugh Harbison of No. 194 Washington street, and Harold Marwick Meech of Middletown took place at 7 o'clock, Saturday evening, at the home of the bride's mother, the Rev. Dr. Edwin emeritus of tional church

ence of a s
Among them men, includ
Hugh Harbi
a student school, and member of t

Simple de Killarney r used in the music was chestra. Th
white satin
bouquet of l

were no atte ception and ceremony a left afterwa trip. They March 1 at street, Midd graduated fr class of 19
a member o
Yale univer

'04—The mar
daughter of Mrs.
Conn., and Haro
in that city on is a sister of H

uated from Vassar in 1910. Mr. and Mrs.
Meech are to make their home at 283 Washington Street, Middletown, Conn.

Middletown, Feb. 3.

The members of the present common council, together with those who are to be sworn in next week, paid a surprise visit to Mayor Harold M.
Meech and his bride tonight. A handsome piece of furniture was

(Special to The Courant) 1916

to the m MIDDLETOWN, Sunday, Jan. 30. returned 1 week Fri Alderman Harold M. Meech, elect-merly Missed mayor January 17, took the oath of Well, it office yesterday morning at 11 o'clock

ing. For in the mayor's office in the municipal had some may have building. The oath was administered commence by the retiring mayor, Frank A. Coies, clear that in the presence of a few friends.
for Mayor Meech's first official act was to what it w although sign some checks for the city treasura great der's office. He will preside over the that he d first meeting of the city council on injunction Monday evening, February 7. Mayor

At the c were liste Meech is probably the youngest former mmayor the city has ever had, being mayor a but 33 years of age. He is a graduon behalf uate of the local high school and of ing memb cil and t Yale University in the class of 1904.
will serve He is associated with his father and surface w brother in the grain business under flected th the name of the Meech & Stoddard cian in ti Company, being treasurer of the con-in Mayor cern. Mayor Meech has had six look that years of experience in the common ed no poll council to fit him for the post of chief Comerforc executive, having served four years
missioner. as councilman and two years as ald-Mayor erman. He married Miss Lucy Harbi-speech in son of Hartford a few days before the don't be election and returned Friday night.

Abraham
tucky, land to John T. Dwyer, lot No. 118 in Homesstead park.

REPUBLICANS NAME MEECH FOR MAYOR

1915 Middletown, December 22.—The Republicans made Alderman Harold M. Meech the nominee for mayor at the party caucus last night. This will mean that Mr. Meech and Professor Willard C. Fisher, who has already secured the indorsement of the democratic town committee for the nomination on the democratic ticket, will lock horns in what will probably be as spirited a political tilt as Middletown has known in some years. Already there are ominous rumblings which bode no good for the citizen who would have Middletown a sort of saints' rest.

Mr. Meech is young, energetic, good-looking, affable, an immaculate dresser, and popular. He is alert mentally, and well-meaning, and bears the stamp of Yale university, where he was given his bachelor's degree about a decade since. If he were to be elected he would be the only chief executive this city ever had who was a Yale man. He is a member of the South Congregational church, which has already furnished this city with several of its mayors.

Like the present mayor, Frank A.
Coies, Mr. Meech is in the grain and feed business. Associated with him is his older brother, former Alderman G. Ellsworth Meech. In years past this Mr. Meech has been urged to accept the party nomination for mayor, but he seems not to care for politics. When he was in the council he found it bitter medicine to sit under Professor Fisher, who held the mayor's gavel then.
It is safe to say that both of the Meech brothers have respect, but no liking, for the professor. If Professor Fisher beats out the alderman it will not be because all the grain and feed men in the city have not tried to turn him out to grass.

Treasurer of the Town Committee Richard C. Fagan, presided at the meeting of select spirits, and Councilman Henry C. F. Howell was clerk. When the gavel fell for order one might have counted a meagre two score, some of whom were spectators. Prosecuting Attorney William J. Coughlin presented the name of Mr. Meech in words which con-

MIDDLETOWN, Tuesday, Jan. 18.

The republicans won the annual city election yesterday, electing Alderman Harold M. Meech mayor, and the complete republican ticket. About 75 per cent. of the vote was cast, the vote being about 150 below normal. Mayor Meech's majority was 98, his vote being 744, while that of former Alderman James F. Connery, his democratic opponent was 646. The rest of the re-

Alderman Harold M. Meech, the mayor-elect, is a native of this city, and is 33 years of age. He is a son of George T. Meech, and is the secretary and treasurer of the Meech & Stoddard Company, grain dealers. He is a graduate of Yale University, and has served four years as councilman and two years as alderman. One of the interesting things about his election is that the new mayor was not in town, inasmuch as he is away on his wedding trip. Consequently he was not sworn in as mayor last night, and Mayor Frank A. Coies will be obliged to continue a few days longer as mayor.

A daughter, Elizabeth Harbison
Meech, was born Tuesday to Mr.
and Mrs. Harold M. Meech of Middletown April 16 1918

HAROLD M. MEECH.

In honor of Miss Frances O. Rees, a dance was given last evening at the Hartford Golf Club by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Rees of Highland street. The club was decorated with quantities of roses against a background of green, and the music was furnished by Roy Ward's Orchestra of five pieces of New Haven. There were about 150 present.

"THE OPTIMIST"

Aug 4 — 1918
Hartford Fifty-eight Years Ago

BY REV. DR. EDWIN POND PARKER

Rev. Dr. Edwin Pond Parker, pastor emeritus of the South Congregational church, observed his 80th birthday Thursday, Jan 13, 1916

Article about Prices of "Vethu Day" 1849-

The Hartford Courant

JANUARY 11, 1916.

FIFTY-SIX YEARS AGO.

Fifty-six years ago today, in the evening of January 11, 1860, Edwin Pond Parker was formally ordained to the Christian ministry and installed pastor of the Second Church of Christ in Hartford, in which office he completed fifty-two years of continuous service, resigning the active pastorate and accepting the office of pastor emeritus in 1912. It is not known that any member of the ecclesiastical council that ordained and installed him is now living. Not one of the ministers who took part in the ordination services survives. The men who at that time were deacons of the church have all gone hence, and the same is true of all the persons who were then officers of the Sunday school, or members of the choir.

Dr. Hawes was then pastor of the First Church, Dr. Burton of the Fourth Church, Dr. Beadle of the Pearl Street Church, Dr. Webber of the North Church. Dr. Turnbull was pastor of the First Baptist Church. "Father Fisher" was at St. Paul's, Dr. Washburn at St. John's, and Rev. Mr. Abercrombie at Christ Church. Rev. Asher Moore was minister of the Universalist Church. Father Kelly was at St. Peter's, which was then, according to the "Hartford Times," "a flourishing little church."

Some of the more prominent ministers of neighboring churches were Myron Morris of West Hartford, Dr. Spring of East Hartford, Dr. Noah Porter of Farmington, and Drs. Perrin and Goodell of New Britain. Dr. Bushnell was then living, but had resigned his pastorate. Messrs. Curtis and Capron were in charge of the high school. Father Hawley was city missionary, W. J. Hamersley was postmaster here and Henry C. Deming was mayor, and William A. Buckingham was governor of the state. Prominent among the physicians of Hartford were Drs. Beresford, Taft, Wilcox, Hawley, Jackson and Browne; among lawyers, Hungerford, Perkins, Storrs, Chapman, Hubbard and Lucius Robinson; and the population of the city then numbered less than 30,000. The names thus given may serve to indicate the changes that have taken place in our citizenship since Dr. Parker began his ministry here. Only a few who were then members of the Second Church are still living.

Among other facts of interest pertaining to the year 1860 are the following: Charter Oak place had only two or three houses; the numerous insurance buildings, which now adorn several streets, were not then in existence, nor such structures as the Cheney, "The Courant," the Goodwin and Waverly, the Marble Block on Central row, the post office and the Capitol. Asylum Hill was a rural region, then known as Lord's Hill. Main street was uncurbed, and omnibuses made trips from Congress street to the cemetery. The South Green was an untidy common open to all sorts of invasion. Trinity College stood where now stands the State Capitol. The high school was located at the corner of Asylum and Ann streets. The Hartford Hospital was just then opened to receive patients. Touro Hall, on Main street, was the best of that sort. Everybody then attended courses of public lectures during the winter season.

Among the leading journalists of the land were Greeley, Bennett, Bryant, Webb and Raymond. The Boston constellation of literary stars was then most brilliant—Emerson, Longfellow, Hawthorne, Whittier, Lowell, Whipple, Thoreau were in their prime. Prescott and Irving had recently died. Tennyson, Dickens, Thackeray, Macaulay, George Eliot and the Brownings were in the height of their renown. Mrs. Sigourney's "Gleanings" appeared in 1860, and Motley's "Unsettled Netherlands," and Thackeray's "Virginians," and "Tom Brown at Oxford," and Holmes's "Poet at the Breakfast Table," and Gounod's "Faust," and Darwin's "Origin of Species," and Herbert Spencer's "Education." That year was marked by the introduction of petroleum for popular uses. The use of electricity for illumination or power was undreamed of. Slavery was in full force.

Napoleon III was at the zenith of his reign in France. Palmerston, Russell, Gladstone, Cavour, Garibaldi were notable men abroad. Lincoln's name was beginning to attract attention. Abolitionists were growing in numbers and in disfavor. It was said of Dr. Hawes that "his abolitionism

Jan 14, 1916

One of the principal events of the week was the reception given by Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Pease at their home in Prospect avenue, Friday evening, in observance of the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage. There were about 400 guests and selections were given during the receiving hours by Hatch's orchestra. Mr. and Mrs. Pease received alone, but were assisted during the evening by Mrs. Alfred H. Pease, Miss Laura Pease, Miss Ella Danforth, Mrs. J. W. Danforth of East Orange, N. J., Mrs. A. E. Rankin of Wellesley Hills, Mass., the Misses Ada and Mary Taylor, Miss Hendee, Miss Mary Taylor of Wethersfield, Mrs. Ira C. Peck, Miss Mabel W. Wainwright, Mrs. Helen P. Bronk, Miss May Field, Mrs. Joseph B. Hall and Mrs. Robert A. Wadsworth. Mrs. Pease was formerly Miss Danforth daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Danforth, and her marriage to Mr. Pease took place in this city, the Rev. James Bradin, rector of St. John's church, officiating.

GAIL BORDEN MARRIES AGAIN.

JANUARY 11, 1916.

Multi-Millionaire, Recently Divorced, Takes Widow for Bride.

He Is a Nephew of Late Mrs. Munsill, Long a Resident Here.

Hartford people will be interested in the announcement in to-day's New York World to the effect that Gail Borden, multi-millionaire grandson of the founder of the milk company bearing his name, has been married again, "somewhere in the United States." His bride is Mrs. Margaret B. Coutant, widow of Charles A. Coutant, who married her shortly after his arrival in Pittsburgh to manage a store, where she was employed as a buyer.

Gail Borden's father was John Borden, a son of the first Gail.

The interest to Hartford folk lies in the fact that Mr. Borden is a nephew of the late Mrs. Mary J. Munsill, long a resident of Hartford, an daughter of the Gail Borden who made millions from the condensed milk business. Mrs. Munsill, one of the most highly esteemed women Hartford has ever known, lived at the corner of Wethersfield avenue and Wyllys street for many years. The house is now owned and occupied by Dr. James H. Naylor. Next south resided Mrs. Munsill's son, the late Gail Borden Munsill. The widow of Gail Borden Munsill is at present living in Winsted with her children, one of the latter being Gail Borden Munsill, 2d, who inherited the greater part of his grandmother's property, which was very large.

The World story continues that friends of Mr. Borden said Monday they had been given to understand the ceremony was performed a few days before Christmas in San Francisco.

Lewis M. Borden of New York brother of Gail Borden, said he e but had not tion from his he had not

BOARD PRAISES CHARLES A. PEASE

Expressing appreciation for his services and regret at the withdrawal of Charles A. Pease from the board of managers, resolutions were passed as follows:—

Elected a member of the board in 1880, he has served the association continuously since that time with conspicuous ability and rare fidelity. Conservatively progressive in temperament and wise in council, he has been a distinct influence for all that is best in the life of the organization, and the board accepts with regret his unalterable decision to give place to others in the work for which he has rendered distinguished service.

ely known that ce given Mr. rs. Helen Valk es, in Decem ade final. This mother of 21- io figured in he second clas inapping. Borden comes was a Miss ity. Inal years she department as fur buyer. who had been identified been identified went theatricals, went to Pittsburgh to become general manager of the store in which Miss

See Vol 27 p 47

Sawyer was employed. In April of that year they were married. In May, 1910, fourteen months later, Mr. Coutant died. He left an estate of about $25,000. By a will made long prior to his marriage Mr. Coutant left all his property to his daughter by a former marriage. Mrs. Coutant brought suit claiming the property as hers. After many suits she was awarded $5,000.

Mrs. Coutant, early in 1911 went to San Francisco, where she was engaged for a fur buyer.

It was Borden's acquaintance of many San Francisco established.

L. Edm Travelers returned from hospital with typhoid fever, but strength is returning to resume work.

L. Edm Travelers I elected a director of the National Exchange Bank of New York.

L. Edm Lat

Henry M. Sperry.

JANU

Two new directors, L. Edmund Zacher and George R. Reed, were elected to the board of the National Exchange Bank.

National Exchange Bank.

L. Edmund Zacher, elected to the board of directors of the National Exchange Bank, succeeds the late Sylvester C. Dunham, president of the Travelers Insurance Company, and George R. Reed, the other new director succeeds Austin C. Dunham, who desired to retire, as he is unable to attend the meetings of the board, being absent from Hartford a large part of the year. These were the only changes in the board, which, as now constituted, is as follows:—

Daniel R. Howe, Julius Gay, Edward A. Fuller, James H. Brewster, Lewis D. Parker, Francis R. Cooley, Elijah C. Johnson, Hewitt Coburn, Jr., William T. Howe, Robert W. Dwyer, L. George R. Reed.

DIRECTOR SPERRY.

Vice-President and Cashier of National Exchange Bank Elected to Board.

6th 11, 1916

At a meeting of the directors of the National Exchange bank this noon, Henry M. Sperry, vice-president and cashier of that bank, was elected a director to succeed Daniel R. Howe, resigned. Mr. Howe had been a director since 1884 and his resignation, which was due to the Clayton bill re interlocking directorates, was accepted with much regret.

He became connected with the company in 1895 and was elected treasurer in January, 1912.

NATIONAL EXCHANGE ELECTS H. M. SPERRY FIFTY YEARS ON BANK DIRECTORATE

Austin C. Dunham on National Exchange Board Half-Century.

JANUARY 11, 1916.

The annual meeting of the National Exchange Bank this morning will mark the completion of fifty years of service as a director of the bank by Austin C. Dunham, a remarkable record for directorates of Hartford banks. Mr. Dunham was elected a director of the bank fifty years ago, when Edmund G. Howe was its president and John R. Redfield, afterwards president, was its cashier. In the year in which he took office there was almost a complete change in the directorate of the bank, only one director, Augustus Ward, being re-elected, and so it cannot be told whom he succeeded.

Austin C. Dunham.

Mr. Dunham was a director of the Hartford Electric Light Company for thirty years and was long its president. He is an inventor of some note, having taken out patents on several inventions, and is a close friend of Thomas A. Edison. He was born in South Coventry, Tolland county, and a year later the family moved to Hartford, in those days a small place, which Mr. Dunham has described delightfully in his "Reminiscences."

The National Exchange Bank was incorporated in May, 1834, and became a national bank May 2, 1864. Mr. Dunham will not attend the annual meeting this morning, as he is spending the winter at his winter home in Cuba.

C. Dun-

1916.

ctors of the k yesterday e elected:— on. nier—Henry

Stephen G.

ds the late e-president, y years ago e Henry T. s experience s Mechanics' he following y of the Na- has succes- s. He was a 1895, teller in 1903 and he Hartford b, the Hart- e and other s a director ne Society, of the Hart- ation, chair- ittee of the e auditor of this city. been actively civic affairs Ward in the rom 1906 to r board for 15 daughter, New Park; ore, son of 8 Farming- Saturday at Trinity Dr. Ernest o was given was attend- Stevenson as est man was brother of er brother, am H. Stev- he wedding the organist, the church usual Christ- There were tives and remony, for issued. The mpagne-col-with Hudson he carried a Her attend- cloth suit d a large and carried Mrs. Elmore g the cere- edding trip r June 1 at bridegroom is Bank.

Count.

ss Ida May

ried today

f New York,

ss Minotto of

RESIGNATION OF
REV. W. F. ENGLISH
To Accept Recent Election
as Treasurer of State Missionary Society.

East Windsor, January 17.
Great surprise was experienced by members of the First Congregational church, Sunday morning, when the Rev. Dr. William F. English, pastor for twenty-three years, presented his resignation. He might accept of the position of treasurer or tender of the collection.

IN THE QUAINT CAP THAT GREAT-GRANDMOTHER WORE — Jeanette Elmore, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry D. Elmore of Sumner street. (C) Curtiss-Schervée

C. Wells, organist of the church made the presentation, and Dr. English responded in a happy and appreciative way. An orchestra from Thompsonville played and refreshments were served.

Among the guests were the Rev. David E. Jones, pastor of the Ellington Congregational church, Mr. and Mrs. Harry F. Farnham, of South Windsor and Dr. Harold S. Backus and Mrs. Backus, of Broad Brook.

Dr. English has purchased the property at No. 15 Lenox street, and will move to Hartford in the near future.

SUNSHIELD

Ina Humason, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nelson A. Humason of Russell Avenue and Aaron Burr Whitlock of Newington were married last evening at 7 o'clock at the home of the bride. The wedding took place in the parlor before a bank of palms and cut flowers, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Daniel R. Kennedy, jr., pastor of the First Congregational Church. Mrs. Leroy Creelmaun played the Lohengrin wedding march as the bride entered the parlor on the arm of her father who gave her away. The bridal couple were attended by Miss Ruth Humason, sister of the bride, as maid of honor and Miss Emma Mitchell, and Miss uids. The best Williams of New n of the bride.

vick, N. Y., a University, and sonville were dams was ring ring in a Calla
s Adams acted
e wore a gown
white satin with a train. Her ange blossoms, ver bouquet of
of the valley.
e a Nile green chiffon overrimming and with pink chiffons of t overdresser ink roses tied ring bearer sses of pale
The color s pink and Hartford ca-
o her bridesches set with s gifts to the
were tieclaps.
New York, Mr.
l make their ere Mr. Whitfarm.

1916 people attend-last evening by nan, Miss Mabel nor Johnson at Asylum avenue.
orm of a house-
e first large so-ace in their new received alone were formed by ers and baskets them. During as furnished by

ss Marion Ull-
nel and Mrs.
Haven, and S.
Milwaukee,
en place Wed-poned because dler.

daughter of man and Mrs.
and S. Fredlwaukee, Wis., lay evening at e's parents on e presence of ends.

Jan 19

ROBINSON-STEBBINS WEDDING

Springfield
 Ceremony Is Performed by Rev Dr
 Neil McPherson—Couple to Live in Baltimore Jan 19, 1916

A mid-January wedding of interest took place last evening in the home of Mr and Mrs William Francis Stebbins on Euclid avenue, when their only daughter, Pauline Lyon Stebbins, became the bride of Wilfred Slater Robinson, son of Mr and Mrs George E. Robinson of Temple street. The ceremony was performed at 7.30 o'clock by Rev Dr Neil McPherson, pastor of the First Congregational church, in the presence of a company of relatives and intimate friends of the couple. The bride had but a single attendant, Miss Marlon Carman, and the best man was John S. Keir of Logan Hall, Philadelphia, Pa., a classmate and fraternity brother of the bridegroom. Mendelssohn's wedding march was played by the Jacobs orchestra as the bridal party entered.

The bride was in traditional white satin, the gown being made with a court train falling from the shoulders. The bodice was finished with a bolero of Chantilly lace, pearls and iridescent trimmings. The bridal veil of tulle was caught up with lilies of the valley, and the bouquet was of roses with a shower of lilies of the valley. Miss Carmen appeared in a gown of pink, with bodice of chiffon, and trimmings of pearl. She carried an arm bouquet of pink roses. Following the ceremony itself a reception was held, the bride and bridegroom being assisted by Mr and Mrs Stebbins and Mr and Mrs Robinson. Mrs Stebbins wore black silk net over black taffeta, with sleeves and bodice of net, while Mrs Robinson appeared in pink.

A color scheme of pink and green was carried out in the decorations in the Stebbins home by the Posy shop. In the parlor, where the ceremony was performed, a banking of palms was arranged before which the party stood during the ceremony. The casings of the doors and windows were outlined in southern smilax, and carnations gave the touch of pink in the decorations of the room. Similar decorations were carried out in the living room. In the dining room, where refreshments were served during the reception, asparagus fern and carnations were used upon the table, which was lighted with candles, also pink, under pink shades. Seven young women friends of the bride assisted in serving during the reception and in caring for the guests, this number including Miss Alice Carman, Miss Gladys Noble, Miss Emily Robinson, a sister of the bridegroom, Miss Florence Murray, Miss Frances Walker, Miss Evelyn Wright and Miss Gertrude Davis.

Mr and Mrs Robinson received a number of gifts, including furniture, pictures, rugs, silver, china and linen, which will all find a place in the new home in Baltimore, Md., where they are to live, since Mr Robinson is engaged in the insurance business in that city. The gift of the bride to her maid of honor was a gold bracelet, and to each of the young women assisting she gave a silver crescent pin with the initials of the recipient. The gift of Mr Robinson to his bride was a pearl ring, and to his best man he gave gold cuff links. After the cutting of the wedding cake by the bride,

Mr and Mrs Robinson slipped away on their wedding trip, the latter wearing a suit of brown broadcloth trimmed with seal. Her hat was of black beaver. They are to spend a short time in New York before going to Baltimore.

Last evening's bride was born in this city and received her education in the schools here. Mr Robinson, after graduating from the central high school, entered Wesleyan university, where he graduated in 1914. He is a member of Chi Psi fraternity. Several of his classmates were among the wedding guests from out of town, who also included Miss Emily Robinson of Bristol, Ct., Mrs Edwin R. Sumner of Moorestown, N. J., another sister of Mr Robinson. Dr and Mrs Herbert L. Wheeler and their children, Clifford S. and Catherine, of New York, Dr Arthur E. Slater of New Haven, Ct., and Mrs Mabel Burpee of Medford.

Mr Robinson and his bride are to make their home in Baltimore, where he is engaged in the insurance business. Mr Robinson's sister, Mrs Edwin Roberts Sumner of Moorestown, N. J., herself a bride of last August.

P. T., NEW GIRAFFE,

ARRIVES IN TOWN

Jan 20 1916
 Latest Arrival Is Born to Mary. At Barnum & Bailey Headquarters.

(Bridgeport Telegram.)

Phineas T. Barnum, son of Mary, the giraffe at the Barnum & Bailey winter quarters, was born at 10:30 yesterday morning.

Mary is the only giraffe that ever gave birth to offspring in captivity, and Phineas T. is worth $10,000. P. T. is the fourth baby offspring of Mary. Superintendent Newman, at the winter quarters, said last night that both mother and young one were doing nicely.

P. T. will be kept in a dark room for two or three days until the mother gets stronger because the slightest strain now would cause Mary to go into a panic and kick her offspring to death. Already the new arrival is five feet tall and a speckled beauty. He weighs 100 pounds, his appetite is almost as big as he is, and his nurse "Andy" who knows more about giraffes than any other man, is P. T.'s nurse. Dr. W. J. Southey assisted the stork.

Baby giraffes have been born every two years at the winter quarters recently. The first came six years ago, the next four years ago and the one before this two years ago. The eldest of the four children of Mary is Jerry, who is now furnishing amusement in some distant part of England despite the war. The other two are here with the circus. The four year old is Handsome Harry who makes the hearts of the circus men swell with pride. Harry is one of the most handsome long necked beauties known, but Jack Patterson, head keeper at the winter quarters, says P. T. will take odds from no giraffe, either here or in the jungles. Patterson knows. The two year old is the blushing Anna Louise, who was named after the daughter of Charles R. Hutchinson, treasurer of the Barnum & Bailey circus. Harry, brother of Anna Louise, was named after a son of Mr. Hutchinson.

Neither brother, sister nor father would say anything when interviewed by a reporter from the "Telegram" yesterday and the mother was not at home to visitors.

It is hoped by officials of the circus that Phineas T. will join the Big Tent when spring time comes.

COLT'S BAND LEADER.

Theodore P. Ford Has Been Playing a Cornet for Thirty Years Or More.

Jan 19
Theodore P. Ford, elected leader of Colt's Armory band, has been a musician since early boyhood. He was born in Norfolk, Mass., August 29, 1870, and when a boy moved to Waltham, Mass. Twelve years later the family removed to Danvers, Mass. He graduated from the Holton high school in 1888, at that time receiving a Peabody medal for excellence in cornet playing.

From Danvers he went to Lynn, and then to Portland, Me. He came to Hartford in 1907 and is connected with the C. H. Case & company, jewelers. In 1896 he organized the Eighth regiment band which was enlisted in the Massachusetts Volunteer Militia. The band became one of the best known in Massachusetts. On May 3, 1903, he assembled a band of 125 musicians and gave a charity concert in Mechanics hall, Salem, Mass., and at that time was given a gold medal. He played in the Salem Cadet band, Naval Brigade band of Boston, Lynn Cadet and Lynn Brass band and American Cadet and Chandler's bands of Portland. He was leader of the Salem Brass band and one season had his own band, Ford's Concert band, in the state bandstand at Revere Beach. During one season he furnished band and orchestra for Barlow's minstrels.

Mr. Ford is a cornetist and has played with Colt's band since coming to Hartford, serving as assistant leader under Chester Smith, Scott Snow and S. D. Jones. He served the Musicians' association of this city as secretary for four years and later as vice president.

Hartford Boy Has Highest Rating for Appointment to U. S. Naval Academy.

Jan 20
Senator George P. McLean has announced from Washington that W. Irving Leahy of No. 420 Park street, this city, has the highest rating in the preliminary examinations for appointment as a naval cadet to the United States Naval academy at Annapolis. The exams were held January 12.

IRVING LEAHY NOW NAVAL CADET
June 12 1916
Hartford Boy Passes All Examinations and Enters Academy.

William Irving Leahy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas J. Leahy, of No. 420 Park street, has passed all final examinations, and entered the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis yesterday morning as a cadet. Leahy received his appointment from Senator George P. McLean after he had passed a competitive examination held in this city, January 12. There were twenty-eight competitors. Leahy was graduated from the Hartford Public School in 1915, being president of the class and class orator. He is now in the drafting room of the Pratt & Whitney company.

MARRIED 60 YEARS.

Venerable Couple in Wallingford Are Observing Notable Anniversary at Their Homes To-day.

Special to The Times

THEODORE P. FORD.

turned to Meriden where he remained for eight years, coming to Wallingford in April, 1872. He was employed at the Simpson, Hall & Miller factory, now known as Factory L, I. S. C., for twenty-five years, retiring in 1906. Since that time he has confined himself to work in his vegetable and flower garden.

He is a member of Merriam post,

W. IRVING LEAHY.

member. He is a brother of the late Loren Lincoln of this city and Marvin Lincoln of Washington, D. C., the former died at the age of 86, the latter at 97. His two sisters, the late Mrs. George C. Martin and Mrs. Wiggins, died at the age of 86.

January 20.
nuel George ademy street
e sixtieth an-ing day. No
d, but the pt open for many of extend conwishes.
n were mar-
by the late old St. Ancopol church
Broad street
if any of the lage are still nd groom of nd physically

in Wethersle began his ldering here
le, the late
o years later
r East Merl-his appren-

, 1862, in the t Volunteers,
he Civil war.
rvice he re-

kett Simpson
alpha, Penn., ughter of Mr.
Beckett. The den when she children, Mrs.

North Haven;
of Fair Hactory L here,
son, of West-are also three HDAY.

916 Eagleville, is 91 years of rday Mr. Lina hospital in an operation
e of his eyes.
dly from this flicted with a ne poisoning-so practically ie train in this le in a motor agleville, some Sunday he rthday greet-gest of a fam-
and two sisters
ast remaining

A large received and also 61. W. R. is an offic

Mr. Noel
10, 1843,
years his where he and secu
he learne
and beca
"drop a
years he Collins co

During 1866, David A. Miss Lucien were Charles I. gregationa and later where he four years David A. P his success company, burned do

When it moved the and changed Knapp & pany, Mr. among the here they twenty-one this place, years with Hardware he retired

Mr. Nor
John's lodg of Bridger

Evening S place in J master of 1878-79.
the board
Farmington

Mr. Nor
of ten ch living, Mr ford, who wedding o

Mrs. No
Mrs. Julia aged 88, a Bristol, ag
Rev. B. E
One broth
Canton, di

Mr. and wishes of step over their marr
ent yester
W. R. C., also guest ~~port Har~~

WINSTED GOLDEN WEDDING.

Mr. and Mrs. Remus A. Norton Receive Congratulations of Relatives and Friends.

Winsted, January 25.—Fifty years ago Monday Remus Alonzo Norton and Emily M. Merwin were united in marriage by the Rev. Mr Platt of the Methodist church, who officiated in place of the Rev. Hiram Eddy, pastor of the Second Congregational church, who was absent from town. Both Mr. and Mrs. Remus Norton were members of the Congregational church.

Yesterday at their home, No. 5 Spring terrace, Mr. and Mrs. Norton observed their golden wedding anniversary and received the felicitations of their many friends. With them during the day were their two children, Mrs. Melvin Snow of Norfolk and Mrs. Ralph N. Birdsall of New York city, and their grandchildren, Miss Ecla Snow of Norfolk and Norton Philo and George Roland Birdsall of New York city. Mr. Snow and the Rev. Birdsall also were in the happy family group.

The shower of good wishes began with the reception at 2 o'clock, and continued until 9 o'clock in the evening. Among the cities and towns represented in the gathering were New York, Brooklyn, Great Barrington, Mass., Hartford, New Haven, Cornwall, Norfolk, Simsbury and Winsted.

Mr. and Mrs. Norton were born in Goshen; he was the son of Charles Lyman and Maria Norton, while Mrs. Norton was a daughter of Samuel and Sarah Merwin. Mr. and Mrs. Norton lived in Cornwall, before coming to Winsted to make their home, twenty-eight years ago. Both are enjoying good health. Mr. Norton is a retired farmer.

40 YEARS WITH COMM. MUTUAL

Col. Charles E. Thompson
Entered Company's Service In 1876 24

Colonel Charles E. Thompson will have been forty years in the service of the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance Company today. He entered the service of the company January 24, 1876, in the bond and mortgage department, and now holds a responsible place in the financial department.

The last forty years have necessarily seen many changes in the company. When Colonel Thompson became connected with it the president was James Goodwin and the secretary Colonel Jacob L. Greene, while the present president, John M. Taylor, was assistant secretary. Colonel Greene succeeded Colonel Greene as secretary. When Mr. Taylor was made vice-president, the late William G. Abbott became secretary.

Changes in the building have also taken place. Forty years ago the old Pearl street church stood on the site of the present addition to the company's building on Pearl street. With the growth of the company's business there came also an increase in the office force. In 1876 there were no girls employed in the office, all the stenographers being men.

Colonel Thompson was bookkeeper for nine years in the Hartford office of Cheney Brothers before he entered the employ of the Connecticut Mutual, and, after that, he spent two years in Providence, R. I. He was born February 26, 1847, in Rockville and lived there until 1863, when he came to Hartford.

The title "Colonel" comes to him from the Connecticut National Guard, in which he served seventeen years. He enlisted in the Hartford City Guard August 16, 1865, and served six years. On February 10, 1879, he formed Company K and was appointed first lieutenant of the company. Samuel O. Prentice, now chief justice of the supreme court of errors, was second lieutenant. In 1883 Mr. Thompson was called to the captaincy of his old company, the Hartford City Guard. He was promoted to the place of lieutenant colonel of the First Regiment January 22, 1885, and served until January 22, 1899. He has held offices in the Veteran City Guard and Company K, Veteran Corps.

It was while Mr. Thompson was lieutenant-colonel of the regiment and acting colonel for six months, during the absence of Colonel William R. Cone, that the present system of calling out the militia by fire alarm was put into effect by him. Soon after Colonel Cone's return, the wisdom of this step was dramatically illustrated in the Park Central Hotel disaster. Colonel Thompson was sitting at his desk the morning after the explosion when the special alarm rang. He at once went to the armory and, within twenty minutes, eighty members of the National Guard, in uniform and equipped, were on the scene of the disaster. Soon after 250 members appeared and remained on duty for two days and one night.

Colonel Thompson has been prominent in church circles in the city. He remembers the Moody and Sankey meetings in Hartford in 1878. They were held in the "rink"—now the Park Casino—and were very largely attended. The music was furnished by a large men's chorus.

TRAVELERS INS. CO. 41

DOMESTIC FUND

Travelers Insurance Company

One Half a Cent a

W. F. CHAMBERLIN APPOINTED.

Superintendent of Group Division of the Travelers.

William F. Chamberlain, up to six months ago an agent of the Travelers Insurance company in Dayton, Ohio, has been chosen superintendent of the group insurance division of the Travelers company, and is now stationed at the local office. He was, previous to his being employed by the Travelers, a manufacturing engineer, and is an alumnus of the University of Michigan, and the Denison university, and a member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers. He has been national president of the Phi Gamma Delta fraternity.

Mr. Chamberlain was one of the companies star life insurance agents. One of the first companies that Mr. Chamberlain insured in his new position was the Marconi Wireless company, which has stations all over the world and on a number of vessels. He also insured the 5,000 employees of the Fisk Rubber company under this group insurance.

401 Trumbull street. Charter 5774.

FARMINGTON AVE., No. 401—Attractively heated apartments containing hot water, vacuum cleaner, janitor service.

WILLIAM FOSDICK CHAMBERLIN.
Superintendent of Group Insurance Division.

CHARLES W. GAMERDINGER.
Assistant Actuary, Life Department.

...and the Aetna commenced writing accident insurance.

A delightful banquet was served and about one hundred of the Aetna officers, managers and general agents took occasion to honor their vice-president. Among those present from the home office were: J. Scofield Rowe, vice-president of the Aetna; J. M. Parker, secretary; Morgan B. Brainard, treasurer; Frank Bushnell, agency director; E. C. Bowen, assistant secretary; E. C. Higgins, secretary; W. L. Mooney, agency supervisor; C. H. Remington, R. Beckwith, attorneys at; Daniel N. David Van; department; Bevel counsel for; Tyler, chief ad-

WALTER C. FAXON IS MASTER MASON

Walter C. Faxon, vice-president of the Aetna Life Insurance Company, accident and liability department, and a member of Lafayette Lodge, & A. M., received the master mason's degree at the lodge meeting, last evening. The temple was filled with insurance men from this city and out of town. The work was carried by a degree team composed of masters, all of whom were insurance men in this city. John M. Parker, Jr., was worshipful master, among the many insurance men from outside of Hartford were Dr. Bishop and Arthur W. Burke, of Boston and both general agents of the Aetna Life Insurance company.

WALTER C. FAXON.

Roses For W. C. Faxon.

A bouquet of sixty American Beauty roses greeted Walter C. Faxon, vice-president of the Aetna Life Insurance Company, upon his arrival at the office yesterday morning. Mr. Faxon observed his sixtieth birthday yesterday and the roses were by his employees as a token of the day.

OCTOBER 14, 1916.

general agent at New York, C. C. Dunning, general agent at Buffalo, N. Y., Rufus Parks, general agent at Warren

AY, JULY 19, 1916.

BISHOP BREWSTER'S BROTHER ELECTED Rt. Rev. Benjamin Brewster is Named To Be Bishop of Maine.

Portland, Me., Jan. 26.—Rt. Rev. Benjamin Brewster of Glenwood Spring, Col., was elected bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Maine today to succeed the late Rev. Robert Codman. Dr. Brewster is missionary bishop of western Colorado.

The selection was made at the conclusion of an all-day executive session in which several clergymen were considered. When the executive session was dissolved, Bishop Brewster and Rev. John H. Hopkins, rector of the Church of the Redeemer at Chicago, were nominated. The choice was

MR AND MRS DANIEL B. STEDMAN

Owner Proprietor of Vermont Phoenix and His Wife Who Celebrated 50th Wedding Anniversary Yesterday

"Daddy" George
George Junior
N. Y.

JANUARY 30, 1916.

OBSERVE GOLDEN WEDDING

Jan 27 1916
MR. AND MRS D. B. STEDMAN

Springfield, Mass.
Quiet Notice Taken of Anniversary
at Home on Belmont Avenue

Mr and Mrs Daniel Bissell Stedman celebrated yesterday their 50th anniversary at their home, 104 Belmont avenue. Because of the fact that Mrs Stedman's health is delicate and Mr Stedman has an attack of erved in any tulatory letfamily and ival of their from Colo-

more than

is born in 1840. He ness under Northampton
e, being the
be boarded tedman was to 1861 and ily for over

paper which rior to their
and when the Gazette experience
he declares
the press is Philadel-Stedman at-
to Mr Gere city April of his 80th nin Brewster.

ER ACCEPTS.

Protestant Epis-
of Maine.

February 22.—The vster, missionary olorado, in a let-ry 27, 1866, ay, accepted his
of the Protestant Maine. was elected at a this city January

Moors was Mr Stedtor and proof the Vermont Phoenix, a paper published at Brattleboro state, and held this position 888, when the family removed ville, Ct., coming to this city 1, 1892. Mr and Mrs Stedman wo sons, Fred C. Stedman of y and Dr Harry W. Stedman ker, Col.

NKS, 87, TO WED NURSE.

report, January 26.—Moses Banks, chairman of the Fair-school committee, and who rep-ed Fairfield in the legislature umber of terms prior to Clitus
g, is to become a bridegroom in th year of his life. It was 1, as he has taken out a li-in New York city to wed Mary a Buxton, aged 51, of New who has been his nurse for ime.

Ida Butler, who has been at the
of the training school for nurses Hartford Hospital, will resign
y, and will make her home with family of her brother, Louis F.
Butler, president of the Travelers Insurance Company.

FIRE DESTROYS PENROSE

HOME IN WALLA WALLA

Jan 20 - 1916
L. Shipman's Sister Flees From Flames In Early Morning.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen committees Mrs. William H. Boardman of New York and Litchfield, this state, has Remember to announced the engagement of her towards the daughter, Miss Clara Temple Boardman, to Laurence Freeman Peck, son of William F. Peck of New York.

At the state Miss Boardman is a sister of Mrs. ven last Sept Richard Schiefflin Chisolm and of each member Francis, Dixon and Bradford Boardman. Mr. Peck was graduated from month as a student at Harvard university and the Beaux for general Arts school of Paris.

Members have all the members of the Beaux Arts school of Paris. MARCH 18, 1916.
to start and the annual meeting the time when all Miss Clara Temple Boardman of member to bri New York, daughter of Mrs. William Thanks are H. Boardman and the late Dr. Boardman of clothing le man, and Lawrence Freeman Peck, past week. S. to the lady les on of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace F. Peck, most worthy of New York, will be married on was made exc of New York, could not hav cote, the cou shine had it mother at for her. We plate and soft Only the m Has anyone e will be prese to pass on?

Four-Score Birthdays

It is with deep regret we the name of Miss Lucy Howard avenue, Windsor, was his month by mistake. birthday occurred January raps some members would send her a card before t is gone. Miss Howard is o active four-score members.

January 26—Mrs. S. E. F. 30 Congdon street, Providence 4 years.

January 27—Mrs. August Sound Beach, Conn., 92 years.

January 30—Dr. George Middlebury, Conn., 80 years.

January 31—Mrs. Susa No. 157 Ford street, Providence 38 years.

February 1—Mrs. Cornel South Boston, Va., R. F. D. years.

February 2—Miss Julia Bradford, Vt., 91 years; 1 fowell, Montour Falls, years.

Look on the Bright Llewella Pierce Church shiner.)

Oh, why should the moon heaven hath lent to often in useless repent?

Though time hath its change ever betide, the sun shines above us; let bright side.

Our sky may be dark and may be drear, let Hope, like an angel of near,

And softly she whispers, we glide, the sun is still shining; let bright side.

Though the cold wind around us may wail, though friends may be false fortune assail;

Let why should we murmur ever betide, there is something to cheer on the bright side.

How sweet is the hope which to mortals is given, there's a home and a rest for the weary in heaven. Then let us not murmur, whatever betide;

Mrs. Lansdale Boardman of New York has announced the engagement of her younger daughter, Miss Clara Boardman, to Bradford Boardman, son of Mrs. William H. Boardman of Ridgefield, Conn. Mr. Boardman is a graduate of Yale University, class of 1905, and is a member of the Yale Club of New York and New York Athletic Clubs. Although of the same name, he is in no way related to his

LOCAL COPLEY

A FINE EXAMPLE

American Artist's Portrait of Mrs. Foot in Athenaeum Much Lauded.

Singing out the John Singleton Con-and Profits, $900,000 Capital, $1,000,000

NATIONAL EXCHANGE BANK
76 STATE STREET

Equally welcome, whether your banking or Safe Deposit Depart-

Dealing with a Strong and Trust Company

F. F. Fisher, Asst. Cashier.

John Singleton

Chandler H. Gould, Long and Widely Known Boston and

Albany Conductor, Pensioned at Age of 70

RETIRE AFTER 52 YEARS

If the rumble of the wheels of train 22 sound more like a groan when it leaves union station at 6.50 o'clock this morning it will be because they move at the signal waved by an unfamiliar figure in the conductor's blue uniform. For years the train has obeyed the command of only Chandler H. Gould of 45 Boylston street. Yesterday afternoon when the famous "Yankee" arrived from Boston at 2.29, Conductor Gould, after 52 years of faithful service with the Boston and Albany, was retired on a pension.

Starting as spare brakeman, after his return from the civil war, Mr Gould has achieved a record which yesterday brought the compliment from the officials that his long record was without a blemish. He has shunted cars and manipulated baggage, seen office work and worn the blue and brass of the conductor's uniform. Stability and reliability have marked the performance of all his duties.

Travelers will miss his familiar figure. He was widely and well known. Mr Gould of the earlier school of the bird dogs worthily cherishes sportsman. His the age of 70 at state legislation. expected many of the same as Mr sion.

Chandler H. North Bernardston When 16 years the 52d Massachusetts served for one year. On his return entered the employment Albany railroad was spare man served in the office E. Q. Sackett then given a run and soon was running from Springfield for many years.

When Stephen Gould was given held until today for Boston at 6.30 on the "Yankee" afternoon. It was that he began

CONDUCTOR TURNER QUITS AFTER 56 YEARS

(Special to The Courant.)

Winsted, Feb. 4.

Frederick W. Turner of Pittsfield, Mass., a conductor on the Berkshire Division of the "New Haven" railroad, has been pensioned after fifty-six years in the service of the company. It is estimated that he has traveled 3,000,000 miles during his term of service. When he completed his half century in the employ of the company, brokers and others with summer homes in the Berkshires and passengers on his train, presented to him a handsome silver service and $50 in gold. He was born in Dover Plains, N. Y., October 2, 1844.

The marriage of Miss Rosetta Carson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Moore Carson of New York, and Laurence Von Post Schwab, also of that city, took place Wednesday at Calvary church, New York, followed by a reception at the home of the bride, which was very small because of the recent death of Professor John C. Schwab, librarian of Yale university and uncle of the bridegroom, who was graduated from Yale in 1913. Miss Betty Carson was her sister's maid of honor and the bridesmaids were Miss Caroline Wyeth, Miss Coline Ingersoll, Miss Nina Paris, Miss Charlotte Strong, Miss Penelope Sears, Miss Isabel Cummings, Miss Constance Chappell of New York, and Miss Isabella Tyson of Knoxville. Irving Paris was Mr. Schwab's best man, and the ushers were Edward Freeman, Hermann Schwab, W. M. Carson, Jr., Shepard Krech, Reginald L. Auchincloss, William O. Waters, H. E. Sawyer and H. A. Colgate. After their wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Schwab will live at No. 161 East Seventy-ninth street.

SALE OF WADSWORTH

TAVERN ANNOUNCED

Smith & Bassette Buy Colonial House
On Albany Avenue.

The heirs of Daniel Wadsworth has arranged through the real estate firm married on February 4, 1891, by the late Rev. Thomas Broderick, then pastor of that church.

OLD WADSWORTH TAVERN ON ALBANY AVENUE.

There was an informal reception at the Healey home in Barnard street yesterday afternoon and evening. Many friends called and extended congratulations. A large number of silver gifts, which had been sent in recognition of the event were displayed in the living room backed by many gifts of flowers, tokens from other friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Healey have lived in Hartford practically all their lives. Mrs. Healey was Miss Mary Hillard before her marriage. They were members of St. Peter's Parish for many years but became members of St. Augustine's Parish four years ago. There are two children, Mary J. Healey and George H. Healey.

Yankee
1915

The historic old First church on Court square was the scene of another large wedding last evening, when the gowns of the matron of honor and the four bridesmaids were in shades of shell pink, that of Mrs Chase being of darker tone than were the gowns of the other attendants. Soft brocade composed the overdress of the gown of the matron of honor, which was cut in short length and trimmed with silver lace. She wore a picture hat of pink maline with a single pink rose as trimming, and her bouquet was of pink sweet peas and white roses, tied with pink ribbon with silver ends. The four bridesmaids were gowned alike in light shell-pink satin. Made in the style of 1830, the satin was made over flounces of silver lace, while bows of Nattier blue velvet gave a charming finish to the gowns. Each maid wore a picture hat of Nattier blue maline, trimmed as was the matron of honor's with a single pink rose, but with streamers of blue falling across the shoulders. The bridesmaids carried pink baskets filled with sweet peas, the handles of the baskets being tied with ribbons of blue with silver ends.

At the end of the wedding ceremony just before the benediction, "O Perfect Love" was sung by the choir, while immediately following the benediction was sung Stainer's "Seven Fold Amen." For the recessional Mr Kellogg played the march from "Die Meistersinger." The decorations of the church were kept in a color scheme of green and white and were arranged by Aitken, who also arranged the bouquets carried by the bride and her attendants. Southern amilax was used in the organ arch, while palms flanked the altar, with a large standard white basket filled with white carnations gave the touch of white.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the Women's clubhouse, where the bride and bridegroom were assisted in receiving by Mr and Mrs Whitney. Mrs Whitney appeared in a gown of orchid chiffon velvet with trimmings of gold lace and orchid Georgette crepe. The decorations of the clubhouse were entirely of palms, which formed a background for the receiving party, while they were also used upon the stage. The Philharmonic orchestra played during the reception and also for the dancing which followed, and Rebboli catered.

Mr and Mrs Coleman slipped away during the evening for a southern trip of a few weeks, the bride wearing a traveling suit of blue gabardine, with which she wore a hat of rough blue straw trimmed with beaded fruit. Upon their return they will make their home with the parents of the bride at 22 Churchill street, where they will receive their friends after May 1. Last evening's bride is a graduate of the MacDuffie school in the class of 1911, and for a number of years has been a pupil of Theodore Van York, the well-known New York teacher. For the past three years she has been a member of the double quartet at the First church, and before that was soloist at the State-street Baptist church. Mr Coleman is the son of Mr and Mrs J. P. Coleman of Kansas City, Mo., and has been in this city for the past four years, traveling for the Victor sporting goods company.

Mr and Mrs Wilbur F. Young Entertain in Honor of Miss Saidee S. Young, Whose Engagement is Announced Thompson Grant Home of the season was given last evening by Mr and Mrs Wilbur Fenelon Young of State street at their beautiful country estate, "Long View," in Enfield, Ct., where they entertained about 150 or more of the younger social set of this city. Mr and Mrs Young are entertaining a house party of relatives and friends over the week-end at their country home and before the dance last evening they entertained at a dinner of 28 covers. The guests were all from out of town, and included relatives from Hartford, New York, Buffalo and Chicago. Both the dinner and the dance were given in honor of Miss Saidee Stephenson Young, whose engagement to Charles Harrison Payne was announced last evening. He was formerly of Mt Holly, N. J., but is now of this city.
One of the most important dances

The fine old colonial mansion on Enfield street, which was formerly the Thompson Grant home, with its high-studded, spacious and stately rooms, proved a wonderful background for the young people who spent the late evening and early morning hours dancing to the music of Hatch's orchestra from Hartford. Osterman & Steele of this

The two spacious drawing rooms were similarly decorated, special attention being shown in the decoration of the mantel and fireplace in each. The fireplaces themselves were banked with palms, while upon the mantel were vases of Killarney roses and asparagus ferns, the ferns falling in a veil effect from the vase. All was reflected in a charming picture in the large mirrors which extend from the mantel to the ceiling. In the third room, which was cleared for dancing, Boston ferns were used in the fireplace, with Enchantress carnations giving the touch of color, mingled with asparagus ferns. Lawson carnations were used in the main hall, in addition to the palms, and the library was similarly decorated. Lawson carnations were also used in the rooms of the second floor, with palms in the upper hall.

Supper was served during the intermission, the guests being seated in the two dining rooms of the house. In the main dining room pink Killarneys were used upon the mantel, mingled with asparagus, while upon the buffet primroses and Killarneys were used together. Boston ferns and palms banked the fireplace. A similar scheme was carried out in the other dining room, and the table in both rooms bore similar centerpieces—an oblong arrangement of lilies, freesies, lavender orchids and maidenhair fern.

Included in the house party which Mr and Mrs Young are entertaining at "Long View" over the week-end are Mr and Mrs J. William Hampden Pye of Hartford, Ct., Mrs John Stephenson of Buffalo, N. Y., Miss Marion Stephenson of Forestville, Ct., Miss Linda Stephenson of New York, Mrs Julia S. Payne of Mt Holly, N. J., John Stephenson of Forestville, Ct., Ray Stratford of Chicago, and Harry Payne of Mt Holly, N. J.

Wrestling

Two illustrations of a half-nelson with an arm hold.

A Game of Handball

Left to right, the figures are: A. B. Johnson, instructor; T. W. Booth of Paterson, N. J., and G. S. Stafford of Bridgeport, Ct.

Ice Hockey

A winter sport royal on the frozen surface of Massasoit lake.

Horace G. Williams, on behalf of the members of the chapter, gave Mr. Hall a large cake which was beautifully decorated with white and gilt and bore the inscription "O. E. S. to J. Knox Hall, 1890-1916," with the Masonic emblem in the center.

George W. Williams never known to be at fault. He erected house after house, while wiseacres smiled and shook their heads and ventured predictions that they would never be tenanted.

Miss Saidee Stephenson Young

Daughter of Mr and Mrs Wilbur F. Young, whose engagement to Charles H. Payne was announced recently at a dance at the country home in Enfield, Ct.

[Photograph by Bosworth.]

church, and before that was married in the State-street Baptist church. Mr Coleman is the son of Mr and Mrs J. P. Coleman of Kansas City, Mo., and has been in this city for the past four years, traveling for the Victor sporting goods company.

Stephenson of Buffalo, N. Y., Miss Marion Stephenson of Forestville, Ct., Miss Linda Stephenson of New York, Mrs Julia S. Payne of Mt Holly, N. J., John Stephenson of Forestville, Ct., Ray Stratford of Chicago, and Harry Payne of Mt Holly, N. J.

to Sing
urch.

J. Knox Hall.

J. Knox Hall, the youngest son of Austin and Betsey Wells Hall and descendant of Dr. Timothy Hall, a Revo-

47

Apparatus Work in

An important part of the training of men To develop a good bodily condition in a boy and know how he got it. The photograph is

ENFIELD ESTATE TO BE HOSPITAL

Government Considers Purchase of "Longview" for Disabled Soldiers.

Special to The Times. 1920
Thompsonville, August 23.

That negotiations are in progress for the purchase by the United States

NEW OWNER FOR $100,000 ESTATE IN THOMPSONVILLE

Special to The Times. 1921
Thompsonville, October 27.

Arthur R. Earle of the contracting firm of E. V. Earle & Sons, Boston, has bought "Longview," the handsome property belonging to the Wilbur F. Young estate in Enfield street. Deeds for the transfer were recorded yesterday at the town clerk's office and the stamps affixed indicate a purchase price of approximately $68,000, although the mansion, with its 125 acres of land and large farm buildings has been considered a $100,000 estate. Mr. Earle's home is in Lexington, Mass. It is rumored the purchase is for investment, with the idea of real estate develop-

The country mansion

imming is an important of boys.

were seated worthy nation Horace G. Williams, on behalf of the members of the chapter, gave Mr. Hall a large cake which was beautifully decorated with white and gilt and bore the inscription "O. E. S. to J. Knox Hall, 1890-1916," with the Masonic never known to be at fault. He erected house after house, while wiseacres smiled and shook their heads and ventured predictions that they would never be tenanted.

he Gymnasium

for Y. M. C. A. work is the physical.
his instructor must have it himself of the junior class.

In the Tank

part of the training of a man who is to have the State-street Baptist church. Mr. Coleman is the son of Mr and Mrs J. P. Coleman of Kansas City, Mo., and has been in this city for the past four years, traveling for the Victor porting goods company.

enson of Buffalo, N. Y., Miss Marion Stephenson of Forestville, Ct., Miss Linda Stephenson of New York, Mrs Julia S. Payne of Mt Holly, N. J., John Stephenson of Forestville, Ct., Ray Stratford of Chicago, and Harry Payne of Mt Holly, N. J.

Miss Eleanor Willard.

to Sing urch. R TERANS of Orient ears other for ed By (ant)

y, Feb. 6.
ficer in any that seldom Knox Hall
the fiftieth ed as wor-Lodge, No.
s town. The e lodge last evening held a special communication of the lodge to celebrate with Mr. Hall the fiftieth anniversary of the day that he was given the highest honor the lodge can bestow upon a member. The occasion was in the nature of a surprise to Mr. Hall and to George W. Darlin, who also was honored by the lodge at the same meeting in honor of his sixty-seventh year as a member of its lodge, Mr. Darlin being the oldest living member of this lodge.

After the conferring of the first degree by a team composed of past masters of the lodge, Mr. Hall was called to the floor and Worshipful Master Douglas H. Andrews, on behalf of the officers of the lodge, gave Mr. Hall a basket of roses. Past Master William W. Neifert, in behalf of the visiting past masters, gave Mr. Hall a purse of gold and a loving cup inscribed "J. Knox Hall, 1856-1916," which was placed in the basket of roses. Past Master G. Frank Olmsted then deposited $50 in gold from the past masters of the lodge in the cup and Horace B. Olmsted followed with $50 in gold from the members of the lodge. Each of the above mentioned brothers made a short presentation speech. Mr. Hall accepted the presents in a few words with deep appreciation and emotion.

Following this ceremony Selectman William M. Dunbar, the youngest member of the lodge, gave to George W. Darlin, the oldest member of the lodge, a bouquet of sixty-seven white roses in honor of his sixty-seven years as a member of the lodge. Mr. Darlin responded with a few words of appreciation and thanks.

The 250 members present then retired to the banquet hall where the members of Bigelow Chapter, O. E. S., served a dinner. After the members were seated Worthy Matron Mrs. Horace G. Williams, on behalf of the members of the chapter, gave Mr. Hall a large cake which was beautifully decorated with white and gilt and bore the inscription "O. E. S. to J. Knox Hall, 1890-1916," with the Masonic emblem in the center.

J. Knox Hall.
J. Knox Hall, the youngest son of Austin and Betsey Wells Hall and descendant of Dr. Timothy Hall, a Rev- as born in receiving tion, two ford High sent Wells ool train- ve up his the med- ly turned ich occu- wed. He ket gard- ating to- the South unit upon num, Mr. ship from urch and tive and t church, the Sun- ears. In of Orient id served odge and naster in gular at- for the

George W. Darlin.

George Washington Darlin of Connecticut boulevard was born in Rupert, Vt., February 13, 1825, a son of Reuben and Hannah (Scripture) Darlin, and was the sixth of a family of seven children, and he and his brother Joseph, were the only two to come to Connecticut. He is the only surviving member of his family. Mr. Darlin came to this town in 1846 and worked five years on a farm, after which he opened a general store in what was known as the "Red Store." In this business he remained for fifteen years. As a merchant he has been phenomenally successful, and invested his profits in real estate and at one time owned twenty-five tenements, including the two largest blocks in the Meadow, which were both burned in the large fire in that section in April, 1913. Thus he has been the chief promoter of the growth and prosperity of the Meadow. His known to be at fault. He erected house after house, while wisecracks smiled and shook their heads and ventured predictions that they would never be tenanted.

George W. Darlin.

tenants of these re than married ho died rge El- er 19, is now estate l to the ain in ttee in rved as rict for r of the urer of re Dis- t is a i active es. He of relief le man, rm, Mr. n from hest of ith but start in busi- e strict- ed by a usness almost never

Change In Ratemaker of West Middle District After 33 Years

FEBRUARY 6, 1916.

George O. Merritt, long a clerk in the city collector's office, has been named by the West Middle School District committee to succeed, as rate-maker of Keep, who, rant," retired of service, Mr. Keep usually since Charles H. Ney was th and his co Gross and t grand list of when Mr. K ties of rate which those be seen from which was about three the grand l there were i ings of the from one (fronts on As additions School, in t kindergarten the gymnasi steam heati which the building stat tively few l street in 18 tion extendi practically l

Mr. Keep the Phoenix Company al has been sec Veteran Cor Samuel E auditor of t years, contin of that office

FORTY YE

Charles D. K of the Ph Forty years Charles D. K of the Phoen company, and pany took co sary, this handsome rer who is empl the Phoenix

When Mr. this morning adorned his c clerks in the, also given a company, w of the office

Miss Lena High School Boy, Author of Dramatic wick, Me., an Club's Play, "The Hawk." bourne of New York were married Tuesday noon by Rev. Dr. Rockwell Harmon Potter at Center Church. Miss Nash was until recently a teacher in the South School. Mr. Chadbourne, who is a son of Former President Chadbourne of Williams College, is engaged in business in New York. Mr. and Mrs. Chadbourne will be at home after March 1 at No. 114 Morning-side drive, New York. Feb 8, 1916

HOWARD H. KEEP.

Thirty-three Years Ratemaker.

WILLIAM M. MASLEN.

HISTORIC "BOXWOOD."

Charles P. Horton Takes Lease of Show Place of Old Lyme, Where the Wilsons Stopped.

Special to The Times.

Old Lyme, February 7.

Historic "Boxwood," one of the show places of Old Lyme, has been leased by Charles P. Horton, of this place, who will run it as a hotel. The building is one of the largest in town, and has had a varied history. For many years it was the homestead of one of the branches of the well-known Griswold family.

The noble lines of the old colonial building, the spacious grounds in which it is set, the rows of box bushes, and the charming old-fashioned garden, make it an example of the best in colonial architecture and landscape gardening.

About twenty years ago the place was bought by the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard S. Griswold, from the Griswold estate. After building a large addition, Mrs. Griswold established a girls' boarding school there, which she managed until 1905, when she sold the school to Miss Ida Tibbetts. In two years the school was closed, and since then the building has been used with varied success as a summer hotel.

It was here that President Woodrow Wilson and family spent the summer of 1905.

HIGH SCHOOL BOY IS AUTHOR OF "THE HAWK" AND WILL PLAY LEAD

He died in the War
"The Hawk," an original two-act comedy drama, written by William M. Maslen of the Hartford Public High School Dramatic Club, has been selected for a public presentation by the club on Friday evening, March 3, in the Broad street assembly hall. Maslen's play was chosen by E. S. Hawes, faculty critic, as the best among several submitted by club members. The action of the piece takes place in the wireless cabin of a private yacht bound on a pleasure cruise, and had to do with a conspiracy to rob the ship. The wireless operator prevents the robbery.

Maslen, writer of the play, is a member of the senior class. He was recently appointed secretary of the Hartford High School Club, and is also secretary of the H. P. H. S. Debating Club. He is treasurer of the Boys' Mandolin Club and is a member of the school orchestra. He was formerly a member of the executive committee of the debating club. He is to take the leading role in his own play.

The cast of characters has been arranged as follows:—

Captain Gregory Herbert Mills
Leonard Perkins Raymon Keefe
Mr. Russell Ernest Hildebrand
Jerry Wadsworth O. Howard Clark
Robert Phelps William M. Maslen
Mrs. Russell Elinor Corbin
Miss Bertha Russell Ella Adelson
Gertrude Phelps Fanchon Hartman
Ellen Russell Marion Thacher
Naval officer Robert Allyn

Meet and Dine :: Trotting

ARRANGED FOR ELERS AND AETNAS

ents have been completed
e of basketball games be-Aetna Life team and the
eam. The schedule of games
y the athletic committee in both teams is as follows:

February 16; Monday, d Wednesday, March 22. It ossible. The nre will have to ught by what engine streams the ty can bring to bear and after the ST

EIGHT LOCAL HORSES BOUND TO NEW YORK

Harry Brusie Will Act As Sole Agent.

H INTEREST IN SALE LOCALLY.

Road Drivers Are Prospective Buyers.

ON R. BLACK, JR.
1916 ELEVEN of both will rein turn.

actively,
cademy
uties at ment of athletic e seems the Yale

It was faculty
ISS.

Career
nted as k.

es, who,
noment
to pre-choice tee for om the present

ard Clark and William M. Mas-Adelson, Miss Eleanor Burch, O.
ted of Miss Marion Thacher, Miss
ity. The committee in charge con-direction of E. S. Hawes of the
The play was produced under Gertrude Phelps.
Miss Bertha Russell.
Ellen Russell.
Mrs. Russell.
Isabel Harbison.
Robert A.
Robert M.
Herbert M.
O. Howard C.
William M. Ma.
Adolph B.
Ernest H.

the play was followed by a da-program of ten numbers in the building, 100 couples taking p-Music for the dancing was played the Major Orchestra. The cast the play follows:—
Mr. Russell, did justice to her sm-erratic aunt, and Isabel Harbison,
ability in portraying a somewh-Miss Ella Adelson displayed mar-under the guidance of a naval offi-shiny pair of business-like handeoff the stage linked together with Mills and ed by U
two "bad men," Herbe-the comedy was furnis-Much love affa happily

towards the end of the month, of the fastest horses in and Hartford will leave this city, the auction sale in New York.
charge of this group will be Brusie, the local driver, who as agent for three different owners. Brusie will take with the fast pacer with whom won much money last year
ore, Mary Foran, Dictator Hal-eels, Maurice K., Tom B., and pacer by Fuzzy owned by Dave
g. The departure of the horses en the retirement of one promrse owner for at least two or ars and the selling of the com-table of another. Dave Green-ner of Kitty Moore and Mary will sell these two horses and te all his time for some years age that he is now planning to Fred H. Threll

OS S., THE NEW FOOTBALL HEAD COACH

SUNDAY PHOTO PLAY
Albert
evalier in 5—HEART-INTERESTING
thers-10

GRAPH TR
FREE LIVE WIRES

TTA & GIR
tacular Dancing and Electrical Producti

CONCERT
Y OLD UTCH"
ACTS—5
EATS 10c

COMING DIRECT
SAM
AND KITTY

ad" Jones at Exeter
n, Phillips-Exeter's publication, regarding or the three years that 'Tad' Jones has as coached three championship teams; he tball on its feet after a languid slump of is different from most coaches; he gets a different manner, and he imbues them fighting spirit. No one realizes how much Exeter and how greatly we will all miss this Yale is indeed fortunate in securing his usion we wish to express our gratitude to what he has accomplished here at school;
le, wishes him the best of success in his rk."
t Jones, jr.

e House
uccesses

BROADWAY

After 33 Years Lou-Tellegen and His Bride

FEBRUARY 6,

Who was Geraldine Farrar

George O. Merritt, long the city collector's office, named by the West Middle District committee to succeed maker of Keep, who, rant," retired of service, Mr. Keep nually since Charles H.

Ney was the and his co-

Gross and the grand list of when Mr. K ties of rate which those be seen from which was about three

the grand list there were

ings of the from one fronts on A additions

School, in the kindergarten

the gymnasi steam heat

which the building stay

tively few street in 18

tion extend practically

Mr. Keep the Phoenix

Company al has been sec

Veteran Cor Samuel E

auditor of t years, contin

of that office FORTY YE

Charles D. K the Ph

Forty year Charles D. K

of the Phoen company, and

pany took co sary, this handsome rer who is empl

the Phoenix When Mr.

this morning adorned his clerks in the also given a company, wh of the office

Miss Lena High School F

wick, Me., an Club's

HOWARD

Thirty-three

WILLIAM

PRIMA DONNA AND ACTOR HUSBAND

Geraldine Farrar, Best-Known American Operatic Soprano, was married on Tuesday to Lou Tellegen, a Holland-born Actor of Greek-French Parentage, Who has Lately Won Popularity on the Stage in This Country. The Marriage Came as More or Less of a Surprise, Though Rumors of their Engagement had Persisted for Many Weeks. Lou Tellegen will Appear at the Northampton Academy of Music Thursday Night in "A King of Nowhere," His New Play. Miss Farrar is now Filling Her First Engagements of this Season with the Metropolitan Opera Company, New York

TAD JONES CHOSEN

Walter Camp Added to Special Committee in Charge of Gridiron Affairs

1916
Special Dispatch to The Republican
NEW HAVEN, CT., Wed., Feb. 2
Theodore A. D. Jones of Exeter, O., for the past four years head football coach at Exeter academy, was tonight formally named Yale's head coach for the next three years. The Yale athletic committee ratified Jones's appointment which was made by the special football committee, consisting of Vance McCormick, Brink Thorne and John Kilpatrick.

The appointment of Michael F. Sweeney, for 15 years athletic head of the Hill school of Pottstown, Pa., as a general athletic adviser at Yale for two years, was also ratified. Financial details of either appointment were not given out. The scheme to continue the special committee in charge of the reorganization of Yale football was carried out and two former players, Walter Camp, the veteran Yale athletic adviser, and Joseph R. Swan of Albany, head coach in 1901, were added to the committee.

Jones was graduated from the Sheffield scientific school in 1908. He was 'varsity quarterback for three years, and in his senior year was captain of the baseball team. During his time as coach at Exeter, the latter has not lost a single game to Andover. Jones's class at Yale, was 1908, the same as that of his brother, Howard, who played end and who coached Ted Coy's team in 1909. Although weighing considerably over 180 pounds, Tad is generally considered one of the best quarterbacks Yale ever had. His reputation as a player loomed after his sensational play in that famous 12-to-10 game with Princeton in the fall of 1907. It was in that grueling contest that Jones won his fame for the interference and assistance he offered Coy in making those two spectacular touchdowns in the last half. He was no less reliable in the 12-to-0 game against Harvard the week following, although the strain of the Princeton battle told severely on both him and the mighty Ted.

Jones aroused considerable comment because of his alleged praying for victory over Harvard in the final football game of his career at Yale. It is said he admitted at a Yale banquet that he had done some quiet praying in his room before the Harvard game. Another version of the praying business is that he once took to his knees between the halves. Anyway the praying story "got out," and even those who could not quite believe it admitted that the act was not at all unlike Tad Jones.

To-night's meeting brought back Mr Camp into his first meeting with the athletic committee since his retirement more than a year ago. While he is not a member of the body, he sat by invitation with it. His appointment as a member of the special football committee of reorganization was made in response to a general demand from both alumni and undergraduates that he return as a Yale athletic adviser.

The position of Sweeney will place of both will re- in turn. actively, academy uties at ment of athletic e seems the Yale It was faculty SS.

Career nted as k.

s, who, noment to pre- choice tee for om the present

CAPTAIN-ELECT CLINTON R. BLACK, JR.
1917 S., OF THE 1916 ELEVEN

T. A. D. JONES, '08 S., THE NEW FOOTBALL HEAD COACH

"Tad" Jones at Exeter

Says The Exonian, Phillips-Exeter's publication, regarding "Tad" Jones: "For the three years that 'Tad' Jones has been with us, he has coached three championship teams; he has put Exeter football on its feet after a languid slump of eight years. 'Tad' is different from most coaches; he gets at the players in a different manner, and he imbues them with a wonderful fighting spirit. No one realizes how much he has done for Exeter and how greatly we will all miss this perfect gentleman. Yale is indeed fortunate in securing his services. In conclusion we wish to express our gratitude to 'Tad' Jones for what he has accomplished here at school; Exeter, as a whole, wishes him the best of success in his larger field of work."

Dwight Jones, jr.

ALTON ON TO New C
E

Charles
elected c republica
erts was.
Eighth V a meeti committe Heublein
ceeds Ha ter takes
en. both
C

Charles
member the Ninth February
DeLance
has lived Ninth V has been republic trict. He
of the J.
tonbury.
Associati
he was years ago
nee for fi
and mad polls on this is t ward. M Hartford
mobile C

Philip December
early ed
and the being gr
in 1906.
(Acaden
A. B. an
in 1913.
Harvard
of LL.B. law cou months claim de cident
since th
law in an
He was elected a member of the Eighth Ward republican committe March, 1915. He is a member of Hartford Golf Club, the Univer
Club and the Yale Alumni Associa

SECRETARY GARRISON O

Secretary Garrison is the member of the cabinet to resign Bryan being the first. Mr. Br resignation was not much more pro forma—a way of doing the
that was already being done habi ly—the fact being that Mr. E never could tell what he was to do, as secretary of state, until had seen the President.

Cha

ROBERTS WILL BE COLE'S ASSISTANT

New Corporation Counsel Honors Eighth Ward Chairman 1916

Ex-Alderman Francis W. Cole, who, on May 1, succeeds John W. Coogan as corporation counsel, yesterday announced his choice of Philip Roberts, chairman of the Eighth Ward republican committee, as his assistant. No confirmation of this appointment by the city council is required and Mr. Roberts, who has accepted, will take office when Mr. Cole assumes his duties on May 1.

Although the present incumbent, William J. Hamersley, has received $1,500 for each of the two years that he has assisted Corporation Counsel Coogan, there is no regular salary connected with the place; in fact the ordinances do not show that there is any such office as "assistant corporation counsel," which is the title generally applied to the place.

Section 239 of the ordinances says that the corporation counsel "may employ such additional counsel to aid him in the prosecution of his duties as he shall deem advisable, and the fees for the services of said assistant counsel shall be paid by the city, upon the approval of the same by the court of common council."

The impression that the "assistant corporation counsel" has a regular salary of $1,500 probably originated from the fact that an appropriation of that amount is made annually in the budget for the corporation counsel's office and that it has been the custom with some of the city's former legal advisers to pay the entire appropriation to their assistants, although some of the assistants have been limited to $1,200.

Philip Roberts.

Philip Roberts, Mr. Cole's appointee, has progressed rapidly in legal circles since his graduation from college in 1914, and he is popular in his home city and elsewhere. Born in this city December 8, 1887, he received his early education in the South School and the Hartford Public High School, being graduated from the high school in 1906. He was graduated from Yale (Academic) in 1910 with the degree of A.B. and received the degree of A. M. in 1913.

Judge Garrison has been more independent in his work as secretary of war, it being only a few weeks since the spirit of military preparedness obtained access to the Presidential mind.

bility—the best
net, we should mocrat, except y sense. His toward auto-

ISON.

et Resigns Because ably." Support Plan.

as some demo-
Judge Garri-
nation to bowl of New Jersey
United States
did not asmably because hings from his at his modern ned out to be n children, the ic senatorship
ome within the
has only just and it is not n to make an man of ability

BAKER FOR WAR PORTFOLIO

Long Active in Cleveland Affairs

Ten Years City Solicitor and Mayor for Two Terms—Staunch Supporter of President at Baltimore Convention

Mr. Baker is forty-four years old. He

The Nation's New War Chief

(Copyright Photo by International Film Service, Inc.)

Newton D. Baker

Former Mayor of Cleveland, Chosen to Succeed Lindley M. Garrison in President's Cabinet

point as debatable. This was regarded the Baker. There was no man in public life with whose ideas he more naturally sympathized than his old college instructor and table companion in Baltimore—Mr.

Wilson. It was not until Governor Harmon appeared before the constitutional convention in Columbus, however, and made a 'stand-pat' speech, that Mayor Baker turned against him. He boldly went into the field with the intention of destroying Governor Harmon's Presidential boom by splitting the delegation from Ohio. One morning, newspaper readers were amazed to discover that, at the primaries, Governor Harmon did not have the undivided support of his own State. Of otes in the Democratic d received only twenty- twenty-one had been cap- 7 Wilson. This was a sad residential candidacy, and Newton D. Baker's work, shifted to the National altimore. There Mayor dr. Wilson's forces from ere with the determina- fr. Wilson's twenty-one 'cedents were against convention in Ohio had rule," under which all for the majority choice Harmon; and the unit red at National Demo- for years. If he could Baker thought he could it the convention rules eing himself a party to gs were looking rather administration as Mayor Hendrick has this to say: ng else, Mayor Baker's r municipal ownership

Fare Fight

Cleveland must ultimately street railways, its gas ng companies, its water telephones. In Mayor y, this idea is funda- nveniences furnish the ordered and comfortable the things which have they are not legitimate- ivate profit; the people ave these facilities at er's most practical suc- emonstrating the sound- The one 'monument to is the proof that it is people trolley-car trans- That Mayor Baker has this work will probably eople. There is a prev- that Cleveland's three- as proved a failure and going back to a higher ot the case."

edness

led in the agitation io constitution which e right to frame their led the efforts which ew Cleveland charter, ystem of preferential at feature.

thorough believer in ness. When President leveland on his recent ough the Central West chairman of the recepmember of the Ohio Committee and chair- utive committee of his . He has the record a public office in Clevel- teen consecutive years He declined to run for once again in order to devote his time to private law practice. Mr. Baker is understood to have specified when he joined his law firm that he would be free for six months prior to the next election to work for President Wilson's reelection.

MONDAY, MARCH 6, 1916

THE NEW SECRETARY OF WAR

The appointment of Newton D. Baker as Secretary of War answers very effectively the report in circulation at Washington several days ago, that President Wilson will not be a candidate for reelection. Mr. Baker was the successor of Tom Johnson as mayor of Cleveland. He was also the leader of the Wilson wing of the Ohio delegation at Baltimore. Like Mr. Bryan and Mr. Daniels, he has always been an ardent advocate of Government ownership as a panacea for political ills, and in support of this theory has proved himself a popular and aggressive campaigner. As the head of the War Department he is qualified to supply that interest in politics and strength with politicians so lacking with Mr. Garrison. So, too, as a political figure of prominence in a pivotal State like Ohio, Mr. Baker will prove of larger value as a Cabinet officer in the coming campaign than would Mr. Garrison, who brought to the War Department no political organization and was a resident of the President's own State. As an intellectual companion the new Secretary of War should be much more congenial to his chief than was the lawyer and judge whom he succeeds. Mr. Baker enjoys in his own State the reputation of being "a scholar in politics" who reads Greek tragedies in the original and illumines his speeches with passages from the classics, which charm his hearers and enhance his oratorical distinction. But for his unwillingness to leave the Cleveland mayoralty, Mr. Baker would have been called to the Cabinet at the beginning of the Administration, where the President declared that he felt the need of a man "whose mind works like chain lightning."

But the academic charm of Mr. Baker's personality and the political power of his following are not the requirements of a great Secretary of War in these critical days. Mr. Garrison was forced out of the Cabinet because he supported, consistently and courageously, a policy originally championed by Mr. Wilson and abandoned by him in the face of political exigencies. Mr. Baker is too experienced a politician to permit the needs of national defence to conflict with those of political defence. His administration of the War Department can be counted upon to harmonize the differences between the President and the leaders of his party in Congress, and when the campaign is in full swing Mr. Baker is so gifted in the artful use of words that he should have little difficulty in impressing many people with the superiority of the programme of preparedness as formulated by the politicians of Congress, over that urged by Mr. Garrison in accord with the dictates of military necessity as those were interpreted by military experts. As a political auxiliary the new Secretary of War will be of valuable assistance to the Administration. Let us hope that his administration of the War Department will not be as harmful to the army, however, as that of his fellow politician has been to the navy.

Garrison & Baker.

NEWTON D. BAKER NAMED COLONEL

Former Secretary of War Commissioned Officer of Reserve Corps—Receives Letter from His Successor.

Washington, March 10.—Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war, has been commissioned a colonel in the Officers' Reserve corps, judge advocate general's office, Secretary Weeks announced yesterday. Colonel Baker returned last Saturday to his home in Cleveland, where he has resumed practice of law.

Secretary Weeks said in a letter to his successor accompanying the commission:

"My dear Colonel:

"Please accept my expression of appreciation of your continued connection with the army accomplished by the enclosed commission. The army will know, as I do, that the office you are accepting is in no way commensurate with your ability and qualifications and will fully appreciate your sincere interest in the service by the acceptance of this modest office.

"Your membership in the Officers' Reserve corps will, I am sure, be a material factor in building up that corps and the organized reserve of which it is a part. Knowing you as I do, however, I am confident that we may expect from you more than passive support and assistance."

It is now Col Newton D. Baker of the judge advocate general's department of the army. Why not also Capt Josephus Daniels of the publicity department of the navy?

Newton D. Baker's reception back home may set democrats to thinking. The former war secretary was tendered a reception and a dinner on Thursday evening by the Clevelanders of his own party. Saturday he was the guest of the City club at a luncheon. The Cleveland bar association will honor him with a banquet on the 29th. They think highly of Baker in Cleveland without regard to politics. If the democratic party comes back in this country, he will probably be found among the leaders of the procession. As time passes his positive achievement as secretary of war will be much more correctly and justly estimated by the American people. He is still young; the years are on his side. His own oratorical gifts and brilliant mind will do the rest.

1921 March

C. M. INGERSOLL TO WED

MISS MARIE HARRISON

Prominent Consulting Engineer Will Marry New York Girl.

Colin Macrea Ingersoll, a native of New Haven, former chief engineer for the department of bridges of New York city, is to marry Miss Marie Louise Harrison, a sister of Mrs. Frederic J. Stimson of No. 109 East Seventy-first street, New York. The wedding will take place Saturday at the Church of the Resurrection on East Seventy-fourth street, and will be a quiet one.

Mr. Ingersoll was chief engineer of bridges from 1906 to 1908, and previous to that time was in the engineering department of the "New Haven" road. He is a prominent consulting engineer. His first wife, who died in 1910, was Miss Theresa McAllister before her marriage, a niece of Ward McAllister.

The marriage of Colin McCree Ingersoll, Yale Sheffield Scientific School, class of 1880, and Miss Marie Louise Harrison of New York, was quietly celebrated yesterday at the Church of the Resurrection, New York.

Among those from this city who attended the large dance given last evening at the Hotel Winthrop Meriden, for Miss Cornelia Dodd, a debutante of that city, were Miss Gertrude N. Bishop of Farmington avenue, West Hartford, Miss Ruth S. Parker of Evergreen avenue, and Bradford Boardman, a student at Trinity College.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick B. Merrels, whose marriage was announced in yesterday morning's "Courant," will make their home in Hartford after a month in Florida. Mrs. Merrels was Mrs. Corinne Gray Price Crowley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilson Price. She is a painter of miniatures and was the widow of Will Bowers Crowley of Syracuse, who died less than a year after his marriage in the spring of 1912. Mr. Merrels, who is a Hartford man, was graduated from Yale in 1900. The ceremony was performed at the

NIELSEN-GARDENER.

Miss Ruth Gardener, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Gardener, East Hartford, and J. Raymond Nielsen, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Nielsen of the same town, were married by the Rev. Edmund C. Thomas, rector of St. James church, Hartford, at the home of the bride at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The home of the bride was prettily decorated, the color scheme being pink and green. Mrs. Earl M. Gardener was matron of honor and Albert Nielsen best man. The bride was attired in white net with pearl trimmings and white veil with pearl trimmings and lilies of the valley. She carried a bouquet of Killarney roses and lilies of the valley. Florence Bradley of New Haven, a cousin, played the bridal match. Guests were present from New Haven, New York, Hartford and other places. Following a short wedding trip, the couple will reside at No. 108 Chapel street, East Hartford.

The wedding of Charles Bilings Gleason, a son of Dr. W. Stanton Gleason, president of the New York Medical Society, and Mrs. Gleason of Newburg, N. Y., and Miss Katherine Kent, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Winthrop Kent of Lawrence Park, Bronxville, N. Y., took place last week Saturday afternoon in Christ Church, Bronxville. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Charlotte Austin Kent, as maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Frances Adams Kent, another sister, Miss Louise Lawrence White of Hyde Park, Mass., Miss Harriet Higgins of Cleveland, O., and Miss Evelyn Stuart of Newton Center, Mass. Mr. Gleason had James Fennimore Cooper, jr. of Cooperstown, N. Y., as his best man, and the ushers were Winthrop Kent, brother of the bride; Frank McN. Ransom of New York; Cleland B. Ross and John T. Howell, jr., of Newburg; William I. Campbell of Baltimore; Stanley H. Eddy of New Britain, Conn.; W. J. Hoysradt of Bronxville; Eric King of Arrochar, Staten Island, and B. Ford Brundage of Oil City, Penn. Mr. Gleason was graduated from Yale University in 1913, and is in charge of the Cleveland branch of the Guaranty Trust Company of New York.

JERSEY COUPLE

WEDDING IN DAYTON

It is expected that about 450 members and friends of the Young Women's Christian Association will be present.

Wednesday Evening

Clifton Year Will Be Banquet Most Important Happening of Association

Years Ago

Dream of World Empire of 2,500

rel, or the Fulfillment of a King's ning being "Europe's Family Quar-

hall, the subject, next Sunday eve-would give several lectures at Unity

It was announced that Mr. Stray buildings, in the enemy land."

men, but even on their own church

Christians being trained on not only modern times. The guns of brother without parallel in the church. In hided with one another, a disaster

heaven has displayed, and have col-

seen the danger signals, which without a headlight, they have not averted, but like a train running

ued, "this war might have been given heed to prophecy," he contin-

"If the churches of Europe had

"Preparedness and Armageddon."

said Frederic Stray at Foot Guard

written in advance, called prophecy."

that a great deal of it was history

it was unlike any other history, in careful study. I was convinced that indeed, I used to say, the Bible was

Mr. Stray said in part, "When an

NATIONS HEADLESS.

Frederic M. Williams of Waterbury. Putnam; ex-Attorney General John H. Light of South Norwalk; and University; Charles E. Seales of Putnam; ex-Attorney General John H. Light of South Norwalk; and

AMID SMILAX AND PALMS

Miss Dorothy Nelson Stearns and William Chaplin Bemis Married at Faith Church

The second large church wedding of the month took place last evening in Faith Congregational church when Miss Dorothy Nelson Stearns, only daughter of Mr and Mrs James Parker Stearns, and William Chaplin Bemis, only child of Mr and Mrs Howard Rogers Bemis of Long Hill street, were married. The hour of the ceremony immediately after the church ceremony a wedding reception was held at the home of the bride's parents on Magnolia terrace, where the bride and bridegroom were assisted in receiving by Mr and Mrs Stearns and Mr and Mrs Bemis. Mrs Stearns wore a robe of panne velvet of old rose and orchid changeable tones. A panel of iridescent trimming was inserted on one side of the skirt, the same trimming continuing up into the bodice to form one-half of it. From the shoulders were streamers of orchid tulle, finished with opalescent ornament at the end. Mrs Bemis wore a handsome robe of silver tissue, trimmed with silver lace and bodice of net.

The receiving party stood in the music room against a background of smilax, while at either side was a wall pocket filled with white carnations. Smilax was used by Aitken profusely throughout the rooms of the lower floor, being used above the casings of the doors and windows and hanging down from them, as well as entwining the chandeliers. In the living room the fireplace was banked with the green, and carnations of white were also used as the flowers here as in the music room. In the dining room, where Rebboli catered for supper, Killarney roses were used. In the hall only smilax was used about the doors and the balustrades of the staircase leading to the second floor. In the den on the third floor of the Stearns home were the wedding gifts, which included in mahogany furniture, linen, silver, cut glass and china, to mention but a few, a large quantity of articles which will readily find a place in the future home of Mr Bemis and his bride. Hosmer's orchestra played during the reception and also for the dancing of the young people later in the evening.

Mr and Mrs Bemis left last evening for a trip to the South, the latter wearing a suit of blue serge with blue taffeta, with which she wore a black hat. Upon their return in a few weeks they are to live for the present with the bridegroom's parents, Mr and Mrs Bemis on Long Hill street, where they will remain until their home on Cherryvale avenue, which is nearing completion, is ready for them. Last evening's bride was a graduate of the public schools in this city, but completed her education with a year in Paris, where she gave special attention to the study of French. Mr Bemis is a graduate of the Allen preparatory school in Newton and of Dartmouth in the class of 1915. He is a member of Psi Epsilon fraternity. He is now connected with the Fiberloid company in Indian Orchard. Among the out-of-town guests present last evening were Mrs Stearns's sister and niece, Mrs Rufus L. Thurston and Mrs Wilbur D. Steele of Brookline, Maj and Mrs William G. Penfield and son, Jesse Penfield, of Bridgeport, Ct.,

Thompson-Fairman, 72
Miss Ruth Fairman, daughter of the late Colonel James Yale Fairman and Mrs. Fairman of Middletown, and Graham Fellowes Thompson of New Haven, son of the late H. Grant Thompson of New Haven, were married yesterday at Holy Trinity Church, Middletown, the services being conducted by Suffragan Bishop E. Camnion A.

SEMLER-PARKER.

Yale Man Marries Daughter of Composer and Professor of Music at University.

Special to The Times.

New Haven, Feb. 12.

In the presence of a large number of guests including many prominent musicians from New York and Boston, Miss Isabel Parker, daughter of Horatio W. Parker, composer and professor of music at Yale, was married this afternoon to Ralph Borgfeldt Semler, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Semler of New York. The ceremony took place at Christ Protestant Episcopal church at 3:50 o'clock, the Rev. William Osborn Baker, rector of the church, officiating. The church was decorated with Easter lilies and palms.

The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. K. Howard Matthai of Baltimore, as matron of honor, and another sister, Miss Grace Parker, was the maid of honor. The bridesmaids included: Miss Doris Nevin of New York, daughter of the late composer, Ethelbert Nevin, Miss Catherine Richards of Cleveland, Miss Springer Strobel of Philadelphia, Miss Delight Weston of Dayton, O., Miss Janet Camp and Miss Hilda Sargent of New Haven.

Herbert Semler, a brother of the bridegroom, was the best man, and the ushers included several classmates of the bridegroom at Yale. There were: Donald Hemingway of New Haven, Barnes Newberry of Detroit, Howard Matthai of Baltimore, Carter Phelps of New York, Mortimer Seabury of Cambridge, Mass., James Howard, J. H. Body and Lawrence Marks of New York.

The bride entered the church with her father, who gave her in marriage. During the service the full vested choir of the church sang a RECORD—There will be an aneight o'clock.

day morning, February 14, 1916, at Baker at St. Michael's church, Monrepose of the soul of Mrs. James mind requiem high mass for the BARKER—There will be a month's o'clock at St. Peter's church.

ing, February 14th, at eight the late John Ahern, Monday morn-mass for the repose of the soul of HERN—There will be month's mind

Bloomfield.
Funeral at two o'clock Monday at-11, 1916, Walter K. Seward.
WARD—In Bloomfield, February
family. Friends please omit flowers.
Funeral will be private and will (18), wife of Arthur G. Olmsted.

COL. CAMP'S HOME

DESTROYED BY FIRE
See Vol 10 - 1916
$50,000 Blaze Near Middletown - High-lawn Burned.

(Special to The Courant.)

Middletown, Feb. 13.

Fire that started at an early hour this morning destroyed the handsome residence of Col. Herbert L. Camp, situated four miles outside of this city on the Meriden road. The building was worth $50,000. The building was known as Highlawn and was one of the show places of this vicinity. The furnishings cost as much as the house.

Feb 13 - 1916
A wedding took place yesterday at the home of Mrs. H. K. Vos Burgh, No. 29 Edgewood street when her sister, Miss Leola Winnifred Broderick, was married to Allen Eugene Scholl. Rev. Dr. W. G. Fennell of the Asylum Avenue Baptist Church officiated. The bride wore a traveling suit of blue gaberdine with a hat to match, and a corsage bouquet of Ward roses and lilies of the valley. The couple were unattended. After the ceremony a luncheon was served, after which the couple left for a wedding trip to the bridegroom's former home at Slatington, Pa. They will live in this city.

Mrs. Edward Boutecon Morris, Mrs. Edward Wiley Frisbie, Mrs. Frederick Strong Kimball and Mrs. William Converse Skinner, Jr., were the hostesses of a large auction bridge party last Monday afternoon at the Hartford Golf Club. The guests were seated at thirty tables. The rooms were decorated with bowls of spring flowers.

One of the largest afternoon entertainments of the season, and a particularly interesting and delightful event, was the bridge party and tea given at the Hartford Golf club Monday afternoon by Mrs. Edward B. Morris and Mrs. Frederick S.

BELLOWS FALLS WOMAN 99

Mrs Sibel Huntoon Prouty Guild Celebrates Her Anniversary
Special Dispatch to The Republican
BELLOWS FALLS, Vt., Tues. Feb. 15

Mrs Sibel Huntoon Prouty Guild, the oldest woman in northern Windham county and perhaps the oldest woman in the entire county, observed her 99th birthday anniversary to-day with a shower of gifts and a banquet of white tulle. The bride wore a gown of white tulle with trimmings of silver and gold. She was seated at a table with gold tulle and gold tulle. The bride wore a gown of white tulle with trimmings of silver and gold. She was seated at a table with gold tulle and gold tulle.

EIGHT BELOW ZERO OFFICIAL RECORD

55

Coldest Day in Hartford
Since December, 1914.

Feb 15 - 1916
26 BELOW ZERO
AT CHERRY BROOK.
ONLY 8 BELOW
IN HARTFORD

Extreme Cold Hinders Railway Trains; Causes Pedestrians to Hustle.

Temperature way below zero prevailed throughout the state this morning. The figures show it to have been nearly on a par with that notable morning in January, 1904, when readings as low as 40 were reported. It was the sharpest morning in Hartford in more than a year, the weather bureau thermometer on top of the Connecticut Mutual building registering 8 below — six degrees lower than on Monday morning.

14
VERY LOW TEMPERATURE
But this wasn't a marker to some Brook, for in-below was re-

Thirty Below at Country Club —
Below Zero Weather in Many Towns
Low temperature records were broken yesterday morning with reports varying from 15 below, the official record, to 30 below at the country club of Pittsfield. Low records were broken as far back as December 27, 1914, at which date the city hall thermometer dropped to 19 below and other thermometers in the city to 35 below. At 2 o'clock yesterday morning a thermometer at the Wendell hotel registered 18 below and at 7 a. m. 17 below. At the country club at 10.45 o'clock yesterday morning temperatures were reported from the surrounding towns. The various reports in recent

Pittsfield:—		section of the Country club	30 below	with below zero
Pontoon lake	24 below	west is in the West Pittsfield	17 below	50 above zero
Wendell hotel	18 below	here this morn-
City hall	15 below
Hinsdale	30 below	ayed.
Monterey	26 below
Dalton	25 below	w temperature
State Line	23 below	ss of trains on East Lee	21 below
Lee	20 below	w Haven and
Lenox	20 below	cause of inabil-
Tyringham	20 below	in the locomo-
Lanesboro	20 below	m. train from Stephentown, N. Y.	20 below	ly an hour late.
Lenox Dale	18 below	from New York
Otis	18 below	alf hour behind
Great Barrington	18 below
Stockbridge	18 below
South Lee	14 below	schedule. Suburban trains were

Mrs William Chaplin Bemis and Her Bridal Attendants

Mrs Bemis was formerly Miss Dorothy Nelson Stearns, and is the daughter of Mr and Mrs James P. Stearns. The attendants in half-circle from left to right are Miss Katherine B. Lincoln, Miss Elinor Woods, Miss Olive Folsom, Miss Marjorie Rice (maid of honor), Miss Elizabeth Tenney, Miss Pauline Carmichael and Miss Harriet Dickinson.

[Photograph by Collyer.]

KNOX HOST TO 80 AETNA LIFE MEN

President Bulkeley and Other

Officers Spoke

Stenogra

Wate

Addressed

Bulkeley a Aetna Life
tion pictur agents and Plasikowski
given last n the Hartford of No. 39
for Connect
ment of the guests, who company, A out the stat Hartford o
until late i success. M more or le cerning the especially a the agents.

ROBERT C. KNOX.

General Agent.

When the dinner had ended, Mr. Knox introduced as the chief speaker President Bulkeley, who spoke in an intimate manner of the history of the Aetna Life. Other speakers were Vice-President J. S. Rowe, who spoke of his connection with the company since 1902; C. F. Vielle and A. R. Robertson of Mr. Knox's office, who spoke on "Service in the Office" and on "Service in the Field," respectively; R. W. Rice of Middletown and Oliver R. Beckwith, claims attorney for the Aetna Life.

The surprise feature of the dinner was dancing by Miss Serina F. Plasikowski and Edward F. Plasikowski, who danced "The Frolics of Youth" and "The Wood Nymph" with half of the large hall for their stage. Miss Plasikowski was brought into the hall in a covered basket under the guise of "more food" for the first dance. Both dancers were loudly applauded.

The chief feature of the decorations was a huge floral centerpiece, thirty feet long, spelling the word "Aetna." The letters were formed of more than 1,000 pink and white carnations and the background was of ferns and greens. Around the centerpiece, at one large table which ran the entire length of the room, were seated the eighty guests. Under the balcony at one end of the hall was hung the banner which flies from the roof of the Aetna Life building during the day-time.

The entertainment included motion pictures of the officers and employees of the home office and of the Aetna Life delegation which visited the fair at San Francisco last summer. Between the reels of the pictures the dancing exhibitions were given.

While the other guests, including the men of Mr. Knox's office, were dining in the main banquet hall, twenty-five girls employed as stenographers and clerks in the office were guests at a replica of the dinner in a smaller room upstairs. After the dinner they sat in the balcony of the main hall and watched the entertainment in a zenana-like seclusion.

The agents from out-of-town were invited to come early so that they could take in the automobile show and many of them did so. A group photograph of the diners was taken and copies will be given to each of the guests as souvenirs. Another souvenir that was given to each guest by Mr. Knox was a seal leather memorandum book. Song books were also distributed and many Aetna Life songs were belt men and our facto

nder Belt will give you m much to you.

s why an Alexander wor
the crown of the pulley, ne Rim-Grip Belt made

POWERFUL

BARONESS VON ANDRE TO WED Sister of Mrs. Chauncey M. Depew Will Be Bride of Norwegian Minister,

New York, February 16.—Announcement was made Tuesday by Mrs. Chauncey M. Depew of the engagement of her sister, Baroness von Andre, widow of the late Baron Adolph von Andre, a Belgian nobleman, to Baron F. H. H. Wedel Jarlesberg, Norwegian minister of finance. Baroness von Andre, who is

PROF. JOHN K. LORD OF DARTMOUTH RESIGNS

Hanover, N. H., Feb. 20.—After a service of forty-seven years as a member of the Dartmouth College faculty, Dr. John King Lord, professor of Latin and literature, will retire June 30, it was learned today. His resignation, which was offered on account of the health of his wife, has been accepted by the trustees. Dr. and Mrs. Lord are now in the South. Dr. Lord was vice-president of Dartmouth from 1893 to 1909, and acting president 1892-93 and 1894-95.

Dartmouth men the country over will regret the passing from active teaching of Professor John K. Lord, known as Johnny Lord to generation after generation at the New Hampshire college. It can't seem like the old Dartmouth to many of the older alumni with President Tucker, "Clothespin Dick" Richardson and Johnny Lord no longer holding forth diurnally in the lecture-rooms.

Not long ago two elderly citizens of Hartford chanced to be conversing concerning buildings conspicuous on until the outbreak of the Revolutionary War.

This Jewish Rabbi was, like Dr. Stiles, a gentleman of sterling character, of sincere piety, and of much

We again call your attention to this is a real risk in waiting too long CADILLAC.

Brown, Thomsor

WOMEN INFLUENCE SALES OF AUTOS.

Men Generally Accede to Wishes of Fair Sex Who Now Drive Cars.

Velle Fence Erected.

often one has to put up a deep out his friends, but this ally what is being done at factories in Moline, Ill. Open ways in order out there, but increase in visitors since the new $1,065 Velle six has disviable to enclose the plant ornamental fence and place live lodge at the entrance, in at those interested will be guided and assured of seeing ghts. Moline, Ill. and its fac- in the center of the coun- at agricultural belt. Thous- armers and city folks as well thriving community every the forethought of the Velle is but an evidence of the make each traveler's trip h while.

There is one activity in life in which women already have the full suffrage—in the selection and operation of motor cars. Whether the fair sex has seized the privilege or whether it has been magnanimously granted matters little. The fact remains that in this country women are exercising that privilege to the full—and there are no good reasons why they should not. When the first products of the industry wended their uncertain way over our streets and highways it took courage for a woman to sit behind the wheel. It seemed a bit daring, just a trifle unconventional. Mesdames Custom and Precedent had not been consulted and, aggrieved, these two straight-laced dames shook their grey curls and whispered behind their hands. Fortunately, however, for the development of a great industry and the health, happiness and well being of the people, the matter of woman and the motor car was lifted from the narrow confines of fashion problem and placed securely on the basis of practical common sense—the basis of utility and healthful and enjoyable recreation. It merely became the question "Can she drive a motor car with ease, comfort and safety?"

And thus the answer depended on a development of the motor car along practical lines—the increase in comfort and luxury, the simplifying of control, greater ease of operation and the invention and perfection of such important accessories as the electric lighting and starting systems. All these things were accomplished more and more, women have taken to the motor car with joy and confidence. It is not known how many women drivers there now are in this country, but no statistics are necessary to emphasize the fact that thousands are driving cars. It is a condition all observe every day on the streets of any and every city. And they are good drivers, safe drivers. Just watch one guide a big "six" through the maze of big city traffic and observe with what ease she handles her car. I

graph:—

"We have twenty families of Jews here, almost the only ones in New England, (and perhaps there are not so many more on this Continent.) They have erected a small synagogue in New York, and another at Newport, superbly furnished withinside, at a cost of 2,000 pounds sterling."

This statement ceases to be surprising when we find that seven years later there were no more than a dozen Jewish families in Philadelphia, and that "the first real Jews" settled in New Haven in 1772, of whom there were not enough to constitute a synagogue.

The synagogue-temple at Newport of which Dr. Stiles makes mention, was solemnly dedicated in December, 1763. In another paper Dr. Stiles gives an elaborate description of this edifice and the dedicatory services which he attended. These services, he says, were conducted by Dr. Isaac de Abraham Touro, who was the Rabbi of the Newport Jews from the year 1760 ropriate Exercises.

New Haven, February 19.—The centenary of the consecration of Trinity Episcopal church on the Green will be celebrated with special exercises and services on Monday, which is the exact date of the anniversary.

The church was consecrated by Dr. John Henry Hobart, assistant bishop of New York, on February 21, 1816.

The rectors of Trinity church follow:

Ebenezer Punderson, missionary, B. A. Yale, 1726, 1753-62; Solomon Palmer, missionary, 1763-66; Bela Hubbard, D. D., missionary and rector, B. A. Yale 1758, 1767-1812; Harry Crosswell, D. D., 1815-58; Edwin Harwood, D. D., B. A. University of Pennsylvania 1840, 1857-95; George William Douglas, D. D., B. A. Trinity 1871, 1895-98; Frank Woods Baker, D. D., B. A. Harvard 1881, 1899-1906; Charles Otis Seoville, B. A. Yale 1877, 1908.

smaller room upstairs. After the dinner they sat in the balcony of the main hall and watched the entertainment in a zenana-like seclusion.

The agents from out-of-town were invited to come early so that they could take in the automobile show and

Dinner given Thursday Evening at the Hartford Club by Robert C. Knox, of No. 39 Pearl Street, Insurance Company, to the executive officers of the accident and liability department of the Aetna Life Insurance Company throughout the state and in a covered basket under the guise of "more food" for the first dance. Both dancers were loudly applauded.

DARTMOUTH RESIGNS

The chief feature of the decorations was a huge floral centerpiece, thirty feet long, spelling the word "Aetna." The letters were formed of more than 1,000 pink and white carnations and the background was of ferns and greens. Around the centerpiece, at one large table which ran the entire length of the room, were seated the eighty guests. Under the balcony at one end of the hall was hung the banner which flies from the roof of the Aetna Life building during the daytime.

The entertainment included motion pictures of the officers and employees of the home office and of the Aetna Life delegation which visited the fair at San Francisco last summer. Between the reels of the pictures the dancing exhibitions were given.

While the other guests, including the men of Mr. Knox's office, were dining in the main banquet hall, twenty-five girls employed as stenographers and clerks in the office were guests at a replica of the dinner in a

Hanover, N. H., Feb. 20.—After a service of forty-seven years as a member of the Dartmouth College faculty, Dr. John King Lord, professor of Latin and literature, will retire June 30, it was learned today. His resignation, which was offered on account of the health of his wife, has been accepted by the trustees. Dr. and Mrs. Lord are now in the South. Dr. Lord was vice-president of Dartmouth from 1893 to 1909, and acting president 1892-93 and 1894-95.

Dartmouth men the country over will regret the passing from active teaching of Professor John K. Lord, known as Johnny Lord to generation after generation at the New Hampshire college. It can't seem like the old Dartmouth to many of the older alumni with President Tucker, "Clothespin Dick" Richardson and Johnny Lord no longer holding forth diurnally in the lecture-rooms.

Not long ago two elderly citizens of Hartford chanced to be conversing concerning buildings conspicuous on Main street within their neighborhood.

until the outbreak of the Revolutionary War.

This Jewish Rabbi was, like Dr. Stiles, a gentleman of sterling character, of sincere piety, and of much meet, general agent for Connecticut of the liability department of the Aetna Life Insurance Company, to the agents of the company of his office.

graph:—

"We have twenty families of Jews here, almost the only ones in New England, (and perhaps there are not so many more on this Continent.) They have erected a small synagogue in New York, and another at Newport, superbly furnished withinside, at a cost of 2,000 pounds sterling."

This statement ceases to be surprising when we find that seven years later there were no more than a dozen Jewish families in Philadelphia, and that "the first real Jews" settled in New Haven in 1772, of whom there were not enough to constitute a synagogue.

The synagogue-temple at Newport of which Dr. Stiles makes mention, was solemnly dedicated in December, 1763. In another paper Dr. Stiles gives an elaborate description of this edifice and the dedicatory services which he attended. These services, he says, were conducted by Dr. Isaac de Abraham Touro, who was the Rabbi of the Newport Jews from the year 1760

private Exercises.

New Haven, February 19.—The centenary of the consecration of Trinity Episcopal church on the Green will be celebrated with special exercises and services on Monday, which is the exact date of the anniversary.

The church was consecrated by Dr. John Henry Hobart, assistant bishop of New York, on February 21, 1816.

The rectors of Trinity church follow:

Ebenezer Punderson, missionary, B. A. Yale, 1726, 1753-62; Solomon Palmer, missionary, 1763-66; Bela Hubbard, D. D., missionary and rector, B. A. Yale 1758, 1767-1812; Harry Crosswell, D. D., 1815-58; Edwin Harwood, D. D., B. A. University of Pennsylvania 1840, 1857-95; George William Douglas, D. D., B. A. Trinity 1871, 1895-98; Frank Woods Baker, D. D., B. A. Harvard 1881, 1899-1906; Charles Otis Scofield, B. A. Yale 1877, 1908.

the headlight glare, the Society of Automobile Engineers has for some time paid this matter consideration and recently made a recommendation which offers a natural and simple remedy, without necessitating any sweeping changes in the thousands of cars now owned by private motorists. By properly focusing the electric bulb and bending the lamp supports in such a way as to direct the light rays correctly it is said that the average headlights, as supplied on the better grades of cars, can be rendered practically non-glaring. The S. A. E. recommendation provides that:—

"The headlights should be so arranged that no portion of the reflected beam of light, when measured seventy-five feet or more ahead of the lamps, shall be over forty-two inches above the level surface on which the vehicle stands. Such headlights shall also give sufficient side illumination to indicate any person, vehicle or substantial object ten feet to the side of said motor vehicle at a point ten feet ahead of the lamps."

An inquiry recently made by the "Horseless Age," the automobile trade magazine, of all the states and many of the large cities of the country discloses the fact that at the present time few cities and only five states have any legislation prohibiting the use of dazzling or glaring headlights unless dimmed. The states regulating the use of dazzling headlights are California, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New Jersey and Michigan.

"It needs no argument to establish the desirability of limiting the use of glaring lights," says a writer in the "Horseless Age," "but it has been found that even among cities and states having this legislation there is a wide difference of opinion as to how the evil should be remedied. Some states and cities are satisfied by the mere prohibition of glaring or dazzling lights, leaving to the infinite wisdom of police officers or magistrates the question of what is a dazzling or

One city at least, Peoria, Ill., expressly permits the use of such lamps. They are a great convenience to motorists and when properly used are unobjectionable.

Certain legislation seeks to prevent the dangers of glaring headlights by limiting their elevation. There is no uniformity among such laws as to the degree of elevation desirable, but this is a matter which should be easy to determine and when so determined make a practical basis for anti-glare laws. Its desirable features are that it is easy to determine whether the lights comply with the law without going to court, and compliance with the law is possible by simply tilting the lamps, while moreover, if one doesn't wish to tilt the lamps, it permits the use of any kind of dimmer in which case, of course, there is doubt as to compliance with the law, but the highway commission might pass upon the dimmers, as certain officials do in New Jersey, thus obviating this difficulty.

"One thing further should be noted in regard to the Massachusetts law. It not only limits the use of dazzling rays, as do all other dimming laws, but it also requires motor vehicles to be equipped with lamps of such power that a substantial object may be seen at specified distances in front of and at the side of the car. A majority of the laws requiring lights for motor vehicles are based on the theory that they are only for the purpose of being seen by others. Such laws are necessarily inadequate and this phase of the question, that is, requiring motorists to use lights to distinguish objects on the road, should not be overlooked when endeavoring by legislation to overcome the bad features of dazzling lights."

Problem In Finance.

The big difference between the Hudson super-six at $1,375 and a $5,000 car, is the neat little sum of $3,625 which the buyer allows to remain to his credit in the bank. Beyond this there is really marvelously little difference between the two cars.

smaller room upstairs. After the dinner they sat in the balcony of the main hall and watched the entertainment in a zenana-like seclusion.

The agents from out-of-town were invited to come early so that they into being and the sale of cars followed as a matter of course.

"According to the figures given out by the public roads and rural engineering office in Washington, nearly a quarter of a billion dollars, that is $250,000,000, was spent last year in this country for highway construction and maintenance. Although this means that we now have 247,490 miles of hard-surfaced road, that figure fails to stand out impressively when we realize that there are 200,273,000 miles in the road system of the entire country.

"One feature which impresses the traveler who is used to concrete eastern roads is the futility of building roads whose surfaces are not durable under present traffic. Many states are spending two-thirds as much for maintenance annually as they spend for new roads. Michigan as a pioneer in the concrete road movement is showing the way to permanent roads at the lowest possible cost of yearly upkeep. Good roads construction within the next five years will mean the opening up of territory to the automobile manufacturer and a quicker and cheaper way for the farmers now living in isolated districts to bring their products to market."

COLE CO. SETS PACE FOR SALES

New Eight Finds Much Favor Among Adherents of Multiples.

After a year of general uncertainty throughout the American industrial field, because of financial and material conditions brought about by the European war, it has been gratifying to the manufacturers of motor cars to find that the promised improvement in business predicted for the present year has readily come. Everywhere in the industry things look most hope

DARTMOUTH RESIGNS

Hanover, N. H., Feb. 20.—After a service of forty-seven years as a member of the Dartmouth College faculty, Dr. John King Lord, professor of Latin and literature, will retire June 30, it was learned today. His resignation, which was offered on account of the health of his wife, has been accepted by the trustees. Dr. and Mrs. Lord are now in the South. Dr. Lord was vice-president of Dartmouth from 1893 to 1909, and acting president 1892-93 and 1894-95.

Dartmouth men the country over will regret the passing from active teaching of Professor John K. Lord, known as Johnny Lord to generation after generation at the New Hampshire college. It can't seem like the old Dartmouth to many of the older alumni with President Tucker, "Clothespin Dick" Richardson and Johnny Lord no longer holding forth diurnally in the lecture-rooms.

in a covered basket under the guise of "more food" for the first dance. Both dancers were loudly applauded.

The chief feature of the decorations was a huge floral centerpiece, thirty feet long, spelling the word "Aetna." The letters were formed of more than 1,000 pink and white carnations and the background was of ferns and greens. Around the centerpiece, at one large table which ran the entire length of the room, were seated the eighty guests. Under the balcony at one end of the hall was hung the banner which flies from the roof of the Aetna Life building during the daytime.

The entertainment included motion pictures of the officers and employees of the home office and of the Aetna Life delegation which visited the fair at San Francisco last summer. Between the reels of the pictures the dancing exhibitions were given.

While the other guests, including the men of Mr. Knox's office, were dining in the main banquet hall, twenty-five girls employed as stenographers and clerks in the office were guests at a replica of the dinner in a

Not long ago two elderly citizens of Hartford chanced to be conversing concerning buildings conspicuous on Main street within their recollection but which have been removed to make way for others more substantial and capacious, and Touro Hall was mentioned as once the principal public hall in the city, and the scene of many interesting assembles of former days. There the writer attended that enthusiastic meeting, at which Joseph R. Hawley announced his enlistment and called for volunteers in a speech that created tumultuous applause. It was remembered that a part of that building, which stood on the site now occupied by the Brown, Thomson & Co. edifice, was at one time occupied by the Jews in Hartford as their synagogue, but neither of the two gentlemen could say why "Touro" Hall? or what significance that word "Touro" might have. In the exhaustive paper on "The Jewish People Who Live in Hartford," published in "The Courant" of Sunday, Nov. 28, 1915, that question was answered by a reference to Judah Touro, of New Orleans, among whose numerous and munificent benevolences which won for him the title of "The American Philanthropist," was a gift of $5,000 to the Jews in Hartford for their synagogue. Just when this gift was made does not yet appear, nor when Judah Touro died, but whence Touro Hall derived its name is manifest. Some facts concerning the Touro family may seem worth recalling.

The minister of the Second Congregational Church at Newport, R. I., from 1755 to 1778, was the Rev. Ezra Stiles, D. D., subsequently President of Yale College. Up to the time of the Revolutionary War, Newport was a flourishing community of scarcely less commercial importance than New York. A letter written by him to a Dr. Lardner of London, dated January 20, 1764, contains the following paragraph:—

"We have twenty families of Jews here, almost the only ones in New England, (and perhaps there are not so many more on this Continent.) They have erected a small synagogue in New York, and another at Newport, superbly furnished withinside, at a cost of 5,000 pounds sterling."

This statement ceases to be surprising when we find that seven years later there were no more than a dozen Jewish families in Philadelphia, and that "the first real Jews" settled in New Haven in 1772, of whom there were not enough to constitute a synagogue.

The synagogue-temple at Newport of which Dr. Stiles makes mention, was solemnly dedicated in December, 1763. In another paper Dr. Stiles gives an elaborate description of this edifice and the dedicatory services which he attended. These services, he says, were conducted by Dr. Isaac de Abraham Touro, who was the Rabbi of the Newport Jews from the year 1760

until the outbreak of the Revolutionary War.

This Jewish Rabbi was, like Dr. Stiles, a gentleman of sterling character, of sincere piety, and of much learning. The Diary of Dr. Stiles shows that these two ministers of different faiths were on terms of personal intimacy. It notes their frequent visits, conversations and discussions, and Dr. Stiles' frequent attendance upon the services of worship at the synagogue. For instance, these entries:—"went to the synagogue it being even of the Passover"; and again, "went to the synagogue it being Passover."

This Dr. Isaac Touro died in Jamaica, about 1783. His sons are spoken of as signal benefactors, not only of the synagogue of which their father had been the honored and beloved Rabbi, but of the city of Newport.

The most distinguished of these sons was the Judah Touro, who went to New Orleans, became a wealthy merchant there, served in and was wounded in the battle of New Orleans, and was distinguished for his benefactions, one of which, as has been noted, was his gift to the Jews in Hartford, whence came the name of Touro Hall. He contributed ten thousand dollars toward the erection of the Sinker Hill Monument.

Longfellow's poem on "The Jewish Cemetery at Newport" is prefaced by a note of his visit there in 1852, in which he speaks of it as "a shady nook, at the corner of two dusty, frequented streets, with an iron fence and granite gateway erected at the expense of Mr. Touro, of New Orleans." In the kindly, friendly and cordial relations which existed between that Congregationalist minister and that Jewish Rabbi, one hundred and fifty years ago, and in their mutual respect

CHURCH 100 YEARS OLDS.

Trinity Episcopal, New Haven, to Observe Centennial With Appropriate Exercises.

New Haven, February 19.—The centenary of the consecration of Trinity Episcopal church on the Green will be celebrated with special exercises and services on Monday, which is the exact date of the anniversary.

The church was consecrated by Dr. John Henry Hobart, assistant bishop of New York, on February 21, 1816.

The rectors of Trinity church follow:

Ebenezer Punderson, missionary, B. A. Yale, 1726, 1753-62; Solomon Palmer, missionary, 1763-66; Bela Hubbard, D. D., missionary and rector, B. A. Yale 1758, 1767-1812; Harry Crowell, D. D., 1815-58; Edwin Harwood, D. D., B. A. University of Pennsylvania 1840, 1857-95; George William Douglas, D. D., B. A. Trinity 1871, 1895-98; Frank Woods Baker, D. D., B. A. Harvard 1881, 1899-1906; Charles Otis Seoville, B. A. Yale 1877, 1908.

HUSBANDS AND WIVES MAKE A SWAP OF IT

Mrs. Elton Becomes Mrs.
Carter, Mrs. Carter
Mrs. Elton

Plainville Feb 19.
The Elopement.

AN ECHO OF AN ELOPEMENT.
In the str Mrs. Elton was a sensa Carter-Elton Wedding Occurred in the two ha New Haven. back to Br. An echo of the elopement of Mrs. day afterno Veronica Stone Elton of this city and her mother' Irving B. Carter of Plainville, which and later fo was the talk of this section for a of her husba number of months, found its way into Carter, after the city clerk's office yesterday when nouncement a record of their marriage was return- to his home ed from New Haven. The return forgiving ar states that Irving B. Carter, aged 33, and it was : a bookkeeper of Plainville and Mrs. again" sign l Veronica Stone Elton, aged 34, no oc- seemed to be cupation stated, of Bristol, were mar- both familie: ried in New Haven on Friday, Feb- ward sign thruary 18, by George R. Bradley, a been resume justice of peace. It was on the night of February 18 that the two arrived in Plainville and announced that they had been married. They refused at that time to say where and by whom they had been married. They are now living in Plainville, Carter being employed in the office of his fa- ther's brass foundry.

Southern California, but there was no positive knowledge to that effect. Gossip got busy again with the affairs of Elton and Mrs. Carter, it being said that he was calling on Mrs. Carter.

A Double Divorce.

Finally Mrs. Carter made application for a divorce from Carter and Elton filed papers in a divorce action brought against Mrs. Elton. Statutory grounds were alleged. The divorces were granted at the December term of the superior court of Hartford county. Mrs. Carter got the custody of her child. At the trial it came out that relatives knew of the whereabouts of Carter and that he did not desire to contest the action.

The Expected Happens.

There was no undue excitement when the announcement was made, somewhat belated to be sure, that Elton had married Mrs. Carter. This was taken as a matter of course and the same is true of the announcement that Carter has taken Veronica Stone Elton for his lawfully wedded wife. It is known that Carter has been kept posted on the run of affairs in this section and as soon as the divorce actions were granted he decided to return, bringing the former Mrs. Elton with him as his wife.

Refuses To Be Interviewed.

Carter was courteous to "The Courant" reporter when he requested an interview this afternoon but he said positively that he had nothing to say. When asked where and when the marriage of himself and the former Mrs. Elton took place he said that he did not care to say at present. He did say that he intended to make Plainville his home and that he would resume his place in his father's brass foundry on Monday.

MASON GARFIELD TO WED

Son of Williams College President Will Marry Miss Harriett Winchester Pero To-day

Special Dispatch to The Republican
BOSTON, Friday, February 18.

Mason Garfield, son of President Harry A. Garfield of Williams college and grandson of President James A. Garfield, will marry this afternoon Miss Harriett Winchester Pew, daughter of Gen and Mrs William H. Pew of Salem. The ceremony will be performed in Grace Episcopal church, Salem, by the rector, Rev James P. Franks, who will be assisted by Bishop I. DeWolf Perry of Rhode Island.

Edward Lincoln, son of Mr and Mrs William A. Lincoln of Springfield, will be the best man and the maid of honor will be Miss Marguerite Little, daughter of Mr and Mrs David M. Little of Salem. The ushers will be James and Stanton Garfield, brothers of the groom, and E. I. Bernard and Angus Don, brothers-in-law of the bride. Following the ceremony there will be a wedding feast at the home of the bride's parents at 17 Flint street, Salem.

Mason Garfield '14 was married to Miss Harriet Winchester Pew, daughter of Gen. and Mrs. William H. Pew of Salem at the Grace Episcopal Church of that city last Saturday afternoon. The Rev. James P. Franks, rector of the church performed the ceremony with the assistance of Bishop I. DeWolf Perry of Rhode Island. Edward C. Lincoln '14 acted as best man, and James Garfield '11 and Stanton Garfield '17, together with two brothers-in-law of the bride, were the ushers. Following the ceremony, a wedding feast was held at the home of the bride's parents.

Feb 19 - 1916
Miss Lois Root Goodnow, daughter of Dr. Frank J. Goodnow of Johns Hopkins University, and Mrs. Goodnow and John Van Antwerp MacMurray, son of Mrs. MacMurray of Washington, were married last week Saturday, the Rev. Hugh Birkhead officiating. The bride was attended by her sister, Mrs. Ezra K. Gillet of Pelham Manor, N. Y.; Miss Dorothy Bigelow and Miss Eleanor Goodnow of New York, Miss Ruth Alden of Rochester, N. Y., Miss Ethel MacMurray of Washington, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Frederika Kellogg and Miss Helen Chase of Waterbury. The ushers were David F. Goodnow, brother of the bride; H. Findlay French of Baltimore, J. Butler Wright of Washington, Charles W. Camp of New York, Russell T. Mount of New York and C. Francis McDonald. Miss Lois Root Goodnow, daughter of Dr. Frank Johnson Goodnow, president of John Hopkins University, and Mrs. Goodnow, was married Saturday afternoon to John Van Antwerp MacMurray, first secretary of the American legation in Peking. Dr. and Mrs. Goodnow have a summer home at Norfolk, this state, and are known to many Hartford people.

Miss Dorothy Curtis Jordan, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eben D. Jordan of Boston, and Monroe Douglas Robinson of New York will be married on Saturday, February 19, in Trinity Church, Boston. Mr. Robinson, who is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Robinson of New York, and nephew of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, is a graduate of St. Paul's School in Concord, N. H., of the Harrow School in England and of Harvard University. The engagement was announced on New Year's eve and was of wide interest, as Miss Jordan is prominent in Boston society and well known in New York.

Miss Dorothy Jordan of Boston and Dorothy Robinson Wins Separation in New York, Dec. 10—Dorothy May Jordan yesterday. The court has been granted a separation by Miss Lillian Monroe Douglas Robinson in a suit filed in the Paris courts, dated July 28. The judgment carries with it a property settlement. Before her marriage Mrs. Robinson was Dorothy M. Jordan.

New York, Dec. 10—Monroe Douglas Robinson is a son of Mrs. Corinne Douglas Robinson, a sister of the late Theodore Roosevelt. He married Miss Dorothy May Jordan, daughter of Eben D. Jordan of New York, in 1916. Mrs. Robinson was graduated from Harvard in 1909 and served in France as a nurse in infant.

Miss Eda May Brewer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hill Brewer of Cortland, N. Y., and Fred Frisbie, Woolley of this city were married Tuesday afternoon at the Palms, the winter home of the bride's parents at Winter Park, Fla., the ceremony being performed on the lawn of the estate, which is located on the eastern shore of Lake Osceola. An interesting feature of the wedding was that the officiating clergyman was Rev. Dr. George Morgan Ward of Lowell, Mass., a former president of Rollins College, Fla., which the bride attended several years ago. During the winter, Dr. Ward is in charge of the Palm Beach Union Church. The best man was Robert L. Brewer of Cortland, N. Y., brother of the bride. Miss Theresa Robinson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Robinson of Orlando, Fla., was the flower girl and Miss Valerie Veasey of Haverhill, Mass., who was the bride's only attendant, was the maid of honor. Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the house. The bride, who attended Rollins College, where she was a member of the K. E. Society, is a graduate of Smith College.

Mrs. Arthur G. Woolley entertained at bridge Friday afternoon at her home in Prospect avenue for Mrs. Fred Frisbie Woolley of New York, who was in town to attend the marriage of Miss Elsa Morgan John and Leonard Welles Frisbie Thursday afternoon. Mrs. Woolley was formerly Miss Eda May Brewer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hill Brewer of Courtland, N. Y., and her marriage to Fred Woolley took place Tuesday, February 28, at the winter home of the bride's parents in Winter Park, Fla.

Mr. and Mrs. William C. Russell of Prospect avenue.

Feb 19 - 1916 - Miss Carolyn May Woolley of Tremont street, daughter of George H. Woolley and Edgar Toll Glass of New Britain, were married last evening at 8 o'clock at the home of the bride's brother, Arthur G. Woolley, No. 645 Prospect avenue. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. John Brownlee Voorhees, pastor of the Asylum Hill Congregational Church in the presence of about 100 guests. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was attended by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Arthur G. Woolley, as matron of honor, and by two flower girls, Miss Adele Woolley, niece of the bride and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Clarence Woolley of West Haven, and Miss Roxanna Beardsley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy E. Beardsley of this city. The best man was Joseph J. Glass of New Britain, brother of the bridegroom and the ushers were Fred Frisbie Woolley of this city, Herbert H. Pease, Yale '02, and Howard Lee Platt, both of New Britain and Lebeus Farmer Bissell of Rockville, Yale '04. The house was decorated with palms and smilax. The bride's dress was of white with crystal embroidery and trimmed satin with duchess lace. She wore a tulle veil caught with orange blossoms and trimmed with lace and she carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and white orchids. The matron of honor wore a dress of turquoise blue tulle and lace over silver cloth and she carried an arm bouquet of American Beauty roses. The flower girls wore taffeta frocks, one being of pink and one of blue, and they carried baskets of pink rosebuds, white sweet peas and forget-me-nots. Hatch's Orchestra played the bridal march from "Lohengrin" and also furnished music for the reception which followed and which was attended by about 200 guests. The bridegroom's gift to the bride was a diamond and pearl pin set in platinum and the bride gave to the matron of honor a platinum pin set with diamonds and sapphires. To the flower girls, she gave pearl pins and the bridegroom's gifts to the ushers were jade cuff links. Mr. and Mrs. Glass will take a wedding trip to Lake Placid, Essex county, N. Y., where they will spend some time at the Lake Placid.

APRIL 25, 1920. A son was born yesterday to Mr. and Mrs. Edgar T. Glass of West End Scientific School avenue, New Britain. Mrs. Glass was formerly Miss Carolyn Woolley of this city. Mr. Glass, Yale '04, is sales manager of the tractor division of the New Britain Machine Company.

Hartford friends of Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Tolles Glass of New Britain, formerly of this city, have received announcement of the birth of a daughter to them, October 24. Mrs. Glass was, before her marriage, Miss Caroline Woolley, of this city.

Feb 25 - 1916 - Miss Julia E. Tyler of Irving street and Charles G. Spencer of this city were married yesterday morning at 9:30 o'clock at Christ Church by Rev. John F. Roschbaum, assistant rector of the church. They were attended by Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Bradbury. After the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Spencer left for a short wedding trip.

March 28, 1916.

A. L. Hills Buys Boardman

Property on Asylum St.;

Price About $179,000

Mr and Mrs William E. Sparrow

Feb 19 Have Been Married 55 Years

The tran street real mated, it
The real e known Bo men buying
No. 32 De
Gold of No.
are brother of the Co
on North of the prop
the agencie Company, .
I. Mayer.

Owing to not been c in it declin
seph H. Go negotiation was unprep
he would c he acquired cently acqu neighborho and a two-ing real es
If the de confident it have posses property be month.

The Wil
Company ov
ent. Thoma of the com
the deal, la
The agen
been learned tic sources,
he paid is $

BOARDMAN
SOL

Block on Change
Abo

Feb 2
A. L. Hills

man property
story brownst
302 and 304
two-story bui
garage in the r Realty Compan
$100,000. Mr.
dent of the H
would not say tion would be n

The Boardman
of fifty-two feet six feet. The fifty-four feet at the rear where six by ninety-s located the other has a floor space of 29,376 feet. The Boardman Company occupies about two-thirds of the floor space in the block, with a store on the first floor.
The company will erect a building on property which it recently bought at Edwards and Walnut streets, and will occupy its present quarters until this is finished.

Palmyre, N. J., February 21.— Eddie Collins, star second baseman of the Chicago White Sox and formerly a member of the Philadelphia Athletics, $100,000 infield, made a home run hit before 500 persons who heard him break into the Gospel Team league yesterday afternoon in his first venture as a platform speaker. The audience applauded like world's series fans when he handed booze some wallops that would have done credit to Billy Sunday.

Hard Wallops.
Hands the Booze Bazaars Some First Appearance in New League

EDDIE COLLINS JUMPS.

to keep them."
faults, but if I cannot, we don't want able to separate them from those eliminate. I have hopes of being a fault which it may take weeks to pitchers. Each of the youngsters has essential for us to go scouting for of value to us, it will not be nec-

New York, February 21.—The announcement that Charley White, otherwise known as Eagle Eye Charley, selected to referee the tend round bout between Jess Willard and Frank Moran at Madison Square Garden, New York, has met with general favor in sporting circles.
The veteran's selection will lend a touch of the old atmosphere to a match that is imprregnated with modern commercialism. In a bout referee ceases to be a minor factor. Once the opening gong has sounded, the contest is in his hands, and he can do much to make or mar
the spectacle which in this case will cost the spectators close to $100,000.
Even though it will not come within

Here in Hartford.
Referee—Has Acted As Referee
Boxing World Approves of Big Fight

EAGLE-EYE CHARLEY.

have all my life pulled for to win a in my own home state and one I should have suited me better, a city club. I know of no place that with my assignment to the Cinclun-de says: "I am very much pleased with his engagement by the Reds."

New Haven, Feb. 25.—The John Hubbard Curtis prize at Yale, which provides an income from $2,500, was awarded tonight to Morris Hadley, son of President A. T. Hadley of the university. This is the second cash prize young Hadley has won within a week.
The prize tonight was one that is given each year for excellency in lit-terature work.

Photograph by L. Fabian Bachrach.

MRS. BURTON W. BOLLES.

Mrs. Burton W. Bolles is a prominent member of the younger married set. Before her marriage she was Miss Eunice Strong. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Strong of Wethersfield.

RTFORD DAILY TIMES, TUESDAY,

Eight Pieces of Valuable Real Estate Figure in Big Transfer Made To-day, Involving $350,000

A. L. Hills Turns Over Asylum Street Business Block to Nicolo Carabillo as Part Payment for Seven New Apartment Houses—Largest Transaction of Year.

In a property transfer in which about $350,000 was involved, A. L. Hills this afternoon turned over to Nicolo Carabillo, a builder, his six-story business block at Nos. 300-304 Asylum street; and Mr. Carabillo transferred to Mr. Hills seven pieces of property in the city, all high class apartment houses. The Asylum street building was given as part payment for the apartments, and Mr. Hills also paid a cash consideration to Mr. Carabillo.

One apartment is at No. 581 Farmington avenue, one at No. 82 Tremont street, one at No. 84 Tremont street, three on Sherman street, at Nos. 2, 2½, and 11½, and one is at No. 122 Garden street. With all the buildings there are private garages for each apartment. All have been built within the past two years by Mr. Carabillo.

The Asylum street building, which Mr. Hills purchased from the Boardmans about a year ago, fronts fifty-four feet on Asylum street and is 207 feet deep, containing two stores on the first floor, and business offices upstairs. Mr. Carabillo intends to alter the premises at once. The stores, which are now a few feet above the sidewalk level, will be lowered to the sidewalk. Also a large garage will be constructed in the rear, and other alterations will be made to suit tenants.

The transfer was made through the agency of Harris, Cone and Harris of the Pilgard building, and is one of the largest local realty transactions this year.

United
 Feb 23 - 1916
 Colonel Daniel Appleton, N. G. S.
 N. Y., having reached the age of 61, is expected to retire on Wed-

Miss Eunice Barnard Strong, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry B. Strong of Wethersfield, and Burton Watson Bolles, son of Mrs. Theodore B. Dick-

61

SUNDAY, MARCH 5, 1916.

LOW MEN (AND W

By ORSON LOWELL

as young on her fiftieth anniversary as some would expect to find her on her fifth.

Feb 25 - 1916
 Colonel William C. Skinner gave a dinner at his new apartments in the Allyn House on Friday evening.
 Among those present were Mr. and Mrs. Morgan G. Bulkeley, Miss
 Houghton, Dr. and Mrs. Phineas H.
 Ingalls, Mr. and Mrs. Louis R. Chaney and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Trumbull
 of New York.

white and green cloth and smilax and palms and boxwood plants decorated the large room.
 Many handsome gifts were received by the young couple. The bride's gift to her maid of honor was a coral pendant and to her bridesmaids gold bracelets. The groom's gift to his best man was a silver cigarette case, and to his ushers leather bill folders.

Mr. and Mrs. Bolles left last evening for a month's honeymoon trip, and on their return will live at No. 445 Farmington avenue, Hartford.

be :30
 res-nds
 a
 the te-on 8 less ter urd

 .on ere
 :30
 rs-
 te,
 the er
 and er-ecrch ord
 a sts en-dal
 en-
 the ver
 of
 of ver.
 ght ied
 he-liss wn,
 ore
 and lace hat an eas.
 sis-uth des-aper
 and
 and getmes
 and ong,
 ease,
 eve-

the held
 -ford
 e on ouse ball was
 The elec-
 pink,

Priest Who Lived Here for Years Goes to Middle- bury Parish.

W. J. Judge
Rev. William J. Judge, a native of Seattle and well known in this city,
has been nominated to the parish of the Cross in Middlebury. He has been formerly clerk of the mission. Father
Judge came from St. Paul in 1888 and entered the High School graduated from high school student and classes.

After his school Father Scottish University for Company for the priesthood in University in remained or transferred Worcester,
three years.
He then entered Seminary at St. Paul and took a four year course, being graduated in 1900.

Father Judge was ordained to the priesthood by the late Bishop Michael.

Rev. William J. Judge.

REDFIELD PROPERTY ONCE GOV. HUBBARD'S

Former Governor Owned Land Sold to C. J. Dillon and Packard Co.

Feb 28 1916
The property at the northeast corner of Park and Washington streets, which has been bought by Charles J.
Dillon and the Packard Automobile Company from Colonel Henry S. Redfield, formerly belonged to Governor Richard D. Hubbard, and the house next north of that bought by Mr. Dillon was at one time his home.
The Hubbard house, which is at No.
140 Washington street, has been retained by the Hubbard family, being the home of Arthur K. Brocklesby, son-in-law of Richard D. Hubbard, but the land to the north, which has now been bought by Mr. Dillon and the Packard Automobile Company, was sold years ago to the father of Colonel Redfield, the late Henry A. Redfield, president of the Phoenix Mutual National Bank, who built the home at No. 144 Washington street which is now sold to Mr. Dillon and where Colonel Redfield lived for a number of years.

Mr. Dillon will occupy his new home this week. The Packard Automobile Company will use the land south of the house for a garage and showroom.
Each of the purchasers bought seventy-five feet on Washington street.
The land extends back from Washington street 245 feet.

GILLETTE'S STAGE CAREER WILL END IN CITY OF BIRTH Noted Hartford Actor Com- ing Here for His Final Appearance.

William Gillette is coming back to his old home town to make his final appearance on the stage. He comes to the Parsons Theater on Friday and Saturday, February 25 and 26, to present his two famous successes, "Sherlock Holmes" and "Secret Service." His performance on Saturday night of "Secret Service," he says, is the last he will give.

Mr. Gillette began his present tour, which, it was announced, would be his farewell, in New York last autumn.

GILLETTE LEAVES FOR SCREEN WORK

Will Appear in "Sherlock Holmes," Followed By
"Secret Service."

William Gillette left the home of Mrs. Charles Dudley Warner, No. 57
Forest street, where he stayed during the two days which he spent in this city, yesterday morning, after closing his stage career with a performance of "Secret Service" at the Parsons Theater on Saturday evening.
He went direct to New York to close the contract for his engagement for the "movies," through which medium he will perpetuate his two greatest theatrical successes, "Sherlock Holmes" and "Secret Service."

The two plays will be produced by the Essanay Company and released as multiple-reel features on the V. L. S.
E. program. Although the contract has not yet been definitely closed, the "New York Morning Telegraph" says that he has already begun work for "Sherlock Holmes," which will be his first release. "Secret Service" will follow soon after. Mr. Gillette has never before consented to adapt to pictures the plays which he wrote and made famous in playing the leading roles.

Winchell Smith of Farmington and William Gillette, who made his farewell appearance at Parsons's theater, Saturday evening, were among the 300 guests at the dinner given Sunday evening at the Waldorf As-toria in New York in honor of William H. Crane, who will complete his fifty-third year as an actor in a few weeks. Daniel Frohman was toastmaster and the speakers included
Mr. Crane, Henry Miller, Dr. Nicholas
Murray Butler, George Ade and Melville E. Stone. Among those at the principal table were David Belasco, Dudley Field Malone, Joseph Cawthorn, Leo Ditrichstein, Major-General Leonard Wood, William Winter, George M. Cohan, General Horace
Porter, Sam H. Harris, William Courtleigh, Jefferson Winter, Charles Burnham and Victor Herbert.

WILLIAM GILLETTE

OF NOTED FAMILY

His Father Was United States Senator.

William Gillette, who will make his farewell appearance at the Parsons Theater next week, has literary ability by inheritance. He was born and reared in Hartford. The traditions of the family, however, were remote from those which would enkindle dramatic interest. Mr. Gillette's father, who had served in the United States Senate and had been a candidate for governor of Connecticut, was a man of great piety, and in his latter years especially distinguished himself by his advocacy of the doctrine that animals have souls. By marriage the family was connected with Henry Ward Beecher. Mrs. Harriet Beecher Stowe was a near neighbor. Mark Twain was another close neighbor.

But, as he told an audience at the Center Church House last year, his father was of the opinion that the theater was not immoral, providing Shakespeare was played. Accordingly, as a boy, he witnessed every performance of the works of that great bard and saw mighty little else. One day, struck by a happy thought, and the announcement that "Colle'en Bawn" was to be played, he resurrected an old and timeworn engraving of William Shakespeare from the attic, with his printing press neatly imprinted under it the legend "Shakespeare Writing 'Colle'en Bawn'." He stained the whole with coffee and dust to enhance its appearance of antiquity, and, with it as prima facie evidence, besought permission and money to witness the play.

"I was allowed to go," he said, "as I later found out, not because my father was in the least misled, but because of my colossal gall."

Mr. Gillette was still a student at Yale when he made his first appearance on the stage at New Orleans in Oliver Doud Byron's production of "Across the Continent." He was only a boy at the time and he had been taken on as "general utility man" without compensation. After a couple of weeks he made bold to suggest to the manager of the company that he would not be averse from having his name put on the salary role and he was promptly informed that his services would be dispensed with entirely.

Determined to become an actor, and not discouraged by this first unhappy experience, he tried again in Boston in the autumn of the same year—it was 1875—and at last secured the small part of Guzman in "Faint Heart Ne'er Won Fair Lady" at the Globe Theater. Then, through the influence of Mark Twain, he got a part in "The Gilded Age" (a dramatization of Twain's novel of that title) at the Boston Museum. He remained at that house for some time, appearing in several minor Shakespearean roles. Then he joined Ben Macaulay's stock company at Louisville and Cincinnati and in the spring of 1877 he made his first appearance in New York at the New Park Theater as the prosecuting attorney in "The Gilded Age."

Meantime he had been busy with his pen, too, and in 1881 his first play, "The Professor," was produced at the Madison Square Theater, New York, he himself appearing in the title role. In 1884 he produced "The Private Secretary" (taken from a German source and first called "Digby's Secretary") at the Comedy Theater, New York, and it scored his first real success as an actor. Two years later he presented his famous war play "Held by the Enemy," at the n, and saw or recogni-

William Gillette.

e, though, row of his wife whose large a fac- his grief re- and he was stage for came back when he he took s of several "Too Much ade his re- at the Stan- in 1894. And completed was "Secret proved his red in this reater, New has appear- irable Crich- Clarice" and by him from ago he made f five of his nes," "Secret nemy," "Too Much Johnson, and "The Private Secretary." Last season he was seen here at the Parsons Theater with Blanche Bates and Marie Doro in a revival of "Diplomacy."

Only a year ago Mr. Gillette was elected a member of the American Academy of Arts and Letters—an honor that has been bestowed upon only one other playwright, Augustus Thomas.

Former Hartford Man Becomes Assistant Manager of U. S. Cart-ridge Company Plant.

Y. S. 1916
Edwin R. Gilbert, son of Charles E. Gilbert, secretary of the Aetna Life Insurance company, has recently been appointed assistant manager of the United States Cart-ridge company, of Lowell, Mass., which is turning out 2,000,000 cart-ridges a day and employs 8,000 persons.

Mr. Gilbert started his career with the old Hartford Street Rail-way company, and also was identi-fied with the construction of sev-eral electric roads in the middle west. Prior to his recent appoint-ment he was secretary of the R. H. Phillips Engineering company, c Boston, in systematizing large mar-ufacturing plants.

WILLIAM GILLETTE.

Mr. Gillette has found time be- tween engagements to indulge in re-creation and it runs to houseboating in the summer, his Polly Ann being a familiar draft to residents along the lower reaches of the Connecti- cut river. A few years ago it was reported that he had bought a large island opposite Deep River, but he denied it.

Mary R. St. Clair.

Feb-23.

Israel Putnam

Essays -

Prizes given

Putnam

HEROES IN THEIR MINISTRY

During the French war he was made captain of a regiment of Connecticut provincials. He was so popular that it was easy to get recruits for his company, whose duty was waylaying convoys of provisions, surprising pickets, and capturing detached posts. He was in an expedition to capture Crown Point, and drive the French from Lake Champlain and Lake George. It was a failure. He failed in this. The campaign of 1756 was to reduce Crown Point, Niagara, and Fort Duquesne. Putnam seemed possessed of the qualities required in the peculiar service of harassing the enemy, and stood high in the estimation of his commander. In 1757 the Legislature of Connecticut gave Putnam a major's commission.

Putnam was of great help in the disastrous siege of Ticonderoga, covering the retreat of the British by giving ground slowly.

Once when trying to cut off a retreat he fell into an ambush and discharged his pistol at a big Indian. But it failed, brought with him a major-general's commission for Putnam. During this time the Declaration of Independence was signed.

Putnam had command at the Battle of Long Island, and being forced to retreat saved his division by strategy. After the fall of Fort Washington, and the retreat through New Jersey, he was stationed at Philadelphia, to complete some defenses, as the British had begun a campaign against it. He then went to Princeton to take command. From there he was sent to the Highlands, and fought several battles with the British in the vicinity of the Hudson River, and he established a fort at West Point which bears his name.

In 1777 and 1778 he was in Connecticut raising recruits to strengthen Washington's army, and was stationed at various points in western Connecticut.

While on a visit to his home he had a stroke of paralysis, and was unable to return to the army. He died in Brooklyn, Conn., May 19, 1790.

SECOND PRIZE ESSAY.

Israel Putnam.

(By Marcella Putnam.)

Israel Putnam, son of Joseph Putnam and great grandson of John Putnam who came from England in 1634; was born in Old Salem, now Danvers, Massachusetts, January 7, 1718. When he was twenty-one he married Hannah Pope and the next year moved to Pomfret, Connecticut, in that part of the town now called Brooklyn.

For the next fifteen years he worked on his farm in Pomfret, and though he prospered had many adventures, for the country was new and unsettled. One of his most famous exploits was with an old wolf which had been killing sheep in the neighborhood. The nam plowing in his field. Sending word to his wife that he had gone, he unhitched his horses and mounting one of them started for Cambridge. In twenty-four hours he was there; a journey of one hundred miles.

The Connecticut Legislature made him a brigadier general and he was given command of the Connecticut troops by Jonathan Trumbull, governor of our state. General Putnam was in command at the Battle of Bunker Hill.

On July 3, 1776, General Washington arrived at Cambridge and took command of the army, bringing with him, for Israel Putnam, the first major general's commission conferred by the Continental Congress. Putnam was

ALBERT DAY PUTNAM
First Prize

that it just makes a man sorry-like that he didn't thing and cigarette rolling stunt a-while-ago.
time quick as the joy us goodness of gets firm set into his happiness divid process fixes that—and cuts out bite Men, it's so easy to get on the right ahead-action—and the ride only s 10c—that it sure is due you, due you easy to change the e and color of unsal

e Albert tidy red lin atch your step!

SIMPLE WEDDING IN TRINITY

March 1 — 1916
Marriage of Miss Elizabeth Prescott Bigelow to Dr. Frank Martin of Baltimore

Miss Elizabeth Prescott Bigelow, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Prescott Bigelow of 16 Marlboro street, was quietly married at three o'clock this afternoon at Trinity Church to Dr. Frank Martin, of Baltimore, Md. The engagement of Miss Bigelow to Dr. Martin was announced only recently, and, while it had been planned to have a wedding which was not to be in the least elaborate, even these plans were changed to make the occasion just as simple as a wedding may be, owing to the death on Sunday, Feb. 20, of Miss Bigelow's younger brother, David N. Bigelow.

Because of the wide acquaintance of Miss Bigelow and her parents, there is general interest in her marriage, despite the fact that only her relatives and those of Dr. Martin and a very small number of intimate friends were invited to be present, making a company of about fifty in all. They entered the church by the Clarendon street door as the main part of the church was not used.

Ernest Mitchell, organist at Trinity, played a few quiet, appropriate selections, besides the familiar "Lohengrin" music, upon the entrance of the bride, and the Mendelssohn "Wedding March" at the close of the ceremony. Dr. Ridgely Warfield and Waldo W. Keith, both of Baltimore, informally served as ushers.

Miss Bigelow was escorted by her father, who gave her in marriage. She wore a conventional bridal costume, planned before bereavement came to the family. The gown was of white satin and rich lace and had a court train of tulle combined with silver. The bridal veil was of lace and the bouquet which the bride carried was formed of orchids and lilies of the valley.

The bride's only attendant was a maid of honor, Miss Hope Malcolm of New York who has been a house guest at the Bigelow family home. Miss Malcolm wore a gown of blue taffeta, overdraped with mauve and blue tulle, and a hat also of mauve and blue tulle trimmed with blue ostrich tips. She carried a bunch of mauve-colored orchids.

After the ceremony, which was performed by Rev. Alexander Mann, D. D., rector of Trinity, the bridal party and the few who had witnessed the marriage went to the home of the bride's parents, where an informal reception was held, which took on the character of an afternoon tea. Dr. Martin, who was a widower, is a leading surgeon in Baltimore and he and his bride are to live in that city, where his home is on Cathedral street. He is a graduate of the University of Maryland and a member

March 1 — 1917
Miss Helen Jose

ter of Mr. and Mrs. The Rev. C. Arthur Lincoln was installed pastor of King's Highway Congregational church, Brooklyn, N. Y., Sunday, by a council of churches. The sermon was preached by President King of Oberlin college, moderator of the National council of Congregational churches, and addresses were made by the Rev. Dr. Nehemiah Boynton, the Rev. Hubert C. Herring, secretary of the National council and the Rev. Dr. J. Percival Hugst, pastor of the Tompkins Avenue Congregational church. Mr. Lincoln is well known in this city, being a graduate of Amherst college and the Hartford Theological seminary. Until recently he was pastor of the First Congregational church in Buffalo, N. Y. at home after May 15, at No. 89 Atwood street.

REV. C. A. LINCOLN CALLED TO BUFFALO

65

Had Been Minister at Lowell, Mass. Church.

Rev. C. Arthur Lincoln of this city, until recently pastor of the Kirk Street Congregational Church, Lowell, Mass., has accepted the unani-of the First Buffalo, N. or and will e March 1.

large edi- of the city, onal church the strong- mination in outside New her of sev- ity of Buf- ed there on the call was yesterday Dr. members of ch, came to and made th Mr. Lin- himself and Lincoln will the Buffalo ho has been e years and emeritus.

n is consid- teachers and ministers in rch in New the pastorate October last

Rev. C. Arthur Lincoln.

JUNE 7, 1916.

Installation of Rev. C. A. Lincoln

Rev. C. Arthur Lincoln, formerly of this city, was installed yesterday as pastor of the First Congregational Church of Buffalo, N. Y. The service was delivered by Rev. Dr. Rockwell Harmon Potter, pastor of the Center Church, and the installings, where he prayer was by Rev. Dr. Frank S. Fitch, pastor emeritus of the church, Mr. Lincoln's predecessor. Rev. Dr. Charles G. Williams of Oberlin, O., a personal friend of Mr. Lincoln's, made the address to the pastor and others who participated in the service were Rev. L. L. Taylor of Canandaigua and Rev. A. L. Griener, daughter of and Rev. I. G. Rogers of Buffalo.

Frederick R. Bates of this city, and George Turner Bates of this city, formerly of Boston, and a graduate of Trinity College in the class of 1912, were married yesterday afternoon at 1 o'clock at Trinity Church. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Ernest DeF. Miel, rector of the church, in the presence of about fifty relatives and friends. The best man was Harry G. Woodbury of Boston and the bride, who was unattended, was given in marriage by her uncle, Hubert B. Tracy of Cone street. Following the ceremony, there was an informal reception for a few friends at the home of the bride's father, after which Mr. and Mrs. Bates left for a wedding trip. They will live in this city.

March LENOX 1.1916
 Several from Lenox attended the wedding yesterday at the church of the Heavenly Rest in New York of Miss Margaret Auchmuty Mackay of New York and Lenox and Very Rev Frederick Warren Beekman, dean of the Protestant cathedral at Bethlehem, Pa. The officiating clergymen were Rt Rev Ethelbert Talbot, bishop of Bethlehem; Rt Rev William Lawrence, bishop of Massachusetts, who pronounced the benediction, and Rev Herbert Shipman, rector of the church. The bride was unattended. The best man was John Freezer, dean of the univ

MR. FOX'S GIFT.

SCHREYER PAINTING

A large and important painting by Adolf Schreyer, presented to the Wadsworth Atheneum by Moses Fox, was accepted by the trustees at their meeting Thursday morning. It will be hung in the gallery of the Morgan Memorial today, being on view to the public in Hartford for the first time. It is hung in the west gallery.

The canvas, which is large, and handsomely framed, is in Schreyer's customary style, in that it shows Arab

Schreyer Painting At Morgan Memorial

Plato is Travelers a of people many years

Mr. Plato
 March 3, 1
 here. He October 30,
 one of who
 to equal his been with t Company fe
 elder Mr. Pl
 Case, Lock and is a m Talcott Stre with which more than 1

One of th
 ishes is the blizzard of spent three street build James G. I
 the company
 procure foo stay by sally taurant.

A Messenger Travelers Insurance Co.
 ployee of the
 by all his fellow workmen as the presentation of this cane has proven. He is not even thinking of quitting his job, though he does not hope to keep it sixty-eight years more.

ALFRED I. PLATO.

painter of hor Wallachia and incidents. His its excellent ec for his power c ful statement.

Of his battle in the Schwei
 the collection
 Pouilly and i Berlin. The owns three o
 all oriental; an
 tures are in th
 bilt, J. J. Astor
 and W. Walter ter of gift fro

DEACON A. I. PLATO GETS LOVING CUP

Alfred I. Plato, who has been a deacon at the Talcott Street Congregational Church for forty years, received a silver loving cup at a gathering of members and friends in the church last evening. The occasion was his seventy-first birthday. Rev.
 James A. Wright, pastor of the church, presented the cup, on behalf of the members. Theodore A. Lane, who has served as deacon for thirty years, and Rev. R. R. Ball, pastor of the M. E. Zion Church on Pearl street, spoke. Mrs. Elizabeth Minor entertained with soprano solos and Augustus Lawson rendered piano selections.

To the Truste
 Atheneu
 Gentlemen:

May I ask y a painting by sent to the Ath
 give to you in tr
 and mother. Ge late of Harfite
 derstand that j
 Morgan Galleri
 He
 Trusting this g accepting this g
 Yours

PLATO 71 TO-DAY.

Alfred I. Plato, the colored man who has been in the en-
 ployed for many years in the lobby of the Travelers Insurance Co.'s home office and directed visitors to the people they wanted to see there, was 71 years old to-day.
 He received birthday greetings from about everybody that entered the

MARCH 3, 1916.

United
Judge and Mrs. A. Heaton Robertson of New Haven have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Mabel Joy Robertson, to James Inslee Coddington of New York. Mr.
Coddington was graduated from Yale university in the class of 1908 and is a son of the late Colonel Clifford Coddington and a direct descendant of William Coddington, first governor of Rhode Island. The

March 4, 1916.
An important although quiet wedding took place this afternoon at 4

Mrs. William Strong Cushing of Simsbury will be one of the attendants at the wedding of Miss Gladys Mackay-Smith, daughter of the late Bishop Alexander Mackay-Smith and Mrs. Mackay-Smith, and William Bell Watkins of New York, which will take place at St. John's Episcopal Church,

P. B. GALE BUYS LAND ON TALCOTT MOUNTAIN

Charming New Home in Whitney Street

Machine Screw
nt Gets New
ner Home.

Feb. 1916,
He, president of the
ine Screw Company,
y afternoon the sum-Oliver Posfay of New located on the crest of ain directly adjoining urtis H. Veeder, presi-veeder Manufacturing ie property includes
s. Mr. Gale paid about e property and will oc-ual house as a summer provements have been he property bought by

MR. AND MRS. ALFRED I. PLATO are among the oldest and most prominent of the colored residents of Hartford. Mr. Plato who was born in this city seventy-three years ago, has been in the employ of the Travelers Insurance Company for thirty-four years, first as janitor and for the past twenty years as the courteous messenger so well known to the Hartford public.
music.

VIRGINIA MACKAY-SMITH

Virginia Mackay-Smith, the beautiful daughter of the late Rev. Alexander Mackay-Smith of Washington, has been reported engaged to Captain Boy-Ed, the naval attache of the German Embassy just dismissed by President Wilson. Her family denies the report.

CADY TO SUCCEED WHITING AS MEMBER OF POLICE BOARD

March 1912
Announcement

Ernest Hyde Cady

Ernest Hyde Cady, the newly ap-born in Norwich, Conn., June 19, 1873, the son of former Lieutenant-Governor Ernest Cady. He came to Hartford when 4 years old and was graduated from the Hartford Public High School, following which he was graduated from the Sheffield Scientific School of Yale University in 1895.
He is superintendent of the pay-roll audit division of the Travelers Insurance Company and a member of the Hartford Club, the Hartford Golf Club and the Century Club. His home is at No. 264 North Whitney street. Like his predecessor, he is a democrat.

Mayor Frank A. Hagarty's appointment of Ernest H. Cady as police commissioner to succeed W. H.
C. Whiting, resigned, was confirmed by the board of aldermen last night by a unanimous vote. Announcement of Commissioner Whiting's resignation and the appointment of his successor came as a complete surprise to the members of the council, as the news had not been made public previously. President Newton
C. Brainard presided, in the absence of Mayor Hagarty.

ERNEST H. CADY.

New Police Commissioner.

BLAKE-McCOWAN WEDDING

March 4/1916
Ceremony at Christ Church With Reception at Bride's Home, on Buckingham Street Springfield

One of the early March weddings took place BLAKE-NEEDHAM WEDDING of Mr and Aug 26, 1916
Blake on PALMS AND HYDRANGEAS
their daugh

son Blake, Used in Attractive Decorations of Downe McC Bride's Home on Buckingham
William J. M Street, Where Ceremony Was
The ceremo Performed Last Evening o'clock by I

former ass One of the late summer weddings
church, who took place last evening at the home
copal servic of Mr and Mrs William Ellsworth about 150 re Blake on Buckingham street, when young coupl their daughter, Miss Margaret Webb

The bride Blake, became the bride of Lester
Mrs James I Ward Needham, son of Mr and Mrs ton, Ill., as William H. Needham of North street.
stead of the The ceremony was performed at 7.30
maids, six f o'clock by Rev Edmund R. Laine, act- ed as aisle g ing rector of St Peter's church, who Mildred Gro read the double ring Episcopal serv- Miss Dorothe ice.
garet Blake.

Leonard Atw Hydrangeas were used extensively Alfred Has and six came f ed
scended fr on Saturdays.
strains of the first five days of hengrin." I August our office George Bl station.
white rop HOD. Our work fern, with HT, as we use the
for the r examine eyes and were follow when necessary.
C. McCow dal veil of t after whor with orang
or and, las cap effect
by her fat ental lace.
living roon cent of be best man. gift-of the Mr Alexan bouquet w
The bri sweet peas
white satin Immedia
with trimm a reception
upon the Cowan bei fichu on t Blake and train, falli Cowan. M of satin, a black lace
cap sleeve with trimm mousqueta Cowan app
dal veil of t with silver with orang the recepti
cap effect ing there ental lace. monic orch cent of be dancing, d gift-of the cleared. F bouquet w Mrs McCow
sweet peas trip, and u Immedia at Highlan
a reception be at home
Cowan bei the second
Blake and was set ap
Cowan. M ding gifts, black lace silver, pict
with trimm eral gifts of Cowan app gold. In addition to these with silver there was a mahogany chime clock
the recepti from the Springfield safe deposit and ing there trust company, where Mr McCowan is monic orch her.
dancing, d

The bri
white satin
with trimm
upon the fichu on t train, falli of satin, a cap sleeve mousqueta
dal veil of t
with orang
cap effect
ental lace.
cent of be gift-of the bouquet w sweet peas Immedia
a reception
Cowan bei
Blake and Cowan. M
black lace
with trimm
Cowan app
with silver
the recepti
ing there
monic orch
dancing, d cleared. F
Mrs McCow
trip, and u at Highlan
be at home
the second was set ap ding gifts,
silver, pict
eral gifts of gold. In addition to these
there was a mahogany chime clock
from the Springfield safe deposit and trust company, where Mr McCowan is her.

Immedia
a reception
Cowan bei
Blake and Cowan. M
black lace
with trimm
Cowan app
with silver
the recepti
ing there
monic orch
dancing, d
cleared. F
Mrs McCow
trip, and u
at Highlan
be at home
the second
was set ap ding gifts,
silver, pict
eral gifts of
gold. In addition to these
there was a mahogany chime clock
from the Springfield safe deposit and trust company, where Mr McCowan is
her.

Engagement of Miss Grace Temple Olmstead, Recently Back from Europe to Oliver Wolcott Roosevelt

Feb-1916
The engagement is announced of Miss Grace Temple Olmstead, daughter of Mrs.
Chauncey Olmstead of West Brookfield, to Oliver Wolcott Roosevelt, eldest son of the late Dr. J. West Roosevelt. Miss Olmstead has been studying painting in England and Paris for the past four years and during the latter part of her stay abroad she has been working for the American Ambulance at Neuilly. She has just returned to America. Mr. Roosevelt is one of the representatives of the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company in Paris and came over here on business. He is a graduate of Harvard, 1912, where he was a member of the Hasty Pudding and the D. K. He is also a member of the Harvard Club of New York and the Seawanhaka Corinthian Yacht. The wedding, which will take place early in March, will be quiet on account of the recent death of Mr. Olmstead, and it will be at the house of Mrs. Olmstead in West Brookfield, with only the members of the families present. Mr. Roosevelt is a brother of Mrs. Langdon Warner of Boston and of Nicholas Roosevelt of the American embassy in Paris. He is also a cousin of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt.

ROOSEVELT-OLMSTEAD - At West
Brookfield, Mass., 6th. Grace Helen Temple, daughter of Mrs Chauncey Lockhardt Olmstead, to Oliver Wolcott Roosevelt
of New York.

March 6 - 1916
A quiet wedding took place at the home of Mrs. Chauncey L. Olmstead, Main street, Monday afternoon at three o'clock, when her daughter, Grace
Helen Temple, was married to Oliver Wolcott Roosevelt. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Frederick H.
Drake, rector of St. Luke's Episcopal church, Worcester.

The bride's gown was of white satin with long train, looped up over a short petticoat of silver brocade. A beautiful old lace veil was worn which had been in the family for several generations.

For four years the bride has been a student at painting in England and France, and only recently returned to America. The groom is one of the representatives of the Farmers' Loan and Trust Co. in Paris. He is a graduate of Harvard, class of 1912.

Only members of the two families were present at the wedding and included: Mrs. Chauncey L. Olmstead
Mr. and Mrs. I

FRIDAY, OCTOBER 15, 1920
land, O., C. L. James West Roosevelt, son of Mrs lis B. Temple, Temple Roosevelt of Paris, France, who John G. Ste Temple Roosevelt of Paris, France, who Brooks, Mrs. j with his nurse, Miss Marion Hussey of Jean Roosevelt England, has been spending a month bald Roosevelt with Mrs. Roosevelt's mother, Mrs.
Warner, Bost Chauncey L. Olmstead, left on Wednes-Rebboli, and I day for Oyster Bay, L. I., where he will
tor. visit Mrs. James West Roosevelt before

Mr. and Mrjoining his mother in France.
Brookfield at six twilight express for New York. They will be at home after the first of May at 35 rue Louffroy, I

GOLDEN WEDDING.

Event in Promfret Is Marked by

"LEFTY" FLYNN WEDS BLANCHE PALMER

Old Yale Fullback Able To

"THE APPLES OF HIS EYE"

"LEFTY" FLYNN AND HIS "SQUAD."

Everybody remembers "Lefty" (Maurice B.) Flynn, the great Yale half-back who set the line on fire wherever he touched. He is seen here with his wife and daughter, the apples of his eye. "Lefty" is scoring new goals these days as a member of the motion picture stock company at the Goldwyn studios, near Los Angeles. He has a prominent part in Rex Beach's "Going Some" and nobody would be surprised if he kicked a High One right between the posts of Movie fame in the near future.

...to Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Hinsdale this afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock at Phelps's Tavern. Tea was served and music furnished by Mrs. McNeal. Mr. Hinsdale was born in Harwinton, May 6, 1836, son of Walter Hinsdale. He is a Civil War veteran. He was mustered in as corporal in the Second Connecticut Artillery, Company A. He was promoted to sergeant February 13, 1864. June 27, 1864, he was promoted to quartermaster sergeant and discharged with honors July 7, 1865. Mrs. Hinsdale was born in Bethlehem October 16, 1831, daughter of Dr. Algernon L. Lewis. After the war Mr. Hinsdale returned to Litchfield where he is engaged in the grocery business. He is one of Litchfield's most prominent citizens. The couple received many beautiful gifts.

A son, born yesterday as Welles

NOVEL

Mr and Mrs George H. Evans, 70 and 73, Just Married, Entertain in Their New Home

Mr and Mrs George H. Evans, 70 and 73, gave a wedding reception last evening at their new home in this city, 97 Clarendon street. They were married last week in Brattleboro, Vt., and the wedding attracted great interest because of their ages. For the reception last evening the house was decorated with pinks. About 50 friends attended, and brought Mr and Mrs Evans many attractive presents. After an informal reception there was music by the Junior symphony orchestra, and several vocal solos. Refreshments were served at the close of the evening.

of historical manuscripts. The first contribution of this sort received the first contribution of this sort. The contribution is from Thomas Brabazon of Hartford and includes the original manuscript of a sermon which was preached in the First Church (Congregational) on April 11, 1760. The text of the sermon was "When Thou Passeth Through the Waters," Isaiah, 23:1. The name of the minister who delivered the sermon does not appear upon the manuscript, but it is believed that it was delivered by Rev. William Russell, who was pastor of the church at that time. It is well preserved and while ancient type is used it can be easily read.

Mr. Brabazon also sent as a nucleus to archives of the historical society an astronomical diary or "almanack" which was compiled by Samuel Ellsworth, Phil. (The abbreviation at the end of the name apparently meaning philosopher.) This was published on August 23, 1771, for the year 1772. Philosopher Ellsworth was a resident of East Windsor and the printer of his diary was Ebenezer Watson, whose place of business was near the "Great Bridge" at Hartford.

This is also a well preserved paper. The donor in the letter sent with the contribution writes that he is surprised that such a society has not been formed in Windsor before. Additional contributions of historical interest to Windsor will be gladly received and carefully preserved.

The charter membership roll will close on September 26. An invitation is extended to all interested to attend.

BRIDE M

Married at in New Y
ment
Arc

Special Disj
NEW YORK

William F
lican mayo bachelor u Gotham thi widow, Mr ards, also c
made track
City Clerk
riage licen

"No, I've
Mayor Fei
Germany
ards said
was an Al
born in Pe

Tucking
inside over

led his bride to be to the Little Church

Mayor and Mrs William H. Feiker will return to Northampton Saturday from New York. It will be a complete surprise to most of the people of Northampton to learn that the mayor is on his wedding trip, although announcement of his marriage engagement had led them to expect his wedding. The first public information of the congratulatory event came in the form of an announcement at the monthly supper of the Edwards church men's club last night,
made by the president of the club, Harry E. Bicknell, who informed the company that Donald Dunham With It is in the Tenth War
riage of on

The tele-
cus is scheduled for next F at New Yo at the Republican Club.

"We beg
Dunham, son of the late people of N Sylvester C. Dunham of th of Kather Insurance Company, who his candidacy last week,
Northampton drawn in favor of Walter Feiker of son of Tremont street, a were marr in the liability departmer home of tl Travelers Insurance Comp John King
Reformed
York city, t
(Signed) M
Feiker. T
telegram of
H. Williamson will undo

The mar
mayor was but there h
the wedding
ed. In fact, though it was known that the mayor had left the city. It was supposed that he had accompanied the special committee on motorization of the fire department on an inspection trip to Boston. The only Northampton person at the wedding, besides the principals, was Charles L. Feiker, brother of the mayor. No information was obtainable in Northampton last evening as to the further plans of Mayor and Mrs Feiker, except that they will return Saturday.

Donald A. Dunham.

CANDIDATE QUILTS ON EVE OF CAUCUS

MARCH 24, 1916.

Eleventh Hour Discovery

That W. E. Batterson

Is Not a Voter.

Walter S. Schutz and W. T.

Williamson Will Be

Nominees.

With a large number of voters lined up and ready to vote for him, Walter E. Batterson of No. 84 Tremont street was obliged yesterday to withdraw in his fight against Walter S. Schutz for the republican nomination for short term alderman in the Tenth Ward, owing to the fact that he is not a voter in this city. As a result, the contest in the thoroughly canvassed ward was abruptly ended. It is too late for any other candidates to file notice of intention to run and so the ward caucus at the Republican Club tonight will undoubtedly nominate Mr. Schutz for Walter E. Batterson.

the short term and William T. Williamson of Parkville for the two-year term.

Mr. Batterson, who is employed at the Insurance Company, which

Mr. Rogers and Miss Lyman Successful in Keeping News From Public Six Weeks.

March 8,

It has become known in this city that William I. Rogers of No. 133

Dorothy Jelers
oed in at of is marry mony
the

in made diffi-who room keep m the

th his Mutual
city,
who
the

R e NTH
May
on

n of the ham of any, an-dacy for r alder-ne other ard will amson, a tee, who
at.

secretary
Company
March 22,
the local
which he uated in foreman

New Com-
n repubon the twenty-five g in the

es.
was an-meeting of
at the a list of the ward

MASON.

op Buck
on of St.
Wednes-
r Mason
Donald A.
ry of the any, was as served r of the

TO BE MARRIED IN MARCH

Report Regarding Prince Joachim and Princess Marie Augustine to the London Exchange

71

University Club -
to Birthday.

Kaiser's Youngest Son Engaged 1910

Amsterdam, via London, Oct. 14.

PRINCESS MARIE AUGUSTINE
Daughter of Prince Edward Whose Engagement to Son of the German Kaiser
Been A
(Photo © by B

The "Berlin Reichsanzeiger" announces the engagement of Prince Joachim, youngest son of Emperor William, and Princess Marie Augustine, daughter of Prince Edward of Anhalt. The princess was 17 years old last June. Prince Joachim is 25 years old.

EGEMAN'S

Ex-Kaiser's Daughter-in-Law Fights to Retain Her Child

Princess Joachim and her son. Prince Eitel Frederick wishes to raise him, but, although he is backed by the Hohenzollern family, the Princess stands a good show to win. Prince Joachim committed suicide a year ago last summer. 1948

March 11, 1916
Mr. and Mrs. Kelly Hester of No. 239 Westland street will observe the fiftieth anniversary of their marriage Saturday. It will be a quiet affair, but they will be pleased to meet their friends.

Mrs. Hester was born in Nassau, N. Y., seventy-eight years ago and Mr. Hester claims Rhinebeck, N. Y., as his place of birth seventy-three years ago.

Rev. John W. Gammack

Will Train English Cavalry Recruits.

WEST HARTFORD

RECTOR'S SON

Vestry of Glen Cove, L. I., Episcopal Church Tried to Dissuade Him.

From the pulpit to the saddle.

This is the whole story of the resignation of the Rev. John W. Gammack, son of the Rev. Dr. James Gammack of West Hartford, from the rectorate of the fashionable St. Paul's Episcopal church at Glen Cove, Long Island. He will leave April 3 for England to become an instructor in a British cavalry school.

The Rev. Mr. Gammack, after completing his course at Gordon college at Aberdeen, Scotland, came to Connecticut, and completed his theological studies at the Berkeley Divinity school in Middletown. The Rev. Dr. James Gammack, his father, was rector of St. James church in West Hartford at the time, and is at present rector emeritus of the church, making his home with T. S. Tucker, No. 1077 Farmington avenue, West Hartford.

The Rev. Mr. Gammack's resignation had been presented to the vestry of the Glen Cove church some weeks ago.

New Britain, March 18. to induce Rev. John Gammack, former pastor of the Episcopal Church in East Berlin, was made.

at Glen Cove, Clin, has left the ministry and embarked for England, where, it is understood, he will give his services to the friendland of his nativity in her conflict with Germany.

Mr. Gammack left the war East Berlin about fifteen years ago to returned accept the pastorate of a West Haven church and later he was in charge of that Mr. a church in Long Island. It is aside his derstood that he will not take an active suggestive part in the fighting but will devote his time to training recruits for England cavalry service. He is an expert instructor horseman and while in East Berlin, ment of the devoted considerable time to driving of St. Paul's in the open. He has three brothers, of whom one is a doctor and two rather than ministers.

not to do so.
His brother, the Rev. Arthur Gammack, is rector of a church in Lenox, Mass. Mr. Gammack became rector of St. Paul's in Glen Cove in 1897. It numbers among its communicants many prominent residents of Long Island. Mr. Gammack is married and has a son and daughter.

F. T. HONEYMAN WEDS

PRETTY SOUBRETTE

He is a person of much more consequence in Germany than von der Goltz. Officials in Washington have received word from him to the effect that he would like to save his neck, through the same sort of good luck that has apparently fallen to the other German spy. It is not doubted that he could give information of value. Washington will, it is said, consider his application. What England will do is another question. It is believed that the British government will not be willing to relax its grip on von Rintelen, even to please the United States.

But whatever fate befalls von der Goltz or von Rintelen, it will be no worse than their occupation invited. More interesting is the consideration of the question of whether their conduct was inspired by patriotism or a pecuniary reward. Nathan Hale regretted that he could do no more. These two modern spies are willing to sacrifice the cause for which they worked and the men with whom they worked if they can thereby save their own skins. The spectacle can hardly be inspiring to either friend or foe.

HAND-PICKED PERFORMERS.

We catch "Collier's Weekly," usually alert, nodding. "No one has ever accused us," says the editor, "of being against baseball, but we don't care as much as we once did to see a bunch

Frederick T. Honeyman.

HONEYMAN COMING HERE WITH HIS SOUBRETTE WIFE

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick T. Honeyman will visit Hartford the week of April 10. Mr. Honeyman is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William F. Honeyman of No. 108 Ashley street and formerly there, and that the police make stories about what they saw there time come back with astounding who sojourn in Maine from time to state that travelers from other states liquor traffic in Maine, and it is as you Mr. H. Spooner in regard to the

March 15 = 1916

The marriage of Miss Ethel I. Bragg, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. William Bragg of Allen place, and Denn M. Burgess of this city took place at noon Wednesday at the future home of the couple, at No. 1,044 Park street, the father of the bride officiating, using the double ring service, assisted by the Rev. H. Sargeant Scarborough, pastor of the South Park Methodist church.

The house was decorated with palms and roses. The bride was attended by her sister-in-law, Mrs. Irving B. Bragg, as matron of honor, and Charles J. Burgess, brother of the bridegroom, was best man. Miss Lucille Burgess, niece of the bridegroom, acted as ring bearer. The Mendelssohn wedding march from "A Midsummer Night's Dream" was played by Mrs. Charles J. Burgess.

The bride wore a gown of white satin and lace and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and orange blossoms. The matron of honor wore a gown of blue chiffon taffeta and Georgette crepe and the ring bearer was dressed in a white lingerie frock. Many handsome gifts were received by the bride and bridegroom.

The ceremony was followed by a wedding breakfast and Mr. and Mrs. Burgess left afterward for a short trip through New York state. They will be at home at No. 1,044 Park street after May 1.

The bride was formerly a stenographer at the Mechanics Savings Bank.

Married in March. 19.

Announcement made yesterday by Mr. and Mrs. William H. Watrous of No. 11 Vanderbilt road, West Hartford, of the marriage of their niece, Miss Mildred Agnes Taylor, to

March Sharp-Jenks. 18

Miss Arline Frances Jenks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank M. Jenks, of Lincoln street, and Frederick Andrews Sharp, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Sharp of Fairfield avenue, were married last evening at 7 o'clock in the chapel of Center Church House, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Dr. Rockwell Harmon Potter, pastor of the church. The bride was attended by Miss Ethel Jenks of New Haven, as maid of honor, and the bridesmaids were Miss Eleanor Sharp, sister of the bridegroom, and Miss Eleanor Jameson, both of this city. The best man was Elmer Mulroney, secretary of the Y. M. C. A. in Springfield, Mass., and the ushers were Harold Alvord and Ralph Norton of South Manchester. The bride wore a dress of white satin, trimmed with pearls and cut with a train, and a long tulle veil. She carried a shower bouquet of lilies-of-the-valley. The maid of honor wore pink taffeta and carried an arm bouquet of pink roses. The bridesmaids were dressed alike in turquoise blue taffeta and carried

REV. E. C. ACHESON'S SUCCESSOR NAMED

73

Middletown Church Calls Dr. F. F. German of Mamaroneck, N. Y.

RECTOR CALLED.

At a meeting of the members of the parish of the Church of the Holy Trinity, at the parish house last night, at which Senior Warden J. Peters Pelton presided, it was voted to call the Rev. Dr. Frank F. German, of Mamaroneck, N. Y., to become rector of the church to succeed the Rev. E. Campion Acheson, now suffragan bishop of the diocese of Connecticut. Richard L. de Zeng, as chairman of the committee, recommended the name of Dr. German. Dr. German is a graduate of graduated city school then became Trinity, Mr. Acheson, Thomas's Y. W. H. e meeting, on which the lip of of Holy AMSON.

FREDERICK SAMSON.

916

re Recogn- y of His 919 was pre- on, secre- Insurance ce to-day, fiftieth an- with the of flowers 's and di- office and on poured iates and

ADVANCED IN OTHER COMPANIES all over this country. The watch was engraved in the following manner:
To Frederick Samson,
From His Associates on His 50th Anniversary with the Hartford Fire Insurance Company.
March 17, 1916.

Mr. Samson was born in Glastonbury, March 29, 1847, and began, March 17, 1866, as a clerk with the Hartford Fire when there were only three officers and three clerks. He was special agent for several years in the '70s and then had charge of the loss department in the home office for over twenty years, with the title of general agent. He was appointed assistant secretary, January 16, 1908, and secretary June 6, 1910.

Many telegrams of congratulation were received yesterday by Frederick Samson, secretary of the Hartford Fire Insurance Company, on the occasion of his fiftieth anniversary of service with the company and he received many personal congratulations from callers.

Old Landmark May Be Wiped Out Soon—$80,000 THACHER HOUSE TO BE TORN DOWN

Main Street Structure

Date
in 1
More are about tion nec business
station,
and the Main str
368, 370
owned b and will and San declined but it is Although passed, a ready b
tion is l
The p Main str
has a de to South frontage
The Th
one-hund
ago, and
Mr. Reg withstood
over a century.

The Thachers lived in about sixty years, after sold it to the Woolley built the livery stable. teen years ago Mr. oB the property from the V Patrick Ragan, who pre time occupied stables on took possession of the has been conducting the According to Mr. Ragan to retire and will dispose ness about April 11.

The old Thacher hot little building involved north of Charter Oak av east side of Main street, adjoining the property c John J. McCook on the homestead was the birt Major John H. Thacher Capitol avenue.

Peter Thacher came t from Lebanon in 1795 and a large tract of land in section of the town. He Thacher's lane on his pro known as South Prospect built the old Thacher hor Owing to the poor health Thacher, his oldest son, Thacher assumed charge o erty and sold a lot in t Solomon Potter.

POWERS
on.
in Coming Town
ice Center of Con-

REV. DR. OLIVER H. RAFFERTY.

RECTOR'S 30TH ANNIVERSARY. Long Service of Rev. Dr. Oliver H. Raftery at Portland Church.

Portland, March 18.

The year 1916 marks the thirtieth anniversary of the coming to Portland of the Rev. Dr. Oliver H. Raftery to assume the rectorship of Trinity church. Dr. Raftery was born abroad, but came to New York at an early age. He was educated in the schools of New York and attended Cheshire academy and on graduating entered Trinity college, graduating with high honors in 1873.

He then entered Berkeley Divinity school in Middletown, graduating in 1876 and was ordained to the deaconate in the same year by Bishop Williams at the Church of the Holy Trinity, Middletown. His first parish was St. Peter's, Cheshire, where he remained ten years. In 1886 he accepted the rectorship of Trinity church and has been its beloved rector, therefore, for thirty years.

Degree From Trinity College.

Dr. Raftery is widely known in ecclesiastical circles throughout the state and is highly esteemed. He has been frequently invited to assume the rectorship of other churches but has

TRINITY CHURCH, PORTLAND.

The approaching celebration of the seventy-fifth anniversary of the town, July 4, makes timely a review of some of the long-term and successful business careers of some of its men who have been longest identified with its business and civic interests and figured in no small way in its growth, progress and uplift. But before making this personal reference, it may be well to explain that whereas 75 is not a very old the First National bank and the Freestone Savings bank; director and secretary of the Portland Water company, trustee and member of the finance committee of the Connecticut Hospital for Insane at Middletown; vestryman, since 1865, of Trinity church and now junior warden, incorporator of the Middlesex hospital and a member of the following societies: Middlesex County Historical society, Sons of the American Revolution, state and national; National Civic federation, Academy of Political Science,

American Academy of Political Science, Philological Geographic association of Au-

Connecticut Agricultural Peace society, Linnæan, Connecticut

His clubs are 1) of Connecticut, of Meriden and New York.

H. Bell.

Int of long service s line of business l, groceryman. The ished by Edwin having purchased Wilcox, father o w, of Main street hed the firm of E. ng his sons, Charles ng Bell, into part- im. The present H. Bell, purchased his father and and he has con- himself, from that exception of two when his brother, sociated with him. seen Mr. Bell is a Sunday, March 26.

Warren Gammons of who were married fifty Tuesday, celebrated edding at their home fr. and Mrs. Gammons n Glastonbury, March a Rev. William Chees- astor of the Congrega-

After a residence of ears in Glastonbury Talcottville where Mr. employed by the Tal- ompany for upwards of a dyer in their mills. rs ago Mr. Gammons sent home on Deming ered the employ of the Company at Buckland. e fact that Mrs. Gam- indisposed for the past celebration of the wed- ary was confined to the c. Gammons's family and eighbors along with the Drake Post, G. A. R., of mmons has been an ac- for the past forty years, n his return from serv- War in which he fought 15th Connecticut Regi- its entirety, enlisting 18 years old.

receiving the guests last night was Mr. Gammons's daughter, Elizabeth, who teaches school in Springfield, the sons, George, who is employed as boss finisher at the Hilliard mills, and William Gammons, a machinist, employed in Hartford, and the two daughters, Emma and Mar-

Business Men Long in Harness.

APRIL 15, 1916

FERDINAND GILDERSLEEVE.

CHARLES E. BLODGETT.

JOHN BRANSFIELD.

CHARLES H. BELL.

second wife was Northam; children, Sarah, wife of Professor Robert Herndon Fife, jr.; Richard, with the First National bank, of Portland, and Emily, wife of Robert Bacon English, of Hartford.

Of Which He's a Member.

Mr. Gildersleeve is president of North, No.

o'clock, ye daughter, I was married of Hartford Snyder, pas-tional Church performed pretty de-flowers. The "Lohengrin"
by Miss Ann an aunt of dress was trimmed with ried a bou-lilies of the ant was her sted, of New in pink taffand carried ring service was given at the marriage was held at guests, who
the bride and friends. Mara short we-turn, they street and in June.
the Factor Hartford,
been conne-

DR.
[Rev. William L. Brewster who has ]: FRIDAY, MAY 19, 1916

LITCHFIELD GETS

REV. W. J. BREWSTER

(Special to The Courant.)

Litchfield, May 18.

Rev. William J. Brewster, rector of the Episcopal Church at Warehouse Point, has accepted the call extended to him to the rectorship of St. Michael's Church, made vacant by

Rev. W. J. Brewster.

Postal Ca
1886
Tuesday

A post thirty year Hartford was deliv family by Uncle Sam Tuesday. for thirty presumpt slipped in York office by discove The ca White Sta nellus O'l of the lin was conn Insurance carried is

MOST

Miss Pri

Accord

for Cla

Accord

lesley, M

of Hartle

Wellesley

carries v

tress of tree pag

Miss

Mrs. W:

Vernon
fessor V

of geolo

and her Greenw

their ho

and rain

the resignation of Rev. Dr. Storrs O. Seymour, and he will assume his duties on Sunday, July 2.

Mr. Brewster is a brother of the Bishop of Connecticut and the Bishop of Maine and was graduated from Yale in the class of 1881. For several years he lived in the West and was not ordained as deacon until 1896. From then he was rector at Northford, Conn., until 1899, and went to Warehouse Point in 1900.

much he wished to give he replied with emphasis, "All I have, mother."

Mr. Brewster was so surprised upon receiving the gifts and so deeply moved by the words of Mr. Price that it was with effort that he thanked Mr. Price and the people present.

It is with the keen regret of the people of St. John's parish and the people of the town that Mr. Brewster is leaving. He has al-

Brewster is leaving. He has always been active in the affairs of the town, being on the school committee for the past three years and looking closely after the affairs of the public library and he has done a large share of the work in getting up the Fourth of July celebrations ever since the idea was started six years ago. The committee in

Episcopal Clergyman Pre-Resignation at Litchfield

He died Sept 8, 1918
 Ashfield, March 13.—The Rev. Dr.
 O. Seymour, who has been pastor of St. Michael's church, Litchfield, for twenty-seven years, has presented his resignation to take effect immediately after Easter. Dr.
 Seymour observed his 80th birthday January 24th. He is widely known ecclesiastical circles and is held in high esteem throughout the county and state.

He has been a member of the standing committee of the church since 1876, is a trustee of the Berkeley Divinity school, was representative from Connecticut to the general convention of 1901, 1904 and 1907, was formerly a member of the state board of education and has held many other positions of trust.

He was ordained a deacon in May 1861, and a priest in April, 1862. His first charge was at St. Peter's church in Milford. Later he was rector of St. Thomas's church, Bethel; Trinity church, Pawtucket, R. I., and Trinity church, Norwich. In 1879 he went to Litchfield and was rector of St. Michael's church for four years, at the end of which time he went to Hartford.

NEW HONOR FOR D. E. DUNBAR

Local Man is Made Editor of Har vard Law Review 1918

Donald E. Dunbar, son of Palmer Hall Dunbar of 16 Cumberland street and one of the most prominent men at Harvard to-day, has been elected editor-in-chief and note editor of the Harvard Law Review, the most prominent of all Harvard publications. In fact, the honor of being editor is considered one of the highest which can be secured in the collegiate life of this country. Leading lawyers and justices of the supreme bench have been and are contributors to this review.

Dr Dunbar is a second year student at Harvard law school, and this honor may be said to be the culmination of those which he has received in his scholastic life. He was graduated from central high school in 1909, a honor pupil. He finished his academic course at Harvard in 1913, ranking among the highest in scholarship and receiving his degree magna cum laude. He was a member of the student council, of the speakers' club, of the Signet society and of Phi Beta Kappa. He was also editor and chairman of the Harvard Crimson, and editor of the Advocate.

His scholarships while an undergraduate amounted to $3825. He won a Price-Greenleaf scholarship, the Bodditch scholarship, the Richard Garbrill scholarship, the Ricardo scholarship and the Price-Greenleaf prize. One of his most notable successes was the winning of the prize offered by the Hart Schaffner Marx company for $1000 for the best essay on economy.

Mr Dumbur has specialized in critical science and economics, a fact reflected in his essay on "A comparison of the tin industry in the United States and Wales" won the prize which was open to college professors as well as graduates. On leaving Harvard he won the Sheldon fellowship and Russell Shaw fellowship, which enabled him to travel and study abroad. He spent most of his time at King's college, Cambridge university, England. Returning to this country he entered Harvard law school in 1914.

D. F. Wentworth Will Give All His Time to Art

March Now 24. 1916

After thirty-three years of work as a church organist and choir director, Daniel F. Wentworth, who is well known both as artist and organist, will retire from the field of church music in order to give his entire attention and energies to his art work.

Mr. Wentworth's first place as organist was in the First Methodist Church of Meriden. He continued at this post four years, leaving there for a period of study in Europe. Shortly after his return from Germany he was tendered the place of organist and musical director at the South Baptist Church in this city. He remained from the arch. While a new organ Wentworth's years at red the post h, succeeded- ho had gone Wentworth eight years of the Park

Wentworth was anst of the n, and it is est that this ie fine new work in the Wentworth many of the s city, some him through of years. o will have a First Pres- the coming IGNORED.

Secretary of Mount Hol

21
is city was board of oke college the trustees Tuesday. He late Dr. until June, on will be t that time or the full resident of d at the tained the vere at the her home: Stimson of orable Ed- e: Robert on; Alfred ty; Henry H. Kilfoil. He attended St. Peter's rson, Chi- school and graduated in 1912 at the uth Man- head of his class. He was in his ckwell H. fourth year at St. Thomas seminary dward B. when he left to attend the Leonard t Alexan- school in New York, in preparation college; for the Annapolis examinations. He d; Arthur was named as principal for appoint- Sidney W. ment to the academy by United nire, Phil- States Senator Frank B. Brandegee Cox, Law- last March. three are the alumnae trustees.

Glastonbury Sunday School Honors Samuel E. Williams Because of Ex-

77

Daniel F. Wentworth.

SAMUEL H. WILLIAMS.

FRANCIS PARSONS.

arch 24. amuel H. t of the Congrega- d Thurs- al chapel, a hand- iation of iful serv-plete sur- with Mrs. the usual When he ticed the sent, buy orchestra e Chief." to a seat sent were

He said me might aing was ispel any at's mind token of an of the Superin- then pre- Williams. Mr. Wil- great, but epted the on of his ffection of irs of age, had held he school, dress, but and me

POLIS.

ed as Prin- idgece—St.

o. 15 Vine- ate Thomas Kilfoil, has ndidate for tates Naval y Senator Kilfoil, who 1897, is now d school in , to take the e the acad-

CANDIDATE

s List Named Oakey.

rant.)

March 30. etitive exami- on March 22, akey has ap- anking man, . of No. 722 as his princi- United States olis. Edward larble street, d as first al- ey of No. 457 nester, as sec- m A. Gorry of ternate. The ion papers as States civil e: Trumbull sley 61.63 and take their ex- n to the acad-

HENRY W. KILFOIL.

a sure enough United States navy midshipman. He has been officially notified that he has passed the re- quired entrance exams and the physical test is all that remains. He is a husky lad and expects to get by without trouble.)

Henry is 19 years old. He was born in Hartford in 1897, the son of Mrs. Anna J. and the late Thomas H. Kilfoil. He attended St. Peter's rson, Chi- school and graduated in 1912 at the uth Man- head of his class. He was in his ckwell H. fourth year at St. Thomas seminary dward B. when he left to attend the Leonard t Alexan- school in New York, in preparation college; for the Annapolis examinations. He d; Arthur was named as principal for appoint- Sidney W. ment to the academy by United nire, Phil- States Senator Frank B. Brandegee Cox, Law- last March.

RICHTER BOYS ALLYN STREET

The Charter Oak

National Bank bought the property from the Coffin estate, of Windsor

Locks, the heirs and sister of Arth for $90,000. Before the General Pie bought it in 1898 National Bank previous to its Phoenix National to erect a ten-story building on the site plans for this drawn.

The property occupied by a historic, two and one with a basement. 1800. The basement few feet below the ground level. It was built by Shedd & E. J. Todd Rubbe one-story addition within the last decade by the Warpany. The upper part of the building by Dr. Ely Morgan house. The bulk of the building is in the rear.

West of the building is a vacant lot and west by property, a brick four stories high. The basement is under Carroll's Employer A. Helligren, shoe

The corner building about 1800 by Colonel Belcher. At that time known as "the bank" of the select residence town. The Belcher west half way to the rear part of the building was not cut through and the house and residence was the location, bookseller.

his, where the corner stands, was the residence of George B. Hawley

Colonel Belcher himself and lived at of his death. After made to the front of so that it has lost its once had. In the last century a wide up to the first floor of the small yard, at both sides was bushes. The building white, with bright when the passion for buildings yellow stone other Connecticut changed. The story until after 1898.

Colonel Belcher uncle of Miss Sara 758 Asylum avenue Joseph Davis, bought him in the early death, thirty-two years to her. She sold Pierson estate in was the home of Colonel Belcher's lived in half of it, divided into what houses, until its many years the occupied by Dr. H. S. 1

GEN. JOE WHEELER A "CHESHIRE" LAD.

Famous Old Confederate Attended the School 65
Years Ago.

ONE OF MANY WHO

CHESHIRE SCHOOL'S FAMOUS GRADUATES

Catalogue of Alumni Issued

president of the F. A. Stokes Publishing company, New York (1873-1875); A. I. Sumner, organist and composer, drowned in the Atlantic wreck near Halifax in 1873 (1858-1859); Richard Henry Warren, nineteen years organist of St. Bartholomew's church, New York (1871-1874); Gideon Welles, secretary of the navy during the Civil war (1819-1821); General Joseph Wheeler of the Confederate army (1849-1851), and many more brave soldiers, with dozens of clergymen, mostly of the Episcopal church, but a few of other communions. There is also a list of girls who were pupils before 1836, many of whom married Cheshire school boys.

The old building of the school, occupying a central position, is in conserving a central position, is in conserving

Large Oriental Rugs For Living Rooms

We have an assortment of exclusive Persian Rugs suitable for large living rooms and dining rooms. They are all of first class weave and will last a person an ordinary life time.

Khorassan Rug of large size, 17.11 ft. by 11.11 ft. $625

Bidjar Persian Rug, Special value, heavy and thick, all wool, 14.11 ft. by 11.10 $700

Persian Herez Rug, 20.09 ft. by 11.11 $450

Mahal Persian Rug, 19.07 by 13.05 ft. $350

Call at our store and see these beautiful Rugs.

Samuel Donchian Rug Co. 205 Pearl Street

Statement of about 100 are given in a supplement.

RETURNS TO HIS NATIVE TOWN.

Rev. Dr. E. P. Tuller to Speak at Asylum Avenue Baptist Roll-Call.

Here at Ninety-

Dr. Ednnial rollue Baptist is a Hartmong the e business
ago. He
George W. es Tuller, 2
the Hart-
which he ther for a iness with street. But y and feel-
direction, reparatory
university,
r at New-
He has s at New-trot, Allpastor at

REV. DR. E. P. TULLER.

oming, not only to his native city, but to the church of his boyhood, the church to which he was welcomed by the Rev.
F. F. Emerson, the first pastor, and the church that licensed him to go forth into the ministry. He will receive a warm welcome. Dr. Tuller is actively associated with Baptist interests in Boston and eastern Massachusetts. He is secretary of the board of trustees of Newton seminary.

He has a sister in the city, Mrs.

TO BE GUEST AT

Loren H. Robertson.

7 PARTY

725-
The Oldest
urch.
many years
t Fire Arms and one of ngregation rch, will be thday celefall Friday
r the aus-
Robertson
March 31,
th Robert-family of on came to and began first Mon-
he factory
the north
e present Insurance
ng of the ation Mr.
esting ex-ary, that of 1864.

Mr. Robertson went to work the morning that the Charter Oak blew down and secured a number of pieces of the old tree.

The list of principals and teachers contains many notable names. First among the principals were Rev. Dr.
John Bowden (1796-1802), later professor in Columbia College; Rev. Dr. William Smith from Scotland (1802-06), author of the Institution office in the Prayer Book; and Rev. Dr. Tillotson Bronson, (1806-1826), editor of the "Churchman's Magazine." Two only of the principals have been Cheshire School boys, Rev. Seth B. Paddock (1844-5) of Middletown, and Rev. James Stoddard (1892-96) of New London. The first instructor on the roll was Horatio Seymour of Litchfield (Yale 1797), afterwards United States senator from Maine, uncle of Governor and Chief Justice Oliver S. Seymour of Connecticut.

APRIL 1, 1920.

LOREN H. ROBERTSON HAS 91ST BIRTHDAY

LOREN H. ROBERTSON.

Loren H. Robertson celebrated the ninety-first anniversary of his birth at the home of his daughter Mrs. G.
H. Phelps, at No. 231 White street, yesterday. All day long congratulatory messages came to Mr. Robertson by telegraph and telephone, while many of his old shopmates at the plant of the Colt's Patent Fire Arms Manufacturing Company also sent greetings. There were many beautiful floral tributes given to Mr. Robertson.

Mr. Robertson is as healthy now as he was twenty-five years ago, and said yesterday that to live long, one should cast worry to one side. This, coupled with a long list of sturdy old New England ancestors, is given by Mr. Robertson as his reason of long life.

It was in 1847 that Mr. Robertson came to Hartford, and for sixty-seven years he was employed at Colt's, giving up work in 1914. He is one of the oldest in years in the congregation of the First Unitarian Church, and is well known throughout the city.

Mr. Robertson was born in South
Coventry, March 31, 1829, and was a son of Elijah Robertson, being the youngest in a family of nine children.
He came to Hartford when 18 years old and began work in the Colt factory the first Monday in December, 1847. The factory then occupied a building on the north side of Pearl street, near the present site of the Hartford Fire Insurance Company.
After the building of the factory in its present location, Mr. Robertson had many interesting experiences, among which was that of being at the fire in February, 1864. Mr. Robertson went to work the morning that the famous old Charter Oak was blown down, and he secured several pieces of the historic tree.

him were d careers
ademy.
demy of the coruch holds the prop-ong lease
tion bear-
e Schools.

glancing
"Cheshire
ld like to hat of the one was
v London,
, jr., and
of New-e pupils."

low me to rr, jr., and arr, men-being sons
t Cheshire

March 27.
hat Alvord
REUNION

Leave for 28 the Grey-

is brother, left last 28th they ding anni-l and Mrs

which will anker home-
ol and Mrs.
seven sons,
nd children
ren, all of
of one son,

d accident, nniversary
ly of about

own as the ed States,"

six feet,
on Parker,

eld through al work, is other, Mil-

seven. Col-ved in the
was award-

ave deeds,
smith shop
ile the man

00'1 00'2
00'3
00'4 00'5
00'6
00'7 00'8 00'9 00'0

IS NEARING THE CENTURY MARK

March 14, 1921
Mrs. Abby Loveland Tuller of Everett is Observing Today the 97th Anniversary of Her Birth

Mrs. Abby Loveland (James) Tuller, widow of George W. Tuller, one of the oldest residents of Everett, is today quietly observing the ninety-seventh anniversary of her birth, and at her home, the residence of her son, Rev. Edward P. Tuller, D.D., at 120 Linden street, Everett, she will receive friends this afternoon and this evening will greet members of the Glendale Baptist Church, Everett, of which her son has been pastor for three years. There will be an entertainment, and refreshments. The church people are to present Mrs. Tuller with a gift. Mrs. Tuller is remarkably well, for one so far advanced in years, and she retains all her faculties to a remarkable degree. She reads, writes and sews with ease and readily gets about the house.

Mrs. Tuller was born in Hartford, Conn., on March 14, 1824, the daughter of William and Clara (Leveland) James. Her husband died nearly a dozen years ago. She lived in Arlington for several years with her son prior to moving to Everett the past year. Mrs. Tuller is a member of the Asylum Baptist Church in Hartford. Besides her son she has a daughter, Mrs. R. K. (Clara) Erving, of Hartford, five grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

GAS COMPANY'S NEW MANAGER.

E. E. Eysenbach, recently of San Antonio, Tex.

ager of the company, to sioned by th
Perkins, Fel
The choic
rectors of t siderable se
would keep the high sta
under the r
kins.

Ernest E.
manager of Light compa
of his positio

Mr. Eysen
ed experienc plants, and l knowledge b tical experie
Delphos, Oh
He took the course at th
and began h ness at Colu was employe in the manu
tion departm Gas company to St. Paul, l St. Paul Gas company for some time.

In 1905 he became manager of the Binghamton Gas company in Binghamton, N. Y. Three years later he was appointed manager of the Consolidated Gas company of New Jersey, a gas and electric property, and had charge of several gas plants in that state. Four years ago Mr. Eysenbach was appointed manager of the San Antonio Gas, Electric and Traction company of San Antonio, Tex. All of the above properties are owned by the American Light and Traction company.

On account of the ill health of Mrs. Eysenbach, due to the Texas climate, Mr. Eysenbach resigned his position in San Antonio a year ago. Mr. Eysenbach has lived in many cities, but said this morning that Hartford looked better to him than

ERNEST E. EYSENBACH.

MR. AND MRS. J. G. TUTTLE ARE SURPRISED

March 31
Twenty-Fifth Anniversary of Wedding Observed.

Between fifty and sixty friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Josiah G. Tuttle of No. 145 Adams street, loaded with bundles of food, made a skirmish around to the outside doors of the Tuttle home last evening, and broke into the house with the old time "surprise party" spirit. After whist and dancing, the refreshments were produced and consumed. James B. Moody, jr., made the presentation speech when a silver set was given to Mr. and Mrs. Tuttle. Mrs. Tuttle acknowledged the gift.

Mr. and Mrs. Tuttle were married March 31, 1891, at Christ Church, this city, by Rev. Dr. Floyd W. Tompkins, then rector. Their daughter, Miss Ruth L. Tuttle, was present last evening. A telegram was received from a sister of Mr. Tuttle, living in Manchester, N. H., who could not bepres-

WALL STREET WAS HUDSON'S FOLLY. CONTESTS WIFE'S SUIT FOR DIVORCE

March 30, 1916

The contested divorce case of Sarah Quenten Hudson against William M. Hudson, of Branford and New York, formerly of this city, which opened in the superior court at New Haven, Tuesday, before Judge Reed, was concluded at 12:30 to-day and the judge reserved decision. The most sensational feature of the case this morning was the declaration of Charles S. Hamilton, counsel for Mrs. Hudson, that Mr. Hudson was concealing assets of $42,000. Stuart N. Dunning of this city is counsel for Mr. Hudson and said to-day that his client had lost money and had an income of little more than $100 a month.

Mr. Hudson himself went on the stand this morning and testified that he had lost in Wall street the money he was accused of concealing. He said he had won $9,000 in "the street" the first year after coming into the money of his father, the late Dr. Hudson of this city, and that he had continued speculating and had finally lost.

Mr. Hamilton, counsel for Mrs. Hudson, said that this testimony was false.

"There is no doubt that Mr. Hudson wants to get rid of his wife," said Mr. Hamilton in his argument. "He has enjoyed the benefits of her society practically all of the time since she was 17 years old. Now he wants to do what other cowardly and contemptible men have done—throw his wife out into the street when she gets along in age." He then declared that Mr. Hudson was purposely concealing assets of $42,000 and said he insisted on the payment of $10,000 with the divorce.

In his concluding arguments Mr. Dunning testified that the total income of his client, Mr. Hudson, was $1,205 from three trust funds.

Mrs. Hudson collapsed on the stand Wednesday afternoon while testifying. Mrs. Hudson, heavily veiled, was nervous when she begun her testimony, and when her counsel, Attorney Charles S. Hamilton, asked her to remove her veil she promptly replied:

"I won't."

The woman had been ill all day, and when she took the stand she was assisted by a friend. Later she lay on a couch in one of the judge's offices until the close of the afternoon session, and was then taken to a physician. The Hudsons were married with a double ceremony, first in New York on November 24, 1895, and in Hartford in 1896. They lived at New London, later in New York, and spent their summers at a $10,000 home in Indian Neck, Branford. They were stopping at the Bayard hotel, New York, when Mrs. Hudson testified, she saw her husband associating considerably with another woman. On February 5, 1910, she charged he left the hotel with the woman, and took up his residence at the York hotel. Since that time she claimed she saw him but once, when she was near death at a Seventh avenue sanatorium. Then he went to Central America," she claimed.

She testified that he gave her an allowance of $1,000 a year, and wrote her "If you try to see me or hunt me up you must take the consequences." Several letters were introduced in evidence when Mrs. Hudson could testify no longer, among which was one submitted as from Mr. Hudson in which he advised his wife to sue for divorce on the ground of misconduct, and marry some one that would appreciate her. She refused to take this action, but continually maintained that $82 a month was not enough for her to live on. One letter, which it was claimed he wrote, said: "What the devil do you think I am; a piece of gold? You're too blamed high toned." Mrs. Hudson asks $30,000 alimony, claiming her husband is worth $100,000.

The action was brought on the ground of desertion.

MRS. HUDSON GETS

DIVORCE DECREE

April 6, 1916
Asks Alimony of $50,000, But Is Allowed Only $3,500.

A divorce decree has been granted by the superior court in New Haven in the suit brought by Mrs. Sarah Isabelle Quentin Hudson of Branford, against William M. Hudson of New York and Hartford. Mrs. Hudson asked for $50,000 alimony but was only allowed $3,500, her husband asserting that he had lost a large amount of his money on Wall street.

Mrs. Hudson

G. S. WOOD LOSES LEG IN TRAIN ACCIDENT

Former Hartford Boy Directs "First Aid" on Himself.

March 1916
Word was received in this city last night of an accident to a former Hartford boy, George Sill Wood, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hubert K. Wood, and grandson of the late George G. Sill. The accident occurred at Meridian, Miss., a fortnight ago, and by it young Wood lost his left leg above the knee. He was boarding a railroad train some twenty miles from that city when he slipped, and the wheels of the coach ran over his left leg. Wood, who is 24 years old, was taken into the baggage car and superintended "first aid" work himself, which he had learned while in the navy. He was taken to a hospital, and early this week was brought to the home of his parents at Bayside, Long Island.

Sergeant Wood, as he is known, was a junior at the Hartford Public High School, when he left to enlist in the Marine Corps. He rose from the rank of private to that of first sergeant in his three years of service, and was the champion marksman of the Marine Corps at the time of his retirement. Part of the time he served under Captain Harry Knapp of this city, who took a great interest in him and endeavored to persuade him to try for a commission, but he did not desire to do so, and engaged himself as an electrical engineer.

It is a somewhat strange coincidence that he should lose a leg in a railroad accident, for his uncle, the late George Elliot Sill, for whom he was named, lost both legs in a railroad casualty at Stony Creek, this state, in 1877.

WILLIAMS COLLEGE

THE CRUS TO RETURN

College Instructors in French Army to Be Allowed to Have Furloughs

Albert Cru and J. Norton Cru will soon be able to pay a visit to their families in Williamstown, according to letters received last week from the trenches. A recent military law grants a furlough to men who have families living in neutral countries which enables them to be with their families for 21 days. The Crus were instructors in the French department of Williams college when the war broke out, and both responded to the call of their country.

Albert Cru, who is at present in Belgium, writes the following account of the advances in the region of the Somme:—

"The post assigned to us in this offensive made us realize that our credit stood well in higher spheres, for only reliable tested gunners could be trusted in such a position. The brigade pulled into action under a murderous fire, to take a forward position in some hastily dug gun pits. Then through one long and weary month they lived by the side of their guns in that valley of death, firing day and night as many shells as the overheated steel tubes could stand, being themselves subjected to a constant bombardment by the Boche. The 'Valley of Death' indeed! Through the last month there have been ghastly hand-to-hand fights on these slopes, which were

Vol. 30

March 5, 1917

No. 84

M. Cru Returns

To M. Albert Cru, who returned to Williamstown yesterday from the French front, we extend the welcome of the College community. Our greeting is no less sincere despite the fact that the present seniors were freshmen when he left and the

ENTHUSIASTIC WELCOME ACCORDED M. J. N. CRU

Before a large gathering of friends, and the entire College Battalion yesterday afternoon, M. Jean Norton Cru stepped off the 5.56 train at the Williamstown station. Attired in his service uniform, M. Cru was easily discernible as soon as the train drew in. After a short but warm greeting by his family and friends, Captain Gimperling asked him to speak a few words to the Battalion, which was drawn up at attention facing the station. After a few words on his pleasure at being able to return to America at this time, M. Cru entered an automobile, amid the cheers of the Battalion, and rode slowly towards the College, the Battalion following at attention. It is hoped that M. Cru will be able to be detailed here for some time to aid in the training of the camp here this summer.

The Williams Record

Vol. 31

MAY 26, 1917

No. 27

ALBERT CRU SENDS THANKS TO COLLEGE

The Williams Record

Vol. 30

March 3, 1917

No. 83

M. ALBERT CRU IS WELCOME ACCORDED
TO M. ALBERT CRU

TO BE HOME THREE WEEKS

Family and Friends Greet Instructor, Returning from Trenches at Ypres

M. Albert Cru returned to Williamstown yesterday afternoon. As the 3.58 train came into the station, M. Cru was standing on the step of one of the cars

M. ALBERT CRU

DON'T YOU WISH 'TWOULD SNOW?

[For the Transcript]

Don't you wish 'twould blow an' blow,
 An' put right in an' snow, an' snow,
 Jest like as it used to do
 Way back there when you's a boy?
 When it blowed an' blowed an' blowed,
 For three four days to time, an' snowed
 Right along? Wa'n't that a joy,

When it snowed an' snowed all night?
 Couldn't see your neighbor's light;
 In the mornin'—goodness me!
 Barn nor shed wa'n't here nor there,
 Fences an' the old stonewall Zigzagged off nowhere at all,
 An' the drifts piled everywhere.

Road was lost, an' way plumb full,
 So's they didn't have no school;
 Windows white an' all snowed up,
 Till you couldn't see, you know,
 Everything was all a-blur,
 Snow so deep you couldn't stir
 'Thout you's tangled up in snow.

An' you couldn't shet the door,
 Nor open it an inch, afore Sh-sh-wish! 'twould whistle down your neck,

An' away your hat would whew;
 When you tried to dig a track
 'Fore you's through 'twould all blow back;

Wish 'twould snow, an' blow, don't you?

Put right in an' blow an' snow,
 Like it used to long ago,
 So's you'd stick 'round home all day,
 An' play checkers, an' stroke the cat,
 An' not be worryin' a mite,
 But jest run loose, an' feel jest right;
 Don't you wish 'twould snow like that?

HERBERT RANDALL

Bad Storms of
 March 1916,
 Heavy Snow,
 Thunder & Lightning, Cold & Heat,
 Heavy fall April 8, 1916

NEW YORK 50 YEARS AGO

Its Churches Were Features of the Sky Line, and So Were Picturesque — Individuals Among Its Citizens

New York city in March, 1916, is described by "C. E. G." as he saw it as a young man, in the following article, written for The Sunday Republican:—

Travelers from the East by the Sound steamers got a sky-line view of the city that cannot be obtained now. The spires of the churches towered above the business buildings, many of which were not more than five stories high. A tall tower near Beekman street, used in connection with a shot factory, was a rival of the spires, and the waterfront was entirely different from the present time. The piers were mostly free from sheds. Sailing vessels abounded and their bowsprits projected across South street in many places. A constant procession of drays and trucks made this and West street very busy thoroughfares. The harbor was full of ferry boats and tugs, some of the latter towing large floats loaded with railroad cars.

There are very few parts of the city that resemble now their appearance in 1866. One is Fifth avenue for about four blocks north from Washington square and the adjacent side streets. Greenwich village in some parts looks as it did 50 years ago, but its Protestant population has long since departed and the churches they worshiped in have mostly been abandoned. There were some private residences on Broadway near Fourteenth street and a few on Bond, Great Jones and Bleeker streets. De Pauw Row on Bleeker street, now the site of a Mill's hotel, was occupied by well-to-do families. A. T. Stewart, if he did not live there then, had only moved away a few years before. Union and Madison squares had many private residences.

The large retail dry goods stores were all south of Fourteenth street. Arnold, Constable company on Canal street, just west of Broadway. Lord & Taylor at Broadway and Grand street. A. T. Stewart had only recently moved to Broadway and Tenth street. His new store which occupied an entire block was the talk of the town. He was one of the men most widely known for his wealth and business ability although few people knew him by sight. William B. Astor, son of the original John Jacob, was another man noted for his wealth. His business office was on Prince street, near Broadway. Moses Taylor and Marshall O. Roberts were also frequently mentioned in the same category. The shipping merchants were also well known, such as the firms of A. A. Low & Son, Burling Slip, Grinnell, Minturn & Co. and Howland & Aspinwall on South street.

Most of the hotels were on Broadway beginning with the Stevens house at Bowling Green. The Howard house was on the corner of Maiden Lane. The Astor was run by the Stetsons. North of Canal street were the Metropolitan and St Nicholas, both expensive hostleries. The New York and Southern hotels, the latter now the Broadway Central, had a large southern patronage. The Fifth Avenue and Hoffman were also well patronized, but were considered quite up town. On Fifth avenue the Brevoort was a favorite hotel with visiting foreigners.

The financial district was small, being mostly on Wall street. That street between William and Broadway has been entirely rebuilt. Broad street between the stock exchange was occupied by merchants' offices. The general public was very slightly interested in the stock market. The present facilities for people of moderate means did not then exist. The press made frequent mention of the operations on a large scale of Commodore Vanderbilt and his old rival, Daniel Drew. Jay Gould and James Fisk, Jr., were just beginning to attract public attention. The office of the Erie railroad had not been moved to the Grand opera house on Eighth avenue, from which building they and their cohorts were finally ejected by Gen Sickles, who was called home from Spain to superintend the job.

Two noticeable features in the down-town business district between now and then are the number of retail stores on Broadway, south of Fulton street, and the numbers of young women now employed in the different offices. There were practically no retail stores and women were only occasionally seen in that part of the town except as they came from the ferries. The post-office was in an old Dutch church building on Nassau street now the site of the Mutual Life building.

The leading morning papers were the Herald, Times and Tribune. The Herald was in a quarrel with the theaters and as a result had lost their advertising. The Times had the largest circulation among the merchants and well-to-do classes. The Tribune was a power, but its circulation was small. Many of the churches were so small that they were almost invisible. There were a few churches on Broadway, one on Fourteenth street. There was a Reformed church on Beekman street and another on Fulton street. In the latter, noon prayer-meetings were still being held continued from the time of the great revival in 1857 to 1858. Trinity was, of course, influential, although one heard little about the personnel of the clergy. St Thomas's was on Broadway, corner of Houston street. One heard more about the sexton of Grace church than of the pastor. He was one Brown, who had the reputation of being a social arbiter, a sort of earlier Ward McAllister, and was said to be frequently consulted by newly rich people to name the proper guests for their social functions. He is one of the few sextons whose memory is perpetuated by a tablet in the church which he served. Among pulpit orators Rev E. H. Chapin of the Fifth-Avenue Universalist church stood high, although Henry Ward Beecher's church in Brooklyn was the mecca of most church-going visitors. A pleasant Sunday was accomplished by hearing him in the morning and visiting Greenwood cemetery in the afternoon.

The theaters were all South of Fourteenth street, Wallack's being the farthest north on Broadway and Thirteenth street. Niblo's Garden was a part of the Metropolitan hotel and the Winter Garden similarly situated in the Southern hotel. Mrs John Wood was managing the Olympic at 622 Broadway. Barnum's museum had been burned at Broadway and Ann street in 1865 and had relocated near Prince street. Butler's music hall, an early vaudeville house, was at 444 Broadway. There were two theaters on the Bowery, the Old and the New. Negro minstrel shows were popular; Bryant's and the San Francisco minstrels were well patronized. That the uptown movement was still in abeyance is evidenced by the fact that the Academy of Music on Fourteenth street, which burned in the spring of 1866, was rebuilt on the same site.

C. E. G.

RIVER AT 20 FEET, 5 INCHES; RAIN IS PREDICTED FOR TODAY

River Reaches End of Commerce Street—Pumping Stations in Use.

APRIL 4, 1916.

9 FEET TO GO TO EQUAL 1854 FLOOD

Large Part of East Side Inundated on May 1 of That Year.

The Connecticut River freshet reached a height of twenty feet and five inches opposite the dock of the Hartford & New York Transportation Company late yesterday afternoon after a gradual rise since Saturday. The freshet continued to rise higher last night and rain is predicted for today. Local Weather Forecaster W. W. Neifert believes a warm rain today, if it lasted very long, would cause the freshet to increase several feet in height within two days. The overflow of the Connecticut River reached up to the State street end of Commerce street yesterday afternoon and teams entering Commerce street to reach the unloading dock of the transportation company's wharf were forced to go through a half foot of water for part of the way.

If the predicted rain for today materializes, it is probable that considerable snow still on the ground at places to the north, will be melted and swell the river. The first rain will result in adding largely to the great volume of water now flowing in the Connecticut River and its already flooded tributaries.

Parts of the East Side have been inundated by the overflow from the river banks and it has become necessary for some residents in East Hartford to use boats to get to the Connecticut boulevard from their houses.

Conditions have not become as severe as on some occasions in former years when the entire "Meadow Section" has been covered with water. Many places along the west bank of the river have been covered with water, including Riverside Park, the bank from the East Hartford bridge to the Gas Company's plant and the emergency oil-power tanks of the Hartford Electric Light Company.

Because of extent of the rise it has become necessary to operate continually the two pumping stations owned by the city on Potter and Sheldon streets, which pump sewage from the entire eastern part of the city into the river, preventing a backflow of the river into the East Side sewers. The Potter street station contains five pumps which have a total capacity of 51,800 gallons a minute under maximum conditions while the Sheldon street station contains two pumps, one of which is operated by steam.

Flood of 1854.

It does not seem probable that the flood this spring will endanger the record for spring freshets on the Connecticut River, for the freshet of 1854, rose to the height of twenty-nine feet and ten inches, and the entire eastern part of the city was flooded from Front street to the river bank.

The flood of 1854, caused principally by continued rains for several days which started when the river was unusually high and which ended in many houses near the banks of river being partly or completely submerged so that it was necessary for Mayor Henry C. Deming to open City Hall and allow the refugees to seek shelter there until the water receded.

People living on the East Side were taken out of reach of the rising waters in boats and many business establishments in the vicinity of Front street suffered heavy financial losses in addition to being forced to suspend business. The water backed up into the course of the Park River, and Ford, Elm and Arch streets were flooded. An account in "The Courant" at the time says that Colonel Samuel Colt had a large number of men working for him whose shanties in the meadows were completely submerged by the water. It being necessary to find other quarters for the men temporarily, several houses in East Hartford were carried down the river by the flood and others were affected by the rise of water on the Farmington River. To complete the disaster, the gas works refused to work and the city was in darkness except for oil lamps.

ORVILLE N. BEEBE
HAS HARTFORD WIFE

May Be Bigamy

ORVILLE N. BEEBE

MARRIED IN SOUTH

Ric

Criminal p
may be brou Beebe, forme
married Mrs. widow, in R and who has

from whom divorced. The Mrs. Alice (100 Windsor; T. Mather of brother and say last night would be that he intimated the Richmond verified Mr. cuted for big

The marriage to Mr. Mathe heard of it yesterday mu Beebe brou against his charging des to pay the dered by the the case wa superior cou not granted. Beebe's cha basis in fact. time by Mr. that Mr. Be interested in where he h vals for four Mr. Beebe have been and have a who lives in

Mr. Beebe's business in and where entered the Hartford a three years
divorce, he wife in Esse

The author Beebe from the past for much of his Richmond. there to live Beebe came Then, last I suit for div

Mrs. Beebe of her brother, referred her to her husband and would Mr. Mather care to give her the money he had learned of the Rich-

James 5 1/2 x 8 .
 nderful illustr:
 of Set, 9 poun
 9 cents
 4 Zones, 13 "

Former Hartford Man Weds
Richmond Widow.

(Special to The Courant.)

Richmond, Va., April 8.
Orville Nye Beebe, 34 years old, an automobile manufacturer of Nashville, Tenn., was married here on April 1, to Mrs. Sadie Savage Lester, of this city, a widow; it was not an-

Orville N. Beebe.

WANTED TO BE WED
WITHOUT PUBLICITY

Beebe Asked Richmond, Va., Mayor How To Do It.

(Special to The Courant.)

Richmond, Va., April 9.

Although Orrville N. Beebe, gave his occupation as automobile manufacturer of Nashville, Tenn., when he got the marriage licence here April 1, notices of his marriage to Mrs. Sadia Savage Lester, which appeared in society columns of the local papers several days later, said that he would be located at the Hotel Patton, Chattanooga, after a honeymoon in the South. He gave his native home in Savannah.

It is also learned that he called on Mayor Ainslie, soon after getting his license, and asked that official, whom he knew personally, how he could get HIS DIVORCED, much

eebe Claims He Got a Decree in Tennessee on March 14.

Orville N. Beebe claims to have been divorced from Alice Mather Beebe of this city before he married Mrs. Sadie Lester Savage, in Richmond, Va., April 1. According to a letter which Mr. Beebe sent to the Deep River New Era, he obtained a divorce at Knoxville, Tenn., March

BEEBE'S DIVORCE.

Secured in Tennessee March 14 on Ground That Connecticut Wife Deserted Him.

'Special to The Times.

Knoxville, Tenn., May 3.

Orville N. Beebe secured a divorce from Alice Mather Beebe, of Hartford, Conn., in this city, March 14. The bill of complaint alleged that were married in Essex, Conn., May 26, 1897, and that the wife deserted her husband, going to Hartford and later to Massachusetts. Beebe came to Knoxville, December 26, 1915, and he claimed to have lived in Nashville, this state, prior to that.

In the action for divorce, which was given an ex-parte hearing, depositions of Beebe's mother, Mrs. Frederick Beebe of Essex, Conn., and another woman, were introduced. The complaint further alleged that Mrs. Orville N. Beebe had not lived with her husband for more than two years.

Beebe, a native of Essex and well-known in Hartford, married Mrs. Sadie Lester Savage, a Richmond, Va., widow in that city, April 1, and the news of it created quite a stir among his Connecticut acquaintances, as it was not known here that he had secured a divorce in the south. His attempt to get a decree in the superior court for Hartford county last December failed. When information of his second marriage came north, Judge Thomas D. Coulter of Essex intimated that he had knowledge of the divorce secured in the south. Mrs. Alice Mather Beebe, living on Windsor avenue, this city, did not know she had been divorced.

GOLDEN WEDDING FOR HARTFORD COUPLE

April 3, 1916

Tomorrow is the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Preston Canfield of No. 16 Roosevelt street, and in the afternoon and evening a reception will be held which will be attended by their friends and by Mr. Canfield's old associates in the Colt factory. Mr. Canfield was for forty years a polisher at Colt's Patent Firearms Manufacturing Company. He started in 1862 and worked during the war days and through the fire which destroyed the plant. After that he lived on his farm in Newington. The reception tomorrow will be from 3 to 5 o'clock and from 7 to 9 o'clock. A dinner for the family will be served at 5:30 o'clock.

Mr. Canfield was born in Deep River on May 27, 1842, the son of De Forest and Hannah (Childs) Canfield. He was one of eleven children, of whom two brothers, Frank Canfield of Rocky Hill and Fred Canfield of Dorchester, Mass., and two sisters, Miss Ella Canfield and Mrs. Adelaide Beach of Derby, are dead. His living brothers and sisters are Mrs. J. C. Rotsford of No. 335 Laurel street, Mrs. T. A. Harris of Montreal, Canada, Charles D. Canfield of Rocky Hill, Mass., Mrs. E. S. Thatcher of Housatonic, Mass., Mrs. E. C. Brown and Mrs. Charles Van Deusen of Seymour.

His wife was Mary A. Heath, a daughter of Joshua S. and Emily (Hart) Heath, and was born in West Avon April 27, 1844. She was one of three sisters. One, Mrs. Elizur Kee-

MARRIED FIFTY YEARS.

MR. AND MRS. PRESTON CANFIELD.

Their home is filled with china, silver, pictures and linen. A dinner for the immediate relations of the couple was served at 5:30 o'clock, at which eighteen were present.

MR. BOGUE IN POST OFFICE 25 YEARS.

Supervision of Postal Sav-

y Order

ARTHUR T. BOGUE.

16 perintendent
partment at will on April
th the office

nted to the t April 1, highest civil a class of otion from apid and in ge of 22, he e charge of the vacancy
n of Robert ie the study
held the po-and besides enormously
nd had nu-

e's appoint-week of De-were 1,445

money order transactions, involving about $13,622. Reports for a recent week, show 5,000 transactions, involving approximately $90,000. Twenty-five years ago all business was transacted through the central office, there being no sub-stations. At the present time there are twenty-six sub-stations besides Station A and the East Hartford station. Mr. Bogue supervised the installation of money order departments in all of these stations. He also supervised the installation of the postal savings system in this city in 1911. It has at present 1,200 depositors with de-ling $150,000.

ue was born June 30, 1870, a. Being one of a large was necessary for him to nd hustle, and after receiv-ooling in the small coun- house he started for Hart-ter working as a clerk in or some time he took the ce examinations and re-appointment under Major ten postmaster.

gue has had opportunity uman nature, having wait- public at the money order or fifteen years. In this g position he has met peo- ery class and has received letters from appreciative money order department of office at Hartford is recog- one of the best managed untry.

He has a wide acquaint- belongs to several frater- izations.

ril 29 Mr. and Mrs. Bogue, at No. 249 Wethersfield with their four children, . Annette M., a teacher in ry Dwight school; Thelma or at the high school, and T., taking a post-graduate at the high school prepara- tory to entering an engineering col- lege, will observe their silver wed- ing anniversary.

SMITH-BURKE
April 3 - 1916
The marriage of Miss

The marriage of Miss Ellen Dawson Burke, daughter of Charles C. Burke of Plainfield, N. J., and Henry DeWitt Smith of this city took place at 5 o'clock Monday at St. Stephen's church, Rev. Henry Mesler, church, officiating. Other relatives and friends attended by her sister L. Burke as maid of honor. N. Trumbull of best man. The ceremony followed by a reception the bride in Ravine.

The bride was graduated from Smith college in the class of 1908 and Mr. Smith from the Scientific school of Alaska in 1908. He is a member of the Alaska and they will live in Alaska.

SEASIDE ROM

ENDS IN

A. J. Bentley and Bragaw Mar Baltic.

April 3 — 1861

Andrew Jackson Ben
man in the school of fo nell University and so Mayor Bentley of New Miss Emily King Brag
of Mr. and Mrs. Isaac
No. 343 Windsor avenu
ried in Baltic on Mon

following Bentley is set of Hal
the Hart
She atten
year.

The Be
homes ad
tune Par Bragaw
had been hMiss Be in Philip
t) Bride's
w

Rocky home we noon at Olive Be Mrs. C Royce S Rev. M the Con home of wedding of green flowers. "A Perf march bride's g with lace caught v carried Skinner bride, w Skinner's chine, he tions. ington, a best man Eulah B and carr white swa trip to N trip to N. Mrs. A. J. Bentley, Fort Mr. and Mrs. Sherwood will live in Rocky Hill.

Decorations of marked originality and beauty will characterize the marriage of Miss Pauline Daisy Kempner, daughter of Mrs. Nathan Kempner of the Highland Court ho-

Wolff-Kempner Wedding at Hotel

Bond in Midst of Weqlth of Daisies.

April 6, 1916

MISS PAULINE DAISY KEMPNER, BRIDE-TO-BE.

uests are assemgo," will be given lssohn Wedding summer Night's elssohn as the
and "To a Wild
ll will be played y.
to be followed by he decorations of also be used. The have a hollow
owers and ferns,
bles yellow daisies
lue cornflowers in
for mthe decora-

...nily King Bragaw. ...ding trip through the south Mr. Wolff and his bride will live at Far Rockaway, L. I.

REV. DR. HAZEN RESIGNS PASTORATE Middletown Minister Will End Service After Forty- seven Years. TO-DAY IS HIS

75th BIRTHDAY
North Church, in 248
Years, Has Had Only
Ten Pastors. 1916

Middletown, April 10.—At the close of the sermon at the North Congregational church, Sunday morning, the Rev. F. W. Greene, pastor of the South Congregational church, who was preaching at the North church by exchange, read the resignation of the Rev. Azel Washburn Hazen, D.D., who has been the pastor of the North church for a little more than forty-seven years, and who to-day is 75 years old. Leaning forward over the open Bible on the pulpit, and addressing his hearers as "My friends," Mr. Greene stated that he had a duty to perform which was for himself and for them a sad one. He said that thirty-two years ago the pastor of this church signed the paper which gave him license to preach the Gospel, and which probably led later to his coming to Middletown as pastor of the South church, since which event Dr. Hazen had been to him a father and a friend. He then read the following letter:

To the Members of the First Church of Christ and of the First Ecclesiastical Society in Middletown.

My Dear Friends:
The time seems to me to have arrived when I should withdraw from the pastorate which I have held for more than forty-seven years. They have been years of incessant labor, for I have given to the church whatever of time and strength I have had to bestow. Of their fruitage, it is not for me to speak.

But the calendar tells me that my seventy-fifth birthday is near, and reminds me that it is prudent for me to lessen the tasks on my hands. Hence it is due to you, as well as to myself, that I resign the trust committed to me by a former generation, nearly all of whom have passed into the unseen world. This I now do, with profound regret for the manifold imperfections of my service, yet with genuine gratitude to you for your unflinching confidence, sympathy and comfort. If agreeable to you, I suggest that this resignation take effect on the first of July next.

"And now I commend you to God, and to the Word of His grace, which is able to build up, and to give you the inheritance among all them that are sanctified."

Your affectionate pastor, (Signed)

AZEL WASHBURN HAZEN.
Deacon Angur's Tribute.

E. P. Angur, a member of the North church since 1873, a deacon and treasurer of the church for many years, has prepared this appreciative sketch of the long pastorate of Dr. Hazen:

Dr. Hazen was graduated from Dartmouth college, in 1863. He studied theology at Hartford and Andover seminaries, graduating from the latter in 1868. Soon after he was invited to preach in the old North church, which then stood on the west side of Main street, next south of the post-office, where the flock owned and until recently occupied in part by the Farmers' and Mechanics' Savings bank, now stands. Later he received a call to become its pastor. At first he thought of declining the call, but the Rev. C. L. Goodale, then pastor of the South Congregational church in New Britain, whose advice he

THE REV. DR. A. W. HAZEN.

accept the and in- More than y fruitful followed. pastor of ary Butler ughter of son, D.D., seminary. i to them, 'ancy, and on Hazen, college, w school, s law in rtiring la- frs. Hazen ad success en largely ears of his rch edifice t in 1871 n was in- was dedi- in 1873. he Board- onage was e old one. house and i has also ish house and part of. From time to time several bequests have been made, thus adding to the financial resources of the church and society. So much concerning its material gain.

During the pastorate 1,219 persons have united with the church by profession or by letter. Of that number many have gone to other churches and many have died. Of those who were members at the beginning of this pastorate only fifteen are now living. The church now has many societies and organ-ssionary. (Special to The Courant, 1912) religious hich the o as a

MIDDLETOWN, Friday, March 8. The coming Sunday will mark an anniversary for Rev. Dr. A. W. Hazen, pastor emeritus of the North Congregational Church. It was March 10, 1869 that Dr. Hazen became pastor of the North Church, edifying. This was the only pastorate he ever held. He resigned two years ago and was succeeded by Dr. Parker. He will be the oldest church member of the very of the state. Dr. Parker long and marked his tional clerg

In reading the resignation Rev. Greene spoke of the fact that Dr. Hazen had signed his papers thirty-two years ago when he first started to preach. He said that he had always been a very faithful friend to him and commended him for his activity and zeal as a fellow worker in the church life of Middletown. Mr. Greene said he spoke of this because for twenty-one years he had been associated with him here in church work. He said that he appreciated the fact that Dr. Hazen had honored him by asking him to perform the hard task of reading his resignation while the members of the congregation had the hard task of listening to it.

By reason of his long connection with the local church, Dr. Hazen is probably one of the best known pastors in the state. He was ordained here March 10, 1869, but had served as pastor of the church here since the previous November, so that when his resignation takes effect, he will really have been at the local church for almost 48 years.

Dr. Hazen is a Dartmouth graduate, being a member of the class of 1868. In 1888 his alma mater awarded him the honorary degree of D. D. While at Dartmouth Dr. Hazen was a member of the Psi Upsilon fraternity. After graduation he attended the Andover and Hartford Theological seminaries.

During his almost fifty years of residence here, Dr. Hazen has been honored in many ways. Since 1892 he has been a trustee of Wesleyan University. He is also trustee of the Hartford Theological Seminary and of the Russell Library Corporation.

MIDDLETOWN, Tuesday, April 11.

Mr. and Mrs. James P. Fay, lifelong residents of this city, celebrated the fiftieth anniversary of their wedding yesterday. In addition to being their wedding anniversary, the date was also the seventy-third anniversary of Mr. Fay's birth. Mr. Fay was born in the Westfield district on April 10, 1843, while Mrs. Fay, who was Miss Annie Hubbard, was born in the Long Hill District, being the daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Sylvester Hubbard. They were married April 10, 1866, at the Hubbard Homestead by Rev. John Pegg, at that time pastor of the First Methodist Church. Mr. Fay was in his boyhood days a pupil at the famous Chase School. He has been a bookkeeper a large share of his life starting in which D. R. Benham, at one time a merchant tailor in this city, and later being with Reed & Burr, the coal dealers. He finally spent two years with the W. H. Chapman Company at South Farms, but for the past thirty-three years has been in the office of the Wilcox, Crittenden Company. Mr. Fay is a member of Sachem Lodge of the Ancient Order of United Workmen, is active in the First Methodist Church, and has for forty-seven years been a member of Central Lodge of Odd Fellows. There was no formal celebration of the anniversary yesterday, but Mr. and Mrs. Fay spent the day at their home, where they received many

FIFTY YEARS OF MARRIED LIFE

About April 9,

Mr. and Mrs. Ross O'Loughlin of Willimantic as they appeared surrounded by their children and grandchildren, upon the occasion of their golden wedding anniversary, which was celebrated in that city the past week. They have lived their entire married life of fifty years in the Thread City, except for a brief time two years ago when they moved to Hartford, only to return. Those in the picture are, reading from left to right:— Top row, John O'Loughlin, Mrs. John J. O'Loughlin, John J. O'Loughlin, Thomas F. Henry, Thomas O'Loughlin, Dr. Thomas F. O'Loughlin, Mrs. Thomas F. O'Loughlin, Thomas A. O'Brien. Middle row, Thomas F. Henry, Miss Mary Henry, Mrs. Ross O'Loughlin, Henry O'Loughlin, Miss Catherine Ross O'Loughlin, Miss Bessie O'Loughlin, Mrs. Thomas A. O'Brien. Bottom row, Thomas Henry.

WITH PHOENIX 40 YEARS.

Retires 1916 on 1914
Charles F. Gladding Remembered

By Officers and Associates of Mutual Life Company.

April 3 - 1916

Charles F. Gladding of the Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance company, celebrated his fortieth anniversary with the company to-day and received, besides many flowers and congratulations, a substantial check from the officers of the company and a solid silver serving tray from his office associates. The presentation was rather a surprise to Mr. Gladding, who was called out of the office and on rereturning found his desk heaped with presents.

Mr. Gladding was born in Providence, and came to this city in 1875 to work as an accountant in the office of the state insurance commissioner. Leaving that office he entered the employ of the Phoenix on April 3, 1876, when that company was located in the building now partly occupied by the Alderman Drug company. He removed with the company to the Connecticut Mutual building and then to the present building. His services have always

WOMAN DELEGATE TO NAVY LEAGUE.

Mrs. Ryce Is Widow of Army Officer and Sister of an Admiral.

For the first time in the history of the Navy league of the United States women have been named as delegates to the convention of the league, from April 10 to 13, at Washington, D. C., and to Mrs. Frances Bunce Ryce of No. 187 St. Journey street has come the honor of representing Hartford. She is chairman of the Hartford committee of the women's section of the league. It is a particularly appropriate honor. Mrs. Ryce has taken an active interest in the affairs of the army and navy, and was closely associated with the important military events of this country through her husband, the late Captain Henry Ryce, who was ordnance officer on the staff of General Hancock during the Civil war. Her brother, the late Francis M. Bunce, was a rear-admiral in the United States navy. Mrs. Ryce long resided in Washington.

Mrs. Ryce spent several months in Camp Stoneman, near Arlington, where she arrived on the very day on which President Lincoln was assassinated, and remained until after the grand review, during which she was a guest of General Hancock. At the conclusion of the Spanish war she was among the leaders in giving aid to the returning soldiers, and it was through her experiences in those two wars that Mrs. Ryce became a firm believer in the importance of preparedness, and joined the women's section of the navy league as soon as it was formed.

When She Joined.

"It was rather unusual, the way in which I happened to join," said Mrs. Ryce to-day in speaking of her appointment as a delegate. "Last summer a boy came past my house calling extras, and although I never buy them I got a copy that afternoon."

CHARLES F. GLADDING.

After her marriage to the captain, who had been wounded in the war, he returned to camp, joining Hancock's corps, Mrs. Ryce with him, and after the end of the war they lived in Washington, where Mrs. Ryce frequently visits now.

"I was present when congress gave the appropriation for the Spanish war and I saw the soldiers

MRS. FRANCES B. RYCE.

"she says, the two wars convinced me. During Civil War, I was with General Sherman where with everything. I was in the morning and assassinated of it while the government was they would the lines to to George Washington for the not know the president had an uprising the excitement Kinley was was worse." at the camp the death to marked the d a wonder Mrs. Ryce, splendid."

ain.

d I was one the soldiers gton on the n coffee and all near the so eager for ioned at the went to the and did not was terribly took turns making sand- our races. I cticut regi sent nurses found dead men, with and flies all he sick men awful and condition in home from hrough lack, I say now, necessary to prepared for t she would on now and in these war

litical Con-

and

Our new

BL

April

11.1.1916

One of the larger home weddings of the late Lenten season took place last evening in the home of Mr and Mrs William Albert Cone on Clarendon street, when their daughter, Miss Claribel Cone, became the bride of Marshall Lincoln Moulton, formerly of Monson, and son of Mr and Mrs H. T. Moulton of that town. The ceremony, which took place in the living room of the Cone home at 7 o'clock, was Immediately after the ceremony an informal reception was held during which Mr and Mrs Moulton received the good wishes of the 125 or more guests. The many and beautiful gifts of silver, cut glass, china, linen and furniture were shown in a room on the second floor. Among them was a mahogany tea wagon, the gift of the Music Students' club.

During the reception the following program was given by the members of the Music Students' club: "Overture and Wedding March" (Mendelssohn), Miss Ruth M. Murray; violin solo, "Cavatina" (Hollander), Miss Doris Coe; vocal solo, "The Year's at the Spring" (Beach), Miss Fannie G. Denio; piano solo, "March Wind" (MacDowell), Miss Rachel Holden; vocal solo, "Birthday" (Woodman), Mrs C. M. Ladd; violin solo, "Hungarian Dance" (Haesche), Miss Coe; vocal solo, "A Perfect Day" (Bond), Miss Denio and Miss Coe; a chorus of members of the club, under the direction of Miss Ethel Loynes, with Miss Marie Hapgood as accompanist, "Oh Promise Me."

Mr and Mrs Moulton left last evening on a wedding trip of about two weeks. Mrs Moulton wore a suit of brown checked cloth, with brown hat to match. They are to make their home with the bride's parents and will receive their friends after July 1 in Suffield, Ct., where Mr and Mrs Cone, who are to give up their home in this city, have recently bought an estate on Main street in that town.

Last evening's bride received her education in the MacDuffie school in this city and at Wheaton seminary in Norton. She has devoted much of her time to the study of music and has been soloist at various churches in the city and in neighboring places. For the past two years she has sung in the Central Baptist church in Westfield. Mr Moulton is a graduate of Monson academy. He lived in that town until he came to Springfield two years ago to enter business.

Among the out-of-town guests were the parents of the bridegroom, Mr and Mrs H. T. Moulton of Monson; Mr and Mrs S. S. Brooks and daughter, Miss Florence Brooks, and Mr and Mrs C. J. Bates and daughter, Miss Florence Bates, all of Chester, Ct.; Mr and Mrs Dexter Phelps, Jr., of Hartford, Ct.; Mr and Mrs J. H. Conant and Miss Bessie Cole of East Brookfield, Mr and Mrs Harold C. Moulton of Hartford, Ct., and Mr and Mrs Joseph Arnold and daughter, Miss Madeline Arnold of Southwick, and Mr and Mrs Carl E. W. Welcome and son, Carl, Jr., of Westfield.

GOLDEN WEDDING IN SOUTHTON

Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Martyn
To Celebrate Tuesday

SOUTHTON, Saturday, April 8.

On Tuesday, April 11, Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Sanford S. Martyn of Plantsville will complete fifty years of married life and the family are to celebrate the golden wedding at the family home, No. 30 Hillside avenue. No formal invitations have been sent out but from 2 to 5 o'clock in the afternoon will be set aside to welcome any who wish to call. The evening is given up to the children with the grandchildren in charge and with a special program arranged by them. On Wednesday there will be a family dinner at which twenty will be present, all of the immediate family.

Mr. Martyn was born in Haverhill, Mass., where his father, Rev. Dr. J. H. Martyn was pastor at the time. His father previously and afterwards was a New York city pastor. Mr. Martyn had his early home and received his early education in New York. He had early training in newspaper life but later decided to go to college and become a minister. He is descended from a long line of Congregational ministers. He and his wife also came of the old New England ancestry both having ancestors in the American Revolution. Mr. Martyn is a graduate in the class of 1865 of Yale College and in 1868 of the Yale Theological School.

Mr. Martyn retired from pastoral duties something over a decade ago on account of failing eyesight and moved from Haydenville, Mass., to Southington, his wife's home town and bought his present home abode in Plantsville. He occasionally preaches in town and elsewhere, his life having been a very active one and having a wide range. He was some years ago pastor of the First Congregational Church in Derby and was ordained pastor in Newington, this state. His more prominent pastorates have been in Nashua, N. H., Terre Haute, Indiana, and Windsor, Vt.

Mr. and Mrs. Martyn were married April 11, 1866 in Milldale by Rev. William R. Eastman who is still living and enjoying an active and vigorous old age. Mrs. Martyn's maiden name was Miss Frances L.

Alk Marvel's Son for Navy, 13
Congressman John Q. Tilson has nominated Walter T. Hart, Jr., of New Haven, for entrance to the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis, Md. Young Hart is a grandson of Donald G. Mitchell, better known as "Ik Marvel," whose home in Westville was one of the places to which New Haven residents took visitors. The young man spent his childhood on the Mitchell estate. One of the alternates, who has a chance if Hart does not take it, is Allan E. Jullin, son of Charles E. Jullin, who was Governor Woodruff's executive secretary.

Windsor, April 11.—Mrs. Caroline Clark Down of Elm street is to be one of three principals to lead some of the choruses in "The Melody Maid," to be given in Parsons's thea-

S. LeR. Livingston and Miss Shaw, West Hartford,

93

Tell Parents.

ED IN APRIL

MILLERTON, N. Y.

April 15, 1916

Lark—Second in

ly—Had House

ll Prepared.

at 28, 1916

to be simply engaged, but married since last April, Roy Livingston, 21 years t Hartford, and Miss Alice 8 years old, of Elmwood, howed their parents their certificate, dated April 15, n, N. Y., and told them vere ready to occupy the h had been rented two o, in preparation for the oming wedding and that ng would have to be

Mr. Livingston is the stable James Livingston ivingston and the bride is er of Mr. and Mrs. John he marriage is the second in the Livingston family r.

nts of the young people position to the marriage performed secretly largely Millerton was chosen sim- venient place outside the and Mrs. Livingston have ng preparations for two go housekeeping, while its supposed they were aged, and had engaged a Jessamine street, West

It was ready Saturday sterday was the first day ington's vacation, they inexpected announcement l wedding and started to r new home.

g people are popular in ord. Mr. Livingston is best amateur basketball players in this section and up to the disbanding of the Lucky Fifteen team was its captain. Mrs. Livingston was employed in the Abbott Ball Company's office in Elmwood and Mr. Livingston is a clerk in the Riverside Trust Company.

This is the second secret marriage in the Livingston family this summer, the other being that of Irving Livingston, the 19-years-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Livingston, and Miss Hazel Schneider, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Schneider of South street, Elmwood. This wedding took place in May and it was several days before the families of the couple knew of it. Irving Livingston was

April 17, 1916
Rev. Oliver Hart Bronson of the Center Church, New Haven, has accepted a call from the Tabernacle Church, Salem, Mass. He was, for some years, pastor of the Congregational Church in Simsbury and is well known in this city.

Rev. Oliver Hart Bronson, pastor of the Center Church, New Haven, has received a call for the Tabernacle Church, Salem, Mass.

MRS. CAROLINE CLARK DOWN.

only daughter, Cora Elizabeth, became the bride of Emery Leon Main, only son of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Main. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. George A. Tuttle, of Amherst, Mass. The bride

WEST HARTFORD 324

GIRL WEDS HERE

Miss Marjorie M. Livingston and Winfred V. Guilan Married.

Marjorie M. Livingston, daughter of Constable James Livingston, and Mrs. Livingston, and Winfred V. Guilan, of Brooklyn, N. Y., were married Monday evening at the parsonage of the North Methodist Church in Hartford by Rev. J. D. Roberts, pastor of the church. Mrs. Guilan was an employee of the Travelers Insurance Company and Mr. Guilan is a clerk of the Aetna Life Insurance Company. They are living at the home of the bride's parents on Pleasant street, West Hartford, for the present.

COMPASS, GOVERNORS FOOT

April 1916
 Sir Charles Wyndham and Miss Mary Moore have at last got married. Both have played here in Hartford at Parsons Theater. Their first appearance here, as we find by Mr. Parsons's theatrical souvenir, was in March, 1905, and their second appearance in February, 1910. The first time they played "David Garrick," and the second time "The Mollusc." The London account of their marriage describes "David Garrick" as that "wonderful evergreen," and in regard to "The Mollusc" says that, "from the standpoint of pure comedy, it may be questioned whether either ever achieved greater success" than in it. Hartford evidently got their best, and many Hartford theatergoers must remember their work. The droll thing is that they have been playing together for more than thirty years and have only just got married.

The London account says that "their marriage marks the climax of a long and interesting association, bound to hold a prominent place in theatrical annals." The way this association first began is thus related:—

Miss Moore's first husband, as everybody knows, was the brilliant playwright, James Albery, whom she married at the early age of 16. Talented as he undoubtedly was, Albery found, like most dramatists of his time, that writing for the stage was not by any means an overpaid business. So, to relieve the economic strain at home, his wife determined to go on the stage, a step to which she was largely influenced by Mrs. Bronson Howard, Sir Charles Wyndham's sister. All she could obtain, however, was a small part in one of Wyndham's touring companies. Before long she made the unpleasant discovery that the position had been given her merely out of a kindly feeling and a desire to help. A stroke of good luck brought about an unexpected change. Wyndham happened to be playing at Liverpool in "The Candidate," when the actress engaged for the part of Lady Oldacre fell ill. In the emergency Miss Moore was sent for to take her place. That she did with such conspicuous success as to induce her manager to bring her to London.

Their theatrical work in "David Garrick" won the approval of royalty, which is estimated as a winning card in England, and which in their case really meant something, because King Edward the Seventh was no mean judge of stage work. Later they took the same play to Berlin. This London writer describes both incidents as follows:—

So pleased was King Edward VII. (then Prince of Wales) with the piece, that he promptly arranged a command performance at Sandringham, where, in 1887, it was given in the presence of himself, the Princess of Wales, and a distinguished house party. It is worth recalling that later in the same year Wyndham and Miss Moore accepted an invitation to appear in it at Berlin, and although the German manager bluntly predicted a complete fiasco, the curtain, much to his surprise, fell to tumultuous applause, the two English artists, who, of course, had studied their parts in German, being cheered to the echo.

That was thirty years before this present war, and it is rather surprising that the English writer remembered it, and more surprising still that he ventured to mention it without a trace of the current war feeling. But it was not only in stage work that these two were together; they also became associates in business. "It is no secret," it is said in this London account, "that they have been largely associated in business ventures, Miss Moore being a partner with Sir Charles in the building and running of his various theaters, the New, Wyndham's, and the Criterion." Evidently Miss Moore has made a good thing out of the stage, and, what is equally important, has known how to save her money.

How old are the newly-wedded pair? Sir Charles was born in 1837, so that he must be very nearly a mature man of 80 years—old enough, at any rate, to go home after the play and stay there. Definite statistics are not available in the case of Miss Moore, but it is easy to conjecture how the years have piled themselves up for her. Making her first venture into matrimonial life when 16 years old, it probably required two or three years to convince her that the lack of bread and butter in the household cupboard of a play-writer who could not sell his plays was likely to be permanent, and that she must find her own bread and butter. It was as Lady Amaranth in the comedy of "Wild Oats," in 1886, that her name first appeared with that of Charles Wyndham on a West-end program. Allowing something for her stage beginnings, she was probably about 20 years old then, and that would place her now in the first bloom of the fifties, which is a fine marriageable age.

Wyndham's title of "Sir" comes through his having been made a member of the Imperial Society of

BUYS MAZARIN TAPESTRY.

Joseph P. Widener of Philadelphia
 Pays $600,000 for Famous Art Work Sold by J. P. Morgan.

New York, April 21.—Joseph E. Widener of Philadelphia, it is learned, has purchased for about $600,000, the famous Mazarin tapestry, one of forty such works of textile art collected by the late J. Pierpont Morgan, which his son, J. Pierpont Morgan, recently sold to an art dealer in this city. The tapestry has for its subject, "the triumph of Christ and of the New Dispensation." It is one of the finest in the world. It once was owned by Cardinal Mazarin of France.

BOYNTON AND WIFE DISAGREE IN COURT

*They were divorced
Life is a mystery
His little April 16*
Question for Judge Case is Which One Quit the Other.

Fanny P. Boynton, who lives at No. 371 Laurel street, was before Judge William S. Case in the superior court yesterday for a divorce from Herbert H. Boynton, who lives in Hop River, and who, it would appear, "cuts a considerable figure" in that section of the town of Coventry. Mrs. Boynton told the judge that her husband is station agent for the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company in Hop River, also telegraph operator, agent for the Adams Express Company and a former postmaster.

Boynton contested the suit. He was represented by Patrick J. Danahy and Percy S. Bryant and Morris S. Falk appeared for Mrs. Boynton. In addition to the divorce, Mrs. Boynton asked for alimony.

The complaint charges Boynton with desertion and adultery, but the lawyers for Mrs. Boynton said they would rely upon desertion as the ground of divorce. The maiden name of Mrs. Boynton was Perkins. She is a native of New Haven, and was married to Boynton in that city on December 22, 1891, having first met her husband while she was on a visit to Hop River.

After marriage they went to Hop River to live, and later they went to live in Willimantic in a house at No. 28 Union street, where Mrs. Boynton

Boynton in defense, denied that he had deserted his wife. He had been living in Willimantic though working in Hop River, he said, and as the civil service rules are enforced it was necessary for him to live within the jurisdiction of the post office to hold his position. He asked his wife to move to Hop River and she refused, he added. In order to hold his position he moved to Hop River and three or four days later his trunk and bicycle were shipped to him. Long before that, however, his wife had shown an enmity towards him in many ways, he said. One way was that the few boarders his wife had could smoke in the sitting room, but if he wanted to smoke he had to go out of doors.

After he went to Hop River, Boynton testified, he continued to pay $7 a week and when his wife came to this city, he at her request, paid her $10 a week. When she brought the divorce suit he stopped payments. Subsequently under order of the order of the court, he paid her $8 a week and he is now paying this sum. Boynton said that he had always been willing to provide a home for his wife, if she would but go to Hop River to live with him, but that she refused and it was necessary for him to go there to hold his position, he said. There was other testimony corroborative of what Boynton said, that his wife had declared she would not go to Hop River to live.

Judge Case reserved his decision.

MARRIED IN BOSTON

A. Sprague
Dr. W. G. Ballantine Officiates at Wedding of His Son and Miss Edith Perry April 15

With the guests including only the members of the two families, the marriage of Miss Edith Perry and Edward Ballantine, youngest son of Rev Dr and Mrs William Gay Ballantine of St James avenue, took place yesterday noon in the home of the bride's parents, Mr and Mrs Thomas Sergeant Perry, on Marlboro street, Boston. There were no attendants, and the ceremony was performed by Dr Ballantine. The bride wore a simple gown of white net over white brocade. Following a short wedding trip, Mr and Mrs Ballantine are to make their home at 497 Beacon street, Boston. Mr Ballantine is an instructor in the department of music at Harvard, and is also known as a composer. The bride is a member of a talented family, her father being a writer and her mother the artist, Mrs Lilla Cabot Perry. One of her sisters is Mrs Joseph Clark Grew, wife of the first secretary of the American embassy in Berlin.

MR. AND MRS. CLARK

60 YEARS WED

Grand Army Veterans Pay Visit To Terryville Couple.

(Special to The Courant.)

Terryville, April 16.

Many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Amzi P. Clark called upon them at their home on Main street yesterday and today to extend congratulations upon the sixtieth anniversary of their wedding. One of the features was the presence, on Saturday, of a dozen Civil War veterans, comrades of Mr Clark and members of Gilbert W. Thompson Post, G. A. R., of Bristol who brought with them sixty carnations and a quantity of daffodils. There were also many flowers from neighbors and friends.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark were married in Forestville April 16, 1856, by Rev. Calvin B. Ford, a clergyman of the Methodist Church, Mr. Clark being a clerk in the store of George Pierpont at that time. Mrs. Clark was formerly Miss Nancy A. Beach, a daughter of Isaac Curtiss and Eunice (Beecher) Beach of Northfield. They spent part of their married life in Southington but for nearly fifty-eight years have been identified with Terryville and are members of the Terryville Congregational Church. Mr. Clark is employed as a lock inspector in the Eagle Lock Company's works. He was a soldier for three years in the Civil War and was honorably discharged in 1865 with the rank of second lieutenant, having served in the Second Regiment, Connecticut Heavy Artillery.

Mr. and Mrs. Clark are the parents of eight children, six of whom are living: Mrs. Warren L. Goodwin of Waterbury, Mrs. Jonathan Starr of this place, Albert B. Clark of Washington, D. C., Charles D. W.

Miss Seligman Weds In London.

CL of London, April 19.—The wedding took place today at St. Margaret's Church of Captain Geoffrey T. F. De Teissier of the Scots Guards, and Miss Katherine Seligman. The bridegroom is the eldest son of Baron Henry de Teissier and the bride is the daughter of the late Theodore Seligman of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. E. S. Belden Entertain at Golden Wedding Reception.
Mr. Belden in Shipbuilding Business Most of His Long Life.

April 18 — 1916

A reception celebrating the golden wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Seabury Belden, of No. 217 Laurel street, was held at the home of their son, Herbert E. Belden, No. 34 Scarborough street, Tuesday evening, from 8 until 10 o'clock. About 200 guests were received.

Mr. Belden, who is 75 years old, and Mrs. Belden, who is 72, were born in Middletown, and spent their early years there, where Mr. Belden assisted his father, Seabury Belden, in the shipbuilding business. They were married April 18, 1866. Mrs. Belden was Miss Alice H. Coles, a sister of George A. Coles, president of the Middletown Savings bank. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. John Dudley, of the South Congregational church, Middletown.

Later Mr. Belden and his father removed to Hartford, and for many years conducted the Dutch Point shipyard under the firm name of S. & E. S. Belden. Shortly after the completion of the Connecticut Valley railroad they went to Rocky Hill and started a shipyard there. A great number of vessels were built at the yard, including lighters, barges and schooners, and the launching of these was considered a great event in the town. As the demand became less pressing, the company discontinued building operations and began operating their own vessels. Mr. and Mrs. Belden returned to Hartford in 1893, and occupied their present home on Laurel street.

Mr. and Mrs. Belden have two sons, Herbert E., of No. 34 Scarborough street, at whose home the reception was held, and Clifford H., of New London, Cornell, '99. These two sons have been in business with their father since the death of Seabury Belden, under the firm name of Eugene S. Belden & Sons., contractors for breakwaters, seawalls, bridges and piers, and also the carrying of heavy merchandise by water.

There are five grandchildren, Alice Coles Belden, 16 years old; Cornelia Williams Belden, 14 years old; and Margaret Williams Belden, 10 years old, children of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Belden; Eugene Seabury Belden, 2d, 5 years old, and Julia Freeman Belden, 8 months old, children of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford H. Belden.

The guests at the reception were received by Mr. and Mrs. Belden, with their sons and their wives, and were assisted by Mr. Belden's sisters, Mrs. Charles G. Lincoln, Mrs. Frank E. Belden, both of this city, and Mrs. C. Raymond Fitch, of Bridgewater, Mass., as well as by Miss Nettie L. Whitney and Mrs. F. Irvin Davis, also of Hartford. Mrs. Robert B. Newell, Mrs. Raymond G. Lincoln, and Miss Marjorie Fitch assisted at the punch bowl.

WILLIMANTIC, Wednesday, April 19
Philip Cheney of No. 179 Valley street, who, for nearly half a century, has been running over the Air Line Division of the "New Haven" road, between this city and New Haven, has been retired under a most generous pension. Yesterday morning Mr. Cheney received a check from the railroad company for his pension, dating from January 1 of this year. Mr. Cheney has for many years been the engineer on the 7 o'clock train out of here in the morning for New Haven, returning here about 8 o'clock. For forty years Mr. Cheney has been in the employ of the rail-

THE NEW YALE TRUSTEE.

April — 1916

The various comments of the state newspapers on the election of Harry G. Day of New Haven to the vacancy in the Yale trusteeship caused by Dr. Cooper's death are highly complimentary.

The "New Haven Journal-Courier" says of Mr. Day:—

The first is the fitness of the new fellow. As counsel for the university, he has long been familiar with its business cares. Second, he is a graduate of the Sheffield Scientific School, which has never been given, until now, its adequate representation upon the governing board in spite of the patiently expressed demands of the Sheff. graduates. Third, his selection emphasizes anew the generosity of the clericals in ignoring their constitutional right to fill vacancies from among eligible clergymen, and in acting in accordance with the best interests of the university regardless of a man's calling in life.

The "Waterbury American" is highly pleased with Mr. Day's selection and with the unanimous election of Mr. Bannard. It says:—

Members of the corporation of the ability, character and standing of Mr. Bannard and Mr. Day are representative of the modern Yale board. When such men give their time and effort in no unstinted measure to the affairs of the university, its friends and alumni may well feel that its future is assured.

The "New Haven Times-Leader" says:—

Mr. Day is one of the most talented and respected members of the New Haven county bar. He is a gentleman of high social, professional and personal standing. Yale is fortunate in being able to command the services of such an able and energetic member of the alumni.

The "New Haven Register" says the selection:—

is an action abundantly commended by the merit and record of Mr. Day, and is especially grateful to those who know him everywhere. In addition it is a graceful departure, for only the second time, from the former limitation of such appointments to the clergy and will have the effect of winning very wide approval among Yale men and others.

It happens that Mr. Day is not the "second" but the fifth member of the "successors of the original trustees" to be elected to that position, who is not a clergyman.

"FIGHTING FOR US ACROSS THE SEAS"

"Nor should we forget that the future is big with possibilities that we too must assume the red badge of war," says Governor Marcus H. Holcomb, in his annual Fast Day proclamation, which was published

THE PROCLAMATION.

Governor Holcomb's thoughtful Fast Day proclamation is taken differently in different places. The "Bridgeport Post" says the proclamation "will invite more food for thought than any in a generation." It says:—

So strongly do the lines of this proclamation impress us that we give them in full. They reveal Marcus H. Holcomb at his best. They show the sterling type of the New Englander who has done so much to make this nation great, who has been the pioneer in nation, at state and town building.

It sees the touch of Lincoln in the words of the document. Incidentally the "Post" is of the opinion that Fast Days have always been ordered for Good Fridays. In fact, this custom developed later and grew out of the desire of the Congregationalists to cultivate the Episcopalians.

But, while the "Post" is so cordial, the "New Haven Register" takes quite another view. It thinks the proclamation "utterly lacks the conception in which the day was founded by the early Pilgrims." It doesn't like the "rotund phrase" about the danger of war for ourselves and thinks it "has no business in the document." It is somewhat surprising to find such expressions in the seldom excited "Register." The "Register" seems to have imbibed a bit of Professor Phelps's desire for martyrdom. It somewhat exaltedly declares:—

If the day of public fasting and prayer serves at all the purposes which rightfully to it belongs, it will lead the people to deeper thoughts than that. It will foster the faith that better things than war are in store for us. It will lift us to heights of vision from which we shall see brotherhood, service, self denial, peace. These are the things we need to think, on Good Friday and on every other day. It is because we forget them that we think and shudder at the possibility of war. It is because some of the nations have forgotten them that this war blights the earth today.

We can quit the movies and the baseball field and the automobiles and give ourselves over entirely to the choice thoughts of the "Register," but, if meanwhile some nation that has forgotten them all gets after us, it will be well if we are prepared. The governor's message is devout and its warning is timely.

ARBOR AND BIRD DAY.

Governor Holcomb Designates Friday, April 28, and Asks That It Be Observed
FOR ARBOR DAY

Gov McCall Names 29th in Proclamation

Gov McCall yesterday issued a proclamation naming the 29th as Arbor day in Massachusetts. The proclamation follows:—

A PROCLAMATION

In accordance with a law of the commonwealth, I hereby set apart Saturday, April 29, as Arbor Day, and make proclamation "recommending that it be observed by the people of the commonwealth in the planting of trees, shrubs and vines, in the promotion of forest growth and culture, in the adornment of public and private grounds, places and ways, and in such other efforts and undertakings as shall be in harmony with the general character of a day so established."

The words which I have taken from the law itself very amply define its purpose, and if the people of the commonwealth shall make it their duty to carry out these purposes the day will be rich in the blessings it will bring. However we may have abused the kindness of Nature by the waste of our forests, our lands are still ready to work in our service and to produce new crops of trees if we shall permit them to do so. We should help and not hinder. To cherish the birds and to aid them in the battle against moths and other pests which destroy the trees, to take precautions against the spread of fire and to give our woodlands a prudent husbandry will result in again richly clothing with forests the fields that we do not need for agriculture. The number of the fruit-bearing trees may easily be increased, and they will reward us with abundant crops if we shall encourage them with reasonable culture and care.

Let us not forget to transmit to the future the debt we have received from the past and plant shade trees along our streets and in our parks and thus increase the health and beauty of our cities and towns. Upon the grounds about our homes let us set out trees, hedges, shrubs and flower-bearing plants. There is no other feature of the landscape that ministers so strongly to our sense of beauty in every season of the year as does the forest especially if it is inhabited by singing birds. The children in our schools should be taught what so many of those who are older do not realize, the supreme importance of trees in the life of men. They not merely impart a rich beauty to the earth but they give also the material out of which our homes are built, the fuel to

Mr. and Mrs. Edward H. Sothern, who have been living in Litchfield for several years, are to be given a dinner, Monday evening, April 24, in the ball room of the Hotel Astor, New York, followed by a mass meeting, Tuesday evening, at Carnegie hall, by the Civic Forum, as testimonial to their distinguished service to the stage and on the occasion of the Shakespeare tercentenary and their retirement. Mrs. Sothern left the stage a few years ago, and they will make their permanent home in England after Mr. Sothern completes a fortnight's engagement in New York and returns from a short tour. President John H. Finley, of the University of the State of New York, will preside at the dinner. Edwin Markham will read a poem written by him for the occasion, and the speakers will be Miss Repplier, Mrs. Douglas Robinson, Augustus Thomas, Winthrop Ames, Otto H. Kahn, and Talcott Williams. A testimonial volume containing an address to the Sotherns will be autographed by many prominent men and women and presented to them.

April PORTLAND. 24

Miss Marguerite Lewis, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Lewis of Spring street, and granddaughter of the late Hon. Charles R. Lewis of Middletown, and Reginald C. V. Tuffin, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Tuffin, of Hampton-on-Thames, England, were married yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the bride's home, by the rector of Trinity Church, Rev. Dr. O. H. Raftery, in the presence of a few relatives and friends. The home was decorated with daffodils and sweet peas. Miss Gladys Clark of Middletown, a cousin of the bride, was maid of honor, and the bride's brother, Francis Dudley Lewis, was best man. The young people went after the reception on a wedding trip through the South.

Miss Charlotte W. Dahill of Sargeant street and John F. Gardner of Dayton, O., were married last evening at 6:30 o'clock at Christ Church by the pastor, Rev. Dr. James Goodwin. Miss Adelaide Miller was the maid of honor and the best man was James Smith. After a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Gardner will live at No. 52 Sargeant street.

Mr. and Mrs. William H. Prothero of Norwich, formerly of this city, celebrated their golden wedding anniversary Monday evening. They were assisted in receiving by their daughter, Mrs. John A. Newman of this city, and their son, Fred G. Prothero, of Norwich. Mr. and Mrs.

Miss Minnie Agnes Duerr, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Duerr of Madison avenue, and Charles F. Hirth, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Hirth of Rockville, were married Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the South Baptist Church, the ceremony being performed by Rev. Dr. John Newton Lackey, pastor of the church, in the presence of about 150 relatives and friends. Miss Elsie M. Duerr, sister of the bride, was maid of honor and the best man was Martin Hirth, brother of the bridegroom. James Owens of Providence, R. I., and Charles H. Duerr, brother of the bride, were ushers. The wedding marches were played by Miss Fanny L. Gladding, organist of the church. The church was prettily decorated with palms, Easter lilies and tulips. The bride's dress was of silk net worn over white silk and trimmed with white satin. Her hat was of silk net trimmed with white roses and she carried a shower bou-

METCALF-ALLEN WEDDING

Well-Known Holyoke Girl Marries Burlington (Vt.) Man 24
One of the first of the early spring weddings took place last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Metcalf on Appleton street, when their daughter Miss Katherine Lewis Metcalf was married to Edward L. Allen of Burlington. The wedding

CAPTAIN MASON AND WIFE WED 61 YEARS

Captain Had Stirring Experiences in Wreck and Civil War.

(Special to The Courant.)

Litchfield, April 24.

Among the oldest married couples living in Litchfield are Captain and Mrs. George W. Mason, who celebrate their sixty-first anniversary tomorrow. Mr. and Mrs. Mason until the last few years have been prominent in the social and religious life of the town and were the prime leaders in the Grange of which both were charter members and of which Mr. Mason was the first master.

Mr. Mason was born in Litchfield February 24, 1833, the son of Benjamin and Susan (Ford) Mason and received his education at the Washington Academy. Mrs. Mason was born in Litchfield, April 19, 1833 the daughter of Myron and Emeline G. Osborn. Mr. Mason took up teaching at the age of 16 and taught one winter each at Morris and Washington and ten seasons at Litchfield. The marriage was April 25, 1855. He then took up farming as an occupation, and in 1874 was general manager of the Russell stock farm of 2,500 acres at Atlantic, Iowa. While in the West he was in a railroad wreck in which several persons in the same car were killed, and he was rescued after several hours through a hole in the roof.

He had a remarkable record in the Civil War. He was mustered in as a corporal in 1862 in the 19th Connecticut Infantry, and spent several months at Camp Dutton in training. In June 1863 he with two other officers and nine enlisted men were sent to Conscript Camp, New Haven, for permanent duty in connection with drafting and recruiting service, but desiring to get into active service he requested a change and was sent to join the Army of Potomac at Spottsylvania. He was severely wounded at Cold Harbor and nearly lost his life from loss of blood and it was only after six months of enforced idleness that he regain his strength. July 8 he received his commission as Captain A. Q. M. U. S. Vols. and reported to General Ingalls and was given charge of a brigade train in connection with General Terry's command at Wilmington, N. C.

Mr. Mason was a member of the school board for twenty years and was chairman for at least half that time. In 1891 he was a representative in the legislature. In 1901 he was honored by being chosen one of two Connecticut vice presidents of the Pan-American Exposition at Buffalo. The years following the war were spent chiefly in agricultural pursuits in his native town. Since 1904 he and his companion for sixty one years have lived the life of retirement so well earned.

THE PACI

WILL

Miss Oroville Wooster, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Philip Wooster of California, and Walter L. Richard, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Oscar L. Richard of New York, will be married tomorrow afternoon in St. Thomas's Church, New York. Her attendants will be her sister, Miss Edith Wooster.

Wedding of Miss Katharine L. Ordway and Rev. Fletcher D. Parker Takes Place in Winchester

The wedding of Miss Katharine Lewis Ordway, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Choate Ordway of Winchester, and Rev. Fletcher Douglas Parker, Williams, 1911, and Hartford Theological Seminary, 1915, took place last evening at the home of the bride's parents at 20 Myrtle street. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Howard Bidley, pastor of the First Congregational Church of Winchester. Because of illness of the bride's mother plans for church wedding had been necessarily changed.

Rev. Mr. Parker, during one of his seminary course, was minister at the Plymouth church of city, and for two summers he preached at the Maverick church in Boston. He is at present minister of the Trinitarian Congregational church, New Bedford. Mr. Mrs. Parker will be at home after May 15 at No. 116 North street, Bedford.

KERLY - PORTER — Wednesday, April 26, 1916, at New York city, Katheryn (Cleaveland) Porter, widow of Dr. Clifford Winship Porter and daughter of the late Frank Edward and Belle (Chamberlain) Cleaveland, and Dr. Theodore Burton Ackerly, of Hartford, by the Rev. Dr. Walter Duncan Buchanan, pastor of the Broadway Presbyterian Church, New York.

RS. ACKERLY BRINGS

ACTION FOR DIVORCE

an 3, — 1917
 Her Husband, a Physician Has Been Cruel To Her.

Katheryn I. Ackerly of this city whose maiden name was Porter, has instituted action for divorce against her husband, Dr. Theodore B. Ackerly.

They were married on April 26, 1916, and, according to the complaint the cruelty which forms the basis of the complaint, began shortly after the marriage. It is charged that Mrs. Ackerly came to this state in June, 1916.

C. ACKERLY'S WIFE

GETS DIVORCE DECREE

June 7, — 1917
 testimony in Court of Husband's Cruelty.

Katheryn I. Ackerly of this city received a decree of divorce from Dr. Theodore B. Ackerly, also of this city, in the superior court yesterday afternoon on the ground of intolerable cruelty. They were married on April 26, 1916, and Mrs. Ackerly left her husband in June, but later returned on the advice of a minister. One time, she told the court, he took her and threw her against a wall. She struck the woodwork of the couch with her back and was for several weeks. Ackerly's grandfather, Dr. Ansel G. Cook and Mrs. Elmira A. Bissell also testified for Mrs. Ackerly. The judge gave her alimony of $100.

The divorce case of Katheryn I. Ackerly of No. 521 Wethersfield avenue, against Dr. Theodore B. Ackerly, was tried before Judge Gager in the superior court this afternoon. Judge A. C. Bill appeared for Mrs. Ackerly and Attorney E. M. Holden for Dr. Ackerly. There was no defense.

Miss Grace M. Keeney of Somersville, Ct.

Miss Keeney, who is the daughter of ex-Senator Mayro Keeney of Somersville, sang the part of Dolores in the production of the musical being necessary to comedy "Florodora" given at the Court Square Theater in Springfield, on her back during Thursday evening, for the benefit of the Springfield Visiting Nurses Association. Her performance was highly praised by the critics.

Miss Keeney and her husband, Dr. P. Miles Snyder at the parsonage of the First Congregational church, Wednesday. Miss Burnham was at one time a stenographer in the office of the Travelers Insurance company and Mr. Blevins was formerly with J. T. Pratt & Co., and is now connected with Lewis & Maycock, undertakers, in New Haven. The couple was unmarried.

April 26-1916
 Miss Louise Mathilda Fischer of Putnam street and James Hohann Rowe of this city were married Wednesday afternoon at the home of the bride by Rev. Irving H. Berg, pastor of the South Congregational Church. The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Charles E. Fischer, was attended by her sister, Miss Bertha M. Fischer. Mr. Rowe, brother of the bride, was best man. Mr. and Mrs. Rowe left for a wedding trip to Falls, and, after their return, will be at home at No. 109 Sisso.

JOYCE-FOX.

April 26-
 A pretty wedding took place at 10 o'clock this morning at St. Michael's.

Springfield,
 Dr. Sylvester Ryan, Rector.

Here for Services.

Bridegroom.

Lillies for

April 26-
 St. Michael's church was filled with a representation yesterday morning for the prettiest wedding place in that edifice. M. Quinn, daughter of Patrick Henry Quinn, bride of Dr. Sylvester Ryan. The hour chosen was 10 o'clock, and at that time, to the organ, "Bridal Chorus" was played by Miss Agnes Quinn, organist of the Catholic party moved down the aisle of the nave.

The procession was led by ushers, Dr. George D. Cummings, William Harry F. Barrett. The bridesmaids came the maid of honor, Florence E. Quinn, of the bride. The bride, attended by her sister, Miss Bertha M. Fischer, was escorted her to the altar by her brother, Charles E. Fischer. She was met by Dr. Ryan, Judge Thomas Quinn, who performed the single-ring service. The service was formed by Rev. Dr. Cummings, rector of the church, who also celebrated the mass. The several hundred guests gathered in the belfry for an organ recital by the Tower, who played the mass, also accompanied by the choir, who sang "Alma Mater Rejoice" and "Wedding March" following the service.

Following the church service was a reception for the bride and groom at the Quinn home on Putnam street, where Dr. Ryan Artist, Descendant of John Jacob Astor, Engaged to the son of Stanford White.

1916
 New York, April 27.—Mr. and Mrs. Winthrop Chanler of this city and Washington have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Laura Chanler, to Lawrence G.

MISS JOSEPHINE GIBSON

Miss Gibson is a Sister to Charles Dana Gibson, the Illustrator for the Saturday Evening Post, and is a Prominent Figure in New York Society. and Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson.

C. Suydam Cutting, Grafton H. Pine.

Sch
Ne
La
MARGARET LINCOLN GETS TWO PRIZES.

Pos The Day prize of $10 for the best the study in the life class to Miss Margaret B. Lincoln of No. 889 Asylum avenue. Honorable mention to Miss Dorothy A. Hapgood of No. 101 Kenyon street, Miss Marion P. Down of No. 703 Asylum avenue and Miss Clara M. Titcomb of No. 174 Ashley street.

Some partisans of mismanagement on the one hand, and of mismanagement in this kind of work on the other, are as weak as a reed.

the pork barrel.

responsible United ified to

April 29 -

Miss Marian Paige, daughter of the late Senator Allen W. Paige and of Mrs. Paige of Bridgeport, and Laurence M. Cornwall will be married Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock in

D DAILY TIMES, SATURDAY, MAY 10, 1919

HENRY A. BEERS.

The wedding of Miss Olive Ruth Grinnell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Lawrence Grinnell of No. 45 College avenue, N. E., Grand Rapids, Mich., and Arthur Hodges Merrill of Grand Rapids. The maid of honor will be Miss Ruth A. Grinnell, the bride, and there will be bridesmaids. The best man will be William E. Stanwood of Boston. Ushers will be Kenneth S. Merrill of this city; George F. Merrill of Gloucester, Mass.; Henry A. Arthur E. Kusterer, Charles J. Bell and Charles F. Lockwood, all of Grand Rapids. Following the ceremony, there will be a reception at the home of the bride's mother, Mr. Merrill is of the firm of Gray & Co.

101

THE GENTLE ART OF

Introducing Mary and John

—[Photograph By Louis Fabian Bachrach.]

Mrs. Arthur H. Merrill of No. 214 North Oxford street and her two children, Mary, aged 3 months, and John, aged 16 months.

Miss Olive R. Merrill (special to The Courant.)
Boston, Mass., Feb. 19.
Mrs. Kemp Patterson announces the engagement of her daughter, Miss Clara Patterson, to James Richard Moore of Hartford, son of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Moore of that city, and graduate of Yale, 1913. Mr. Moore is the grandson of Sir William Richmond, who, for several years, was chief justice of Canada. Mrs. Patterson and her daughter have just returned to Boston, after a two years' stay in California. The wedding will take place at Brookline, the former home of Miss Patterson, after Easter.

one of the oldest and most prominent families of Wilmington. Her father was for some time associated with the du Pont Powder Company of Wilmington, which was founded by that family.

Cards have been issued for the wedding of Miss Cora Patterson of Boston and James Richard Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. James B. Moore of Wethersfield avenue, which will take place Saturday afternoon, April 29, at 12:30 o'clock at the Hotel Somerset, Boston.

1919

EDITH JANUARY ELLIOTT

Edith January Elliott, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Elliott of Boston, is to be married April 29 in Emanuel Church, Boston, to Edmund Pendleton Rogers of New York. Mr. Rogers is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Rogers of Hyde Park and New York. He is a graduate of Gorton and Yale and is a member of New York's exclusive clubs. Miss Elliott, whose father is the head of the New Haven Railroad, is a graduate of Miss Porter's school at Farmington, and made her debut in St. Louis, her mother's native city. She is a member of the 1915 Sewing Circle and the Vincent Club of Boston.

Below—MRS. HOWARD ELLIOTT of New York and Southampton, wife of the president of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad, and her little grandson, Elliott Rogers, snapped in Agawam Park, at the dedication of the new Southampton, L. I., Soldiers' Memorial.

(C) U & V

1923

March 17, 1919
Aged 38

Frederick W. White of Washington street gave a dinner at the Hartford Club last evening, his guests including Hayden R. Lathrop, William W. Frayer, Foster E. Harvey, Walter St. G. Harris and Clinton T. King, who will be the ushers at the wedding of Mr. White and Miss Viola S. Robbins of Wethersfield, which will take place

The ceremony was performed by the pastor, Rev. Charles F. Carter, who used the single ring Episcopal service. The church was beautifully decorated, green being used against the white background of the auditorium. The pulpit was banked with palms and white lilac trees, which were also used at both sides of the chancel. The choir loft was screened with ferns. The seats reserved for the relatives and intimate friends designated by large white lilacs tied with white who was given in marriage by her father, was attended by Miss Una Hampton Storrs, honor and the bridesmaid, Miss Alma T. Nutting of Mass., Miss Marion M. Brookline, Mass., Miss Olaf of this city and Miss Marjorie, sister of the bride. The bridesmaids were Miss George Dawson Howell of Trinity 1915, and the bridesmaid Miss Ralph Reed Wolfe, of Trinity 1908; Louis O'Donnell of this city, Trinity 1915, and John Storrs, Dartmouth 1918. She wore a dress of white tulle, cut with a court train and edged with rose point lace and a veil of silver tulle. She carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies-of-the-valley. The maid of honor wore a dress of white tulle and carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies-of-the-valley. The bridesmaids wore dresses of the same material and carried bouquets of white roses and lilies-of-the-valley. The bridesmaid's mother wore French fluted tulle trimmed with French opalescent ornaments. During the ceremony, a procession of the following selections played by the church: Benjamin W. Loveland: "Nuptial March" by Guil-March" from "Aida" by Meyer-Hell" for a processional, Wagner's Chorus" from "Lohengrin" and during the ceremony the "Traumerei" was played on the soft organ, and Mendels-Wedding March" from "A Night's Dream" was the recessional.

Miss Ruth Rowell Storrs

During the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride's parents at which there were 100 guests. The bridal party was seated before a bank of palms in the reception room, the mantel being decorated with white roses and maidenhair ferns. In the dining room the table centerpiece consisted of a large-handled basket filled with white roses and maidenhair ferns which also banked the mantel. In the hall were pink roses and asparagus ferns, the stairway being veiled with the ferns. Hatch's Orchestra

SOCIETY GIRL TO MARRY TRINITY ATHLETE.

White will live at No. 341 Washington street.

April Castator-Storrs. 29

The first large social event since the close of Lent was the wedding of Miss Ruth Rowell Storrs, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lewis Austin Storrs of Farmington avenue, and Frederick Barwick Castator of New York, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick T. Castator of Philadelphia, which took place last evening at 7 o'clock at the Immanuel Congregational Church in the presence of more than 700 guests.

Mrs. Frederick B. Castator, formerly the music room Miss Ruth Storrs of this city, is a member of the editorial staff of the Brooklyn Daily Eagle. Since Mr. Castator's service in the aviation corps, they have been living in Brook-lyn. Mrs. Castator is daughter of Mr. Alpha Delta and Mrs. Lewis A. Storrs of Farmington avenue.

During his course at college, he was prominent in athletics, being captain of the 1915 football team.

April 28, 1916 —
A marriage of unusual interest to people in this city was that of Miss and Thorpe-Hicks, 29

Miss Charlotte Mathilda Hicks, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward has been on temporary duty at the years. His father is pastor of the Congregational Church in Windsor.

HONOR PROF. BEERS.

Former Hartford Boy Rounds Out 45 Years on Yale English Staff, and Is Banqueted.

April 29 - 1916
A complimentary dinner was given in New Haven Saturday night by the Yale English faculty to Professor Henry Augustin Beers, the head of that department in the college, whose work in the after forty-the closing

June.

One of t were broug
that there a English de alone than faculty at t
sor entered the fall of only instr
the Englis
the requir
only open t nineteen m lish depart
Professo
the Hartfo and receive four years

One year from the
to the New
It is not fessor as article in sor's nam general p ing since ly a year contribut from his

PROFES

Elsewhere
ticle from Courier" of Henry A. I
ment in well deser
this paper
Hartford
school in

Apr fifteen Porter
went to terday pects t
way, a tion, an chapter her 98th
joying
years.
Boswor
was 12
erson I stead v
the sho
ford.
home Eastfor
on Mr.
er was Americ
seventy States live in received
Russell roses and a May basket.

Halcyon Days of Connecticut Wits Furnish Theme for Professor Beers

FEBRUARY 9, 1921.

Group Known as "The Pleiades" Included Trumbull, Dwight, Humphreys, Hopkins and Alsop.

Professor Henry Augustin Beers of Yale university in his essay on the "Connecticut Wits" which the Yale University Press has published in a collection of Professor Beer's essays under that name, brings together some delightful tales and critiques of the so-called Pleiades, that group of wits and philosophers centering around President Dwight of Yale in New Haven and Joel Barlow who was at that time publishing a newspaper in Hartford.

The "Pleiades," as listed in a later article in the Atlantic Monthly, which Professor Beers refers, were John Trumbull, Timothy Dwight, David Humphreys, Lemuel Hopkins, Richard Alsop and Theodore Dwight. The Atlantic in a proud Massachusetts manner depreciates this group of writers although Timothy Dwight, of course, made a name for himself as an educator which no depth of mediocrity as a wit could have eclipsed. The Atlantic said something about Connecticut being "pleasant with wooded hills and a beautiful river; plenteous with tobacco and cheese; fruitful of missionaries, merchants, peddlers and single women"—and then proceeded to discourage the nutmeg state's right to claim literary eminence.

And it is true, as Professor Beers points out all the way along in his delightful essay, that poetry in Connecticut during the late eighteenth century, as elsewhere in the colonies, was apt to be imitative of the heavy "classical" school then prevailing in England.
Just as the English poets of that period found little beauty in their own country and much in ancient Greece and Rome, so the Connecticut wits spoke of Yankee youths as "swains" and Hartford girls of the Revolutionary era as "the fair." Distressing as these things are to the sensitive modern ear, they were required by good form in the day of their creation. Then as now it was pretty difficult to go beyond good form.

The prose in Connecticut at that time was divided between the political polemic and the familiar essay, again
"after the manner" of the same sort of thing overseas. John Trumbull was the satirist of the group, Professor Beers points out, but his essays, contributed chiefly to Hartford and New Haven newspapers, were imitations of the kind of thing that Addison, Steele and the rest were doing in the Spec-

His Long and Efficient Work In Yale Recalled.

(New Haven Journal-Courier.)
The mysterious flight of time, with its failure to make us take note of it, is startlingly illustrated by the knowledge of the fact that PROFESSOR BEERS.

In the gatherings which have been held in observance of Professor Henry A. Beers's retirement from active service in the Yale faculty fittator and the Tatler. Trumbull was a Yale man and a cousin of Governor Jonathan Trumbull. His masterpiece was "M'Fingal," published complete in Hartford in 1782. The poem was a parody on Samuel Butler's

"Hudibras" and the couplet most generally surviving at the present time is

"No man e'er felt the halter draw
"With good opinion of the law."

"M'Fingal," as Professor Beers points out, "still keeps a measure of historical importance, reflecting, in its cracked and distorted mirror or caricature, the features of a stormy time: the turbulent town meetings, the liberty poles and bonfires of the patriots; with the far-and-feeatherings of the Tories, and their stolen gatherings in cellars and other holes and corners."

After the war, Trumbull came to Hartford and with Joel Barlow was one of the leading spirits of the "Hartford wits" who met weekly to discuss the tremendous trivialities which perplex literary men of any generation and made Hartford the center of Connecticut letters. Joel Barlow who had been in an army chaplain during the war after according to Professor Beers, a six weeks' course in theology, and David Humphreys, the author of a life of General Israel Putnam, upon whose military staff he had served, were other luminaries in that early Hartford constellation.

Barlow's career after his period as a Connecticut wit is absorbing. After the failure of his paper in 1788 he went to France where he became a "rank Jacobin" and was made a French citizen by the convention. In 1795 he was appointed American consul at Algiers where he succeeded in obtaining the release of some American prisoners who had been captured by the Algerian pirates. He was later American minister to France and died at Cracow where he had gone to interview Napoleon about modifying the Milan and Berlin decrees of blockade.

His most notable literary work is "Columbiad" or "The Visions of Columbus" published in 1787. The poem contains these lines illustrative of the classical bent of the verse of the time,
on the Connecticut river:

"The stream, my Hartford, through its misty robe,
"Played in the sunbeams belting far the globe.
"No watery glades through richer valleys shine,
"Nor drinks the sea a lovelier wave than thine."

Every Methodist church in the world

April 21 - 1916
 Announcement has been made that Miss Ethel Josephine Pinney, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Pinney of No. 431 Washington street, and Homer Henry Miller of No. 1, 122 Park street, West Hartford, were married last Saturday night by Rev. H. S. Scarborough at h lowing the ceremony a held at the home of th ents. Mr. and Mrs. Mil at No. 1,122 Park stree
GLASTONBU

Rev. F. W. Raymond
 torate of First Con Church.

April
 A letter of acceptance
 torate of the First Co Church by Rev. Freder mond was read at the n ice at the church yester been pastor of the Unio Proctor, Vermont, since 1908. During his i church membership ha from 170 to 215 and school attendance has parish house has been cost of $12,000. Rev. M has been identified wi religious interests of the state, having been vice the Verm
 ber of the
 the Verm
 ence, pres
 ty Sunday member o
 Vermont
 tion.

He was
 Mass. Or

REV.
 RE

Retirin sor

Rev. A
 tor of the tional Ch
 the past t pleurisy.

Rev. Frederi
 aggravated by a threathene pneumonia E-EMPRESS danger poi blyn is not

Many pl
 the closing pastorate a temporarily illness, but be able to c fore he lez
 on May 1.
 from the p order to James G. C
 business.
 The chur busily ende
 cessor in th prepared a who may be rangements
 of them to

Madrid, June
 Eugenie of Fr
 much better t
 thanks to an performed since her rid where she is the guest of her nephew the Duke of Alba. Despite her 94 years, the former empress consented to undergo the operation. The surfrality of Eugenie permitted the use of only a local anaesthetic. The surgeon made a slight incision in the ataract, applied cocaine and then the delicate instrument, which acts
 the suction principle was used.
 After six days the obstruction was drawn aside without pain. When the bandages were removed Eugenie was able to read for the first time in many years.

Miss Sanderson is a daughter of Professor and Mrs. Robert Louis Sanderson of New Haven and is very well known to Hartford people. She spent several months this winter in the West Indies and Florida with Colonel and Mrs. C. L. F. Robinson of Prospect avenue on their

—[Photograph by the Roger Sherman Studio, New Haven.

MISS DOROTHY C. SANDERSON.

she was found one day by her mother in the act of working out a symbol of letters and figures, which on investigation turned out to be her own name, Eugenie, with the initials of her future husband, Louis Napoleon Bonaparte, added. She added together the numbers of the letters in accordance with their order in the alphabet, which gave the following result: E-5,
 U-21, G-7, E-5, N-14, I-9, E-5, L-12,
 N-14 and B-2, equaling 94. Ever afterward she asserted she would livto that age.

GOLDEN WEDDING OF REV. I. P. BOOTH

Stafford Springs, May 1.
Rev. Mr. and Mrs. Isaac Phillips Booth celebrated their golden wedding anniversary today with many relatives and friends at their home in Stafford Hollow. They were mar-

TRAVELERS FILLS ACTUARIAL OFFICE

Virgil M. Kime of Indianapolis Gets Important

107

First Woman to be Mayor's Secretary

MISS ELSIE J. CLEMONS.

marriage to Dr. Booth. She is a home-loving woman and is held high in the estimation of her many friends. She has been prominent in the Women's Relief Corps.

Fourteen children were born to Rev. Mr. Booth and Mrs. Booth. Eight of them are living. They are C. H. Booth of Tela, Spanish Honduras, Louis P. Booth of Providence, R. I., Edwin I. Booth of Providence, Leon F. Booth of Springfield, Mass., Miss Maude G. Booth, Ralph Booth, Miss Mabel Booth and Paul C. Booth, all of Stafford Hollow.

Many gifts, letters and cards were received by Dr. Booth and his wife from their wide circle of friends. Twenty relatives sat down to dinner with them. Between the hours of 3 to 5 o'clock in the afternoon and from 8 to 10 o'clock in the evening, many of their neighbors called to extend congratulations.

ent. 1916
ie of Indian-ed actuary of
nts of the company. He ew days ago
run his new nt is an im-gh the theo-
work of life mpleted to a ere has been k done along which is said
e almost unctuarial work cident, habil-roperty dam-urs old. For n actuary of Life Insurianapolis. He uarial Society

ican Institute
Casualty Ac-Society of etary of the Actuaries.
1, 1885, in In-up in Atlanta,
s college edu-
of Michigan.
1 in 1906.

Kime.
he insurance
were with the Michigan surance Company in Dehe spent two years teaching in the economics deof the University of Mich-was in St. Louis two years Missouri State Life Insurpany.

ties which Mr. Kime will or this company were once ids of Louis F. Butler, now of the Travelers, and later

LEMONS NOW MAYOR'S SECRETARY

man to Hold Office Succeeds
John A. Gleason.

Elsie J. Clemons, whom ank A. Hagarty has appointed as his secretary, and who took that office yesterday, is the first woman to hold that office, which was created in 1913. Previous to that time, the ordinances provided for a salary of $600 for a stenographer for the mayor, under his instructions, and to act as assistant secretary and stenographer to the board of contract and supply, commission on city plan, public dock commission, board of finance and other commissions, or committees of which the mayor is a member, as the mayor may request.

Miss Clemons is well qualified to attend to these duties, having served as stenographer to Mayor Joseph H.
Lawler during the two years of his administration. Miss Clemons received her compensation from the mayor during the recent administration and John A. Gleason, who was the mayor's secretary, received the $1,200 salary.

Seldom has one lifetime spanned so much history as that of Empress Eugenie, whose death at the age of 94 comes just as France has emerged victorious from a war far more terrible than that which brought down the empire of which she was the brightest ornament. For a generation this illustrious exile was the object of general admiration and of sympathy the warmer because of the bereavement she suffered in the death of her son in the Zulu war of 1879. To Americans her career was of special interest because her mother was of American birth. Her life was in the highest degree romantic, and has become an indissoluble part of the great Napoleonic legend.

Napoleon III made many mistakes, but none when he married the beautiful young Spaniard Marie Eugenie de Montijo who had won his admiration while he was still president of the republic. When she was snubbed by rivals he told her "I will avenge you," and did so by marrying her. When the marriage was called a mesalliance, he said: "I have preferred a woman whom I love and respect to a woman unknown to me, with whom an alliance would have had advantages mixed with sacrifices." If Louis Napoleon lacked the genius of Napoleon Bonaparte he had a better heart, and in this case France and the world applauded his choice.

As Empress Eugenie contributed much to the brilliance of his reign, and her spirit and courage did much to lift the cloud of depression from which Napoleon often suffered. No doubt her bold temperament more than once persuaded him to rash courses, and it is known that she did what she could to prevent him from following the liberal tendencies of the last years of his reign. But when the crash came and the empire made so pitiful a spectacle of itself she was one of the few who kept their heads and their courage, and the dignity which she showed then and in her long exile made an ineffaceable impression upon the world. The empire may have been pinchbeck, but in marrying her Napoleon gave it a true jewel.

REPUBLICAN:

Probably the most striking blue and purple wild flowers we have are of European origin, as such are blue wood or blue, very vain, purple loosestrife and here fall asters and gentians, seem to be these colors, except with the bell. These colors, except with the bell. These colors, except with the bell.

A budget of not more than $75,000, to become a part of obligations already incurred, was authorized to carry on the work pending reorganization and no other budget is to be authorized, "until it has been properly approved and the expenses provided."

EMPERESS EUGENIE DIES AT MADRID

JULY 15, 1920

End Comes to Famous Consort of Napoleon III in Land of Her Birth—Her Life One of Extraordinary Contrasts—Shorn of the Delights of Power and Splendor by the Germans, She Lived to Fulfill Her One Great Hope of Seeing Them Humbled Through the Arms of France and Her Allies

July 11,

Eugenie, former empress of the French and consort of Napoleon III, died Sunday at Madrid, Spain, in her 95th year. Once the royal beauty of Europe's most splendid court, she was later to be known, when her throne was gone, her husband dead and her only son killed by the spear of a Zulu savage, as "Europe's queen of sorrow."

Death occurred shortly before 8 o'clock from acute intestinal inflammation. She passed away quietly in the presence only of her lady-in-waiting. Her nephew, the duke of Alba, at whose residence she died, was in France, and the other members of the family were absent. Empress Eugenie had long suffered from ophthalmia and had been operated on for cataract. Full imperial honors will be accorded her funeral.

Eugenie's death closes a career of extraordinary contrasts of humility and splendor, of power and its loss. There was a time when she was the most favored and courted of sovereigns; the great figure of the second empire of France, the arbiter of fashion for women in the occidental world, the eminent beauty of Europe; and suddenly she was stricken from her imperial height, widowed, and presently made childless; and she passed into an old age of sorrow and loneliness. Yet she carried herself with a sad dignity which, as the years effaced the memories of earlier frivolities, won her a general admiration and sympathy.

Full as was her earlier life of dramatic contrasts, still another was in store for Eugenie when she was past 90. In 1870 she had seen her husband's throne crumble and her glory vanish. Alone among all the great protagonists of that drama she lived to see the German might broken on the battlefield in 1918 and the German pride humbled when the Prussian emissaries were forced to drink at Versailles the bitter dregs of the peace treaty submitted to them there where, 50 years before, they had proclaimed their empire. The hope of witnessing such things had given her a fresh hold on life from the moment the war broke in 1914.

time, when she nursed the wounded in including visits to her former haunts the Italian and Crimean wars. Every in Paris. Dressed in black, she passed to his people field. and already on his way once more to carry on the same mission. The Robert A. Hunt, veteran mission- and as vice-moderator at large Rev. American board of foreign missions, James L. Barton, secretary of the almost unnoticed where once she was the leader of one of the most brilliant courts of the 19th century. In her occasional interviews she revealed the strain of mournfulness in her life.

"I am the past, the horizon," she said. "There is nothing for me but to wait; my winter is nearly over."

Her Last Resting Place

She prepared her last resting place some years ago by ordering an addition to the mausoleum in the Benedictine abbey which she built at Farnborough and where she buried the exiled emperor and the prince imperial.

One instance of Eugenie's former brilliancy recalls the opening of the Suez canal. She was the center of the festivities at Cairo, upon which the khedive is said to have spent all of the $11,000,000 in his treasury. The gown she wore at the khedival ball cost $25,000; and later it served to pay a debt when she fled from Paris. It has since been reported as brought to America for sale.

It has been estimated that the fortune of the ex-empress amounts to $30,000,000. A report was published in Paris several years ago that she had been induced to leave her entire estate to the church, but this has not been confirmed.

Worked for Allied Victory

Although more than 90 years old, the former Empress Eugenie not only hoped and prayed, but worked, for the victory of the allies in the great world war of 1914-1918. The war found her in a splendid home at Farnborough hill in Hampshire, Eng. Early in the conflict she gave up her quiet and secluded life there so that her home could be transformed into a hospital for wounded British officers. Despite her advanced age, she assumed entire direction of the place and devoted herself to aiding the wounded men.

While the war was in progress she had said she hoped to live to see the Germans driven from France and also that she expected to fulfill a gypsy prophecy that she would live to be near 100 years old. After half a century of seemingly hopeless waiting, she lived to see the Prussians humbled, and is said to have found contentment in her knowledge of their humiliation in the peace of Versailles. She asserted she would live to that age.

HONOR EX-EMPERESS EUGENIE

Castilian Club at Annual Luncheon in Hotel Brunswick Takes Note of the Woman Whose Life Has Been One of Romance and Tragedy

Former Empress Eugenie, widow of Napoleon III, who was of Spanish origin, born in Granada, Spain, May 5, 1826, was honored today on her ninety-fourth birthday anniversary at the annual reception and luncheon of the Castilian Club in Hotel Brunswick. The ballroom was decorated with the red and yellow of Spain, in EMPERESS EUGENIE.

[Who out of gratitude to the English royal house that sheltered her when in trouble will leave Princess Mary a portion of her large fortune.]

Mrs. Adelaide A. Clafin described the tender and loyal friendship between Eugenie and the other great sovereign of her time, Queen Victoria; her residence in England, and her later life and sorrows.

In the closing exercises Miss Joslin remarked that Eugenie is now visiting Spain and being received everywhere in public with great respect.

DAY, MAY 5, 1920

GOLDEN WEDDING, WEST SUFFIELD.

Mr. and Mrs. Judah Phelps Entertain Members of Their Family.

Suffield, May 3.

Mr. and Mrs. Judah Phelps celebrated their golden wedding anniversary, yesterday, at their home in West Suffield by entertaining their ten children and fifteen grandchildren. Dinner was served at 12:30 o'clock, followed by a reception in their home, which over 100 guests attended. The house was Serves Church and Town.

Mr. Phelps was born in the house where the reception took place in

TITANIC SURVIVOR HERE ON HONEYMOON

Mrs. H. B. Harris, Widow of Play Producer, Weds

May 3 L. L. Consolloy. 916

Mrs. Henry B. Harris, widow of Henry B. Harris, the noted theatrical manager who lost his life in the Titanic disaster and herself a survivor of that wreck, is now Mrs. L. L. Consolloy and she was a guest at the Heublein Hotel last evening, on the second day of her honeymoon. Mrs. Harris and Mr. Consolloy were married in Greenwich on Wednesday

WEST SUFFIELD COUPLE MARRIED 50 YEARS AGO

Front Row—Left to Right—Mrs Nora B. White of Boston, Judah Phelps, Mrs Judah Phelps, Miss Myra L. Phelps of Suffield

Back Row—Left to Right—Lawrence C. Phelps of Hartford, Frank A. Phelps of Westfield, Warren J. Phelps of Southwick, Benjamin J. Phelps of Highbridge, N. J., Mrs Albert Ford of Suffield, Charles D. Phelps of West Suffield, Harry W. Phelps of Suffield, and Judson L. Phelps of West Suffield

Phelps's brothers and sisters, Lewis W. Cannon of West Suffield, Richard D. Cannon of East Granby, John B. Cannon of West Suffield, Marana Allshouse of Granby, Mrs. Charles Fox of Collinsville, Mrs. Rose A. Cannon of Collinsville.

At yesterday's celebration, four generations were represented.

Mr. and Mrs. Phelps were assisted in the receiving by their ten children, who also assisted the grandchildren in serving the refreshments.

Mother Made," Winchell Smith's new comedy.

Mrs. Consolloy was Miss Irene Wallach. Several of her brothers are in the theatrical business, one being Samuel Wallach, who is a warm personal friend and admirer of Winchell Smith, and who was one of the party of New York theatrical men who stayed at the Heublein Monday night, after coming from Broadway to see the opening of "Like Mother Made" here.

A. D. WORTHINGTON BUYS ON KENYON

Will Move From Willard Street, Where He Has Lived 42 Years.

A. D. Worthington has bought the house and land at No. 23 Kenyon street from Mrs. B. R. Stillman, widow of a former secretary of the National Fire Insurance Company. Mrs. Stillman lived in the house a number of years after her husband's death, but has been in Springfield about a year. Mr. Worthington will move from No. 63 Willard street, where he has lived forty-two years.

Mrs. Benjamin R. Stillman of Springfield recently sold her former residence on Kenyon street to A. D. Worthington of Willard street. This house has been occupied for several years by Mrs. Rowena Cadwell, who

About Aged Durham Couple
Mr. and Mrs. Ransom Prout of Durham, who have just celebrated their 66th wedding anniversary are probably among the oldest married couples in this county. Mr. Prout is 88 years of age, and his wife is one year older. They have made their home in Durham ever since their marriage. Mr. Prout being born there. For a number of years Mr. Prout was tax collector in Durham. They have three children, Curtiss Prout of this city, Benjamin D. Prout of Durham, and a daughter in New Haven.

Lucius F. Slocum of No. 395 Sigourney street and Mrs. Belle E. Krug of Simsbury were married yesterday afternoon by Rev. Dr. W. G. Fennell, pastor of the Asylum Avenue Baptist Church. Mr. Slocum is an engineer on the "New Haven" road.

WALSH-CLAFFEY—In this city, May 4, 1916, by the Rev. Thomas S.

109

May 3

FOR SALE—18 HIGHLAND STREET

THIS beautiful residence in select neighborhood, with spacious grounds, including Italian Gardens, Garage for 5 cars, Chauffeurs' quarters. Can be seen by appointment. Apply to

J. H. CLARKIN,

Ch. 162

284 ASYLUM

Ensforth family bought it May 1916

Sandborn.

CADWELL—At Branford House, Eastern Point, Groton, Conn., at residence of her daughter, on September 2, 1918, Rowena Morgan, wife of the late Martin Cadwell. Prayer at Branford House on Wednesday, September 4, at ten a. m. Services at chapel of Cedar Hill cemetery at three p. m.

The inventory of the estate of Rowena M. Cadwell, late of West Hartford, showed a total value of $58,274.18, including real estate at the corner of Farmington avenue and Highland street, valued at $40,000.

MARTEL-BROWN—In this city, Wednesday, May 3, 1916, by the Rev. George Thomas Linsley of the Good Shepherd church, Mr. Arthur L. Martel and Miss Frances Evelyn Brown, both of Hartford.

anniversary on Thursday. The event will be marked by a dinner at the Hotel Bond which will be attended by twenty-five relatives.

Commissioner Hartman is a member of the firm of A. & S. Hartman of No. 231 State street, Connecticut leaf tobacco merchants, and he has been in business in this city for thirty-two years. He is a prominent mason and is vice-president of the United Hebrew Charities. The commissioner was married to Miss Jennie Leventhal of New York in the Metropolis in 1876 and they have one son, Maurice Hartman of No. 86 Oakland Terrace, who is associated with his father in the tobacco business.

May 1915
The marriage of Miss Ruth H. Cutting, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Fulton Cutting of New York, and Reginald L. G. Auchincloss of that city, son of Mrs. Edgar S. Auchincloss, took place Tuesday afternoon in the chapel of St. George's church. The bride's chief attendant was her sister, Miss Elizabeth McE. Cutting, and there were two flower girls, Rosamond Auchincloss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles C. Auchincloss, and Helen Choate, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Huel Sloan Auchincloss, the bridegroom, the place of Peter (who was prevented from attending because of the death of his mother) Bryce. The ushers were son Riggs, F. Bayne Sloan Colt, Charles Humphrey Parsons, Edwin D. McJoseph Walker, 3d, and was performed by the Rev. Karl Reel of St. George's church. The home of the bride is at the summer at the Mr. Auchincloss was at Yale university in New Haven, Conn., and was a member of the Phi Kappa Psi Key.

The wedding of Miss Ruth H. Cutting, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. Fulton Cutting, and Reginald L. G. Auchincloss in New York city, Tuesday afternoon, is of interest to residents because the bride and groom have been here for several summers. Miss Cutting is a sister of the bridegroom who married Miss M. E. Cutting of Boston. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Groton School, assisted by Rev. Reiland of St. George's church, of which the groom is a member.

May 2
Boston Doctor We
Mrs. George Rice, daughter of Dr. Henry B. Richardson, son of the late Dr. Peter Bent Brigham of Boston, and eldest son, Major Lewis E. Gordon, of Hartford, lent a touch of sadness

MISS TOWNSEND

Daughter of Ex-M Plainfield Weds D

Special to The Times
PLAINFIELD, N. J., May 2. — Margaret Townsend, daughter of Mayor and Mrs. Santandrea, North Plainfield, and Dr. Joseph P. O'Brien of Albany, N. Y., were married at 6:30 o'clock this evening at the home of the bride's parents. The Rev. Dr. Vincent G. O'Brien, brother of the bridegroom, officiated.

The bride had for her attendants the Misses Helen Joy, Dorothy Burke, and Ruth Waldo of Plainfield; Miss Marian Overton of Flushing, L. I.; Miss Margaret Foss of Newton, Mass.; Miss Catherine Hooper of Montclair, N. J.; the Misses Joyce Knowlton, and Dwight Power and Mrs. Thomas J. Goddard of New York; Miss Marian Yeaw of South Orange; Miss Frederick B. Clark of St. Albans, Vt., and Miss Adine Williams of Springfield, Mass. Dr. Joseph Cox of Albany was the best man.

The bride is a graduate of Smith College, class of 1911. Dr. O'Brien is a graduate of Union College and Albany Medical School and is on the staff of St. Peter's Hospital, Albany. The couple will live in Albany.

GOLDEN WEDDING IN HAZARDVILLE

Of Former Senator and Mrs.
Andrew Gordon.

Hazardville, May 7.
Former State Senator and Mrs.

Observe Golden Wedding To-Day.

FORMER SENATOR AND MRS. ANDREW GORDON, HAZARDVILLE

— Special to The Times.

Hazardville, May 6.

Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Gordon observed in a quiet manner the fifty-first anniversary of their wedding to-day. The recent death of their son, Major Lewis E. Gordon, of Hartford, lent a touch of sadness and Mrs. Gordon. Both were in their usual good health.

The company was not confined to local people, as many out of town friends motored here to pay their respects.

Mrs. Gordon was born in Ellington, a daughter of Asa and Louisa Lyon Lewis. Mr. Gordon was born in Glasgow, Scotland, November 4, 1843, and landed in New York on his first birthday. They were married in Hazardville May 6, 1866, by the Rev. Charles A. Merrill. They have since lived in Hazardville, with the exception of the winter months, which they generally spend in Florida. A more complete account of their lives appeared in yesterday's issue of THE TIMES.

Hazardville, June 2, 1864, Corporal Gordon got his second wound, a bursting shell smashing his left shoulder. He received an honorable discharge in May, 1865, just fifty-one years ago.

Although living a retired life for several years Senator Gordon has been very active in the business, religious and political life of the community.

He is a member of Gordon Brothers of this place and a former director of the Hartford Life Insurance Company, a steward of the Methodist Church in which Mrs. Gordon has always been a very active worker; a member of Doric Lodge of Masons and Samuel Brown Post, G. A. R., of Thompsonville.

Mr. Gordon was representative from the town of Enfield in the General Assembly of 1899, and a

Seldom has one lifetime spanned so much history as that of Empress member of the Senate in 1901. He was a strong republican. Mr. Gordon has three brothers and three sisters living, David and George B. Gordon of this place, Peter Gordon of Stafford Springs, Mrs. Elizabeth G. Bridge, widow of the late Senator Amos D. Bridge, Mrs. Ephraim Bridge of this village and Mrs. Mary G. McAuley of Windsor Locks. Mrs. Gordon has two sisters, Mrs. Daniel C. Perkins of Hartford and Mrs. Prickett, wife of Postmaster Ashmun P. Prickett of this village.

Six children were born to Senator and Mrs. Gordon, only two of whom are living, George J. Gordon of the firm of Gordon Brothers of this place, and Miss Eleanor M. Gordon, who expects to be graduated as a trained nurse from Melrose Hospital of Melrose, Mass., about June 1. There are five grandchildren, George, Andrew and Elizabeth, children of their late son, Major Lewis E. Gordon of Hartford and Ellis J. and Margaret G. All day this place.

to offer their congratulations. Samuel Brown Grand Army post of Thompsonville called in a body in the afternoon to offer their best wishes to a comrade who had seen much hard fighting and been wounded twice in the cause of freedom. The post presented the happy couple with a bouquet of roses and jonquils. In fact, the rooms were filled with beautiful bouquets, the gifts of their many friends. In the evening Allyn G. Bridge, in behalf of the Gordon and Bridge families, presented Mrs. Gordon with a gold brooch, set with amethysts and pearls, and Mr. Gordon with a gold-headed cane. Friends were present from Springfield, Stafford, Thompsonville, Suffield, Ellington and Somers. Mr and Mrs Gordon's daughter-in-law, Mrs George J. Gordon, and Mrs Alice Smith assisted in serving.

Last evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sydney P. Smith on Broad street, George Edgar Goodwin, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Goodwin of No. 165 Linnmoore avenue, Hartford, and Miss Lillie May Gates, daughter of Mrs. Emma P. Smith, were married by Rev. Harry S. Scarborough, pastor of the South Park Methodist Church, Hartford. Mrs. Elizabeth Guild of Hartford was matron of honor and Leverett K. Seymour of West Hartford was best man. The Episcopal service was used. About seventy-five guests were present from Springfield, Mass., Bristol, Clinton, Hartford and Wethersfield. The bride received many pretty and useful gifts. After a short

EARL BIDWELL GOES TO TENNESSEE

May 6
Hartford Man Will Be Aetna Life
Cashier in Nashville.

Earl Bidwell, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. W. Bidwell of No. 175 Beacon street, who, since his graduation from Dartmouth College in 1913, has been employed in the auditing department of the Aetna Life Insurance Company at its home office, left Hartford yesterday morning for Nashville, Tenn., where he will be the cashier of the company's agency. Mr. Bidwell is a member of Troop B, Fifth Militia Cavalry, C. N. G., the University Club and the Dartmouth Club. He recently engaged to Miss Mary Olmstead, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter B. Olmstead of Gillett street.

Frank Seldon Preston, 31 East Hartford, son of Mrs. Thomas E. Carroll, and Miss Alice Gertrude Lewis, daughter of Mrs. Thomas Francis Lewis of Palm Beach, Fla., were married at the Brewer, East Hartford, last Saturday, the ceremony being performed by Rev. James W. Lord, assistant rector at St. John's Episcopal Church, East Hartford. Mr. Preston has been with the Sterling Blower Company for fifteen years. He is a member of the Arab Patrol of the Sphinx Temple of Hartford.

Among the many important spring weddings will be that of Miss Jean Nelson Long, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Long of Ardmore, Penn., to William Treadwell Ketcham, son of Mrs. Arthur C. Ketcham of New York, which will take place Saturday afternoon, May 6, at the home of the bride. Mr. Ketcham is a graduate of Yale and is a descendant of Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt, through his mother, who was formerly Miss Margaret B. Allen.

Robert A. Gardner of Chicago, national golf champion, and once holder of the intercollegiate pole vault record, made while he was a student at Yale University, was married last week Saturday to Miss Katherine Keep, daughter of Chauncey Keep, a Chicago capitalist. Mr. and Mrs. Gardner are passing their honeymoon at White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

New Hartford, May 8.—Mrs.

Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Stearns, formerly of Hartford, who bought the Steele property on Town Hill a few years ago, and who have en-

MATHERS CELEBRATE

GOLDEN WEDDING

May 9
Mr. and Mrs. Albert E. Mather of No. 564 Windsor avenue celebrated their golden wedding anniversary informally yesterday. Neighbors and friends called upon them during the day and relatives were present at

May Miller Went Away.

Helena F. Miller, who has a boarding house at No. 624 Asylum avenue, was divorced from Harrison G. Miller who was charged with deserting her on December 2, 1912. The maiden name of Mrs. Miller was Maynard. She and Miller were married in Baltic in the town of Sprague, on October 19, 1881. Miller was a traveling man and was in the custom of being away from home long periods at a time. On November 30, 1912, Mrs. Miller said she gave her husband a check for $50 to pay his traveling expenses. He left the following Monday and Mrs. Miller said she had not seen her husband since, although, in January, 1913, she received a letter from him. In this letter he asked her for money. She knew of no reason why he did not return to her. There was a registry return receipt shown in court. This disclosed that on March 16, of this year, Miller was living in Providence, R. I.

March 1 - 1916
 Engagement of Miss Theodate Pope, a New York Architect, to John Wallace Riddle of Farmington.
 Engagement of Farmington Young Woman Announced.

HUSBAND-TO-BE FORMER DIPLOMAT

Was Ambassador
 in Russia, and Graduated from Harvard in '87.

MISS THEODATE POPE MARRIED AT ESTATE IN FARMINGTON TO JOHN WALLACE RIDDLE

Announcement has been made of the engagement of Miss Theodate Pope, daughter of Mrs. Pope, of Farmington, to John Wallace Riddle of St. Paul, Minn. Miss Pope lives in New York during the winter and has architectural offices at No. 15 East Fortieth street. She is the daughter of Alfred Atmore Pope, formerly of the Federal iron industries, who died in Cleveland in 1909, leaving a widow and daughter. She adopted architecture as a profession several years ago, and is an active suffragist, and much interested in psychic research. She is one of the survivors of the Lusitania, having been rescued from England in the disaster. Her friend, Edwin Friend of Farmington, was killed in the disaster.

Mr. Riddle has been in United States diplomatic service for many years, and was ambassador to Russia from December, 1909, to September, 1913, during the presidential term of Theodore Roosevelt. He was born in Philadelphia and is a half-brother of John Flannery, the author. He was graduated from Harvard University in 1887, afterwards studied at the Columbia law school, and then studied international law, and diplomacy at the Ecole de Politiques in Paris from 1893, and at the College de France where he was awarded a diploma of proficiency in the Russian language. During his diplomatic career he has been secretary of the United States legation to Turkey from 1893 to 1900; secretary of the United States embassy to Russia, 1901 to 1903; diplomatic agent and consul-general to Egypt from 1903 to 1905; envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Roumania and Serbia, 1905 to 1906, and ambassador to Russia, 1906 to 1909.

Mr. Riddle has visited at the home of Admiral William Sheffield Cowles and Mrs. Cowles, who is a sister of Colonel Roosevelt, in Farmington. His clubs include the Century and Union of New York, the Metropolitan of Washington, the Rittenhouse of Philadelphia, the Minnesota of St. Paul and the Cercle de

Simple Wedding, Attended by Few, Takes Place Within a Day of First Anniversary of Sinking of Lusitania, in Which Disaster Bride Had Narrow Escape From Death and Harrowing Experiences

Simplicity was the keynote of the

MRS. JOHN WALLACE RIDDLE, WHO WAS MISS THEODATE POPE.

Mr. Riddle, in addition to having been ambassador to Russia, has served this country in other diplomatic posts, having been diplomatic agent and consul general to Egypt and envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Roumania and Serbia. He was graduated from Harvard in 1887 and studied for several years in France. He has a home in Washington, D. C., as well as in New York.

Mrs. Riddle was a passenger on the Lusitania, which was sunk a year ago today. She was on her way to England to engage in psychological research with Professor Edwin Friend of Farmington, who lost his life in the disaster. She is widely known as an architect.

PIONEER SILK

WORK IN BERLIN

Produces Ma
Dress for Ma
ington.

Old Brandegee
in Berlin, H
of Great Inte
New B
From the Brandegee

BEAUTIFUL POST CARD
WILL ALL

Series of Five Showing Public Buildings Issued by the Arts and Crafts Club of this City—Miss Marion Maercklein the Designer

Where Silk Was Grown and Spun.

ANCIENT BRANDEGEE HOMESTEAD, BERLIN.

posite the present and south of the pr Major Frank L. W
the Brandegee place
Willard, one of the educators of the st
for the higher ed
gives her a place
the annals of educ
work.

Throughout the Brandegee was lat faithfully conducted personally attended
of new trees for th
the orchard; picked which the silk wor
carefully preserved the eggs for the development of the silk worms. It was no mean task, requiring great patience and skill

MISS MARION CRA NE MAERCKLEIN.

Miss Maecklein is one of Hartford's promising young artists, whose designs and execution of Batik work on textiles, together with wood block printing on the same material, have been exhibited in New York, Boston and Detroit, and have won great praise in art circles. Her studio at her home on Laurel street is the most unique and artistic of art studios in this city.

opera stars, and

Lamance
Jean & Marjory Wallace
Cannon Beach (Springfield)

Think they might be children of Norman Wallace

WALLACE-ROBBINS.

Hartford People Attend Wedding in Springfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Douglas H. Thomson and Mr. and Mrs. James H. Thomson of this city were among the guests at the marriage of Miss Marjorie Robbins, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ambrose Robbins of Springfield, and Norman Wallace, son of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew B. Wallace of that city, which took place at the South Congregational church in Springfield, Monday evening, the Rev. Dr. Philip S. Moxom officiating. It was a large and brilliant wedding. The bride was attended by Miss Dorothy D. Kirkham, as maid of honor, and by Miss Helen O. Harris and Miss Dorothy Dewey, Miss Ruth Wallace and Constance Fowler of Springfield, Miss Corinne Weston of Pittsfield, who has frequently visited in Hartford, Miss Mildred Hadra of Summit, N. J., W. Gerald Bryant of Bridgeport was best man and the ushers were Edward N. Allen of this city, F. G. Hartswick of Clearfield, Penn.; Charles W. Wiman of Moline, Ill.; Donald Weston of Pittsfield, George Nettleton of New Haven, Laurence D. Robbins of Chicago, a brother of the bride; Raymond Stevens of Lake Placid, N. Y., and E. Converse Lincoln of Springfield.

Almost all were classmates of the bridegroom in the class of 1914 at the Sheffield Scientific school of Yale university. The bride wore white satin and old lace and her attendants shades of green, carrying pink flowers. Pink, white and green were used as church decorations. A reception for 200 guests was held at the home of the bride following the ceremony. The bridegroom is a brother of Mrs. Douglas H. Thomson of Asylum avenue. He entertained his best man and ushers at luncheon Monday at the Springfield Country club and the bride and her attendants were entertained at a luncheon given by Miss Weston at the Colony club. Mr. Wallace is a department manager at the store of Forbes & Wallace and Mrs. Wallace was educated at the Baldwin school, Bryan Mawr, Penn. After their wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Wallace will live at No. 372 Union street, Springfield.

Mrs Norman Wallace

Formerly Miss Marjorie Robbins, daughter of Mr and Mrs Frank Ambrose Robbins.

elect, Mr and Mrs Andrew B. Wal-the old-fashioned source. The maid of honor carried an arm bouquet of pink sh ing we a k brid

Bal
and has an you wate ishe
with com Wal
eral
Mr
and 372 Union

Ar
pres
Fran
from Don
Mr a
Mr a Hart
her s

snapdragon, while each of the bride-maids carried a large bouquet of Killarney roses and marguerites, the latter flower in the center surrounded by the roses.

Simplicity marked the decorations of the church, which were arranged by Ostermann & Steel, and also of the house, where a reception was held immediately after the church service. In the church a banking of palms was arranged before the pulpit, with a large hydrangea placed at either side above the railing. Directly in the center just below the reading desk was a huge basket of snapdragon of deep pink shades. On the handle was a large bow of white tulle, while asparagus fern twined down either side to mingle with the snapdragon. Clusters of fragrant white lilacs, tied with bows of white tulle, marked the pews on either side of the aisle, there being five of these clusters on either side.

At the Robbins home on Mulberry street, where the reception was held, sparkleberry was used in profusion by the decorators about the casings of the doors and windows of the lower floor, while the chandelier in each room was wound with the same vine. In the music room palms had been arranged in one corner, where the party stood, Mr and Mrs Norman Wallace being assisted in receiving their 200 friends by Mr and Mrs Robbins and Mr and Mrs Andrew B. Wallace. Mrs Robbins wore apricot satin cut en train, with trimmings of opalescent beadings, while Mrs Wallace appeared in blue, with an overskirt of blue net trimmed with sequins of corresponding shade. The only flower decoration in the music room was upon the mantel, where baskets filled with pink sweet peas and asparagus fern stood at either end, with a large wicker basket in the center filled with Killarney roses and pink sweet peas. Across the hall in the living room yellow daffodils were used, large baskets of that flower standing upon the mantel and book-cases. In the dining room, where Hughes served a buffet supper, white carnations were used upon the buffet. During the reception there was music by the Philharmonic orchestra, which, stationed in the hall, later played for dancing which lasted until about midnight.

Mr and Mrs Wallace left under a shower of rose petals during the evening for their wedding trip, the bride wearing a suit of dark blue gabardine with gray collar, with which she wore a blue hat to match. Last evening's bride completed her education at the Baldwin school at Bryn Mawr, Pa., and since graduating from that school has lived at home, where she has had an active part in the social life of the younger set. Mr Wallace, who graduated from the Hotchkiss school, finished at the Sheffield scientific school with the class of 1914, and is now connected with the store of Forbes & Wallace, where he is manager of several departments. Upon their return Mr and Mrs Wallace will live at 372 Union street.

Among the out-of-town guests present last evening were Mr and Mrs Frank A. Robbins, Jr., and children from Harrisburg, Pa., Mr and Mrs Donald Robbins of Newton Highlands, Mr and Mrs Douglas H. Thomson and Mr and Mrs James M. Thomson of Hartford, Ct., Mrs John F. Allen and her son.

Glastonbury Young Woman Bride of Middletown

Rev. Douglas Horton.

Rev. Douglas Horton Now a Chaplain in Army.

(Special to The Courant, 1918)
Middletown, Aug. 24.

Another one of Middletown's churches is without a pastor as a result of the war. Rev. Douglas Horton, pastor of the North Congregational Church, the oldest church in the city, has been granted leave of absence to enter the army as a chaplain. Mr. Horton has already received his appointment and is here awaiting his call into service.

Mr. Horton has been pastor of the Middletown church for more than twenty years, having succeeded Rev. Dr. Azei W. Hazen, for nearly fifty years pastor of the church, and now pastor emeritus. Mr. Horton is one of the youngest pastors that the North Church has ever had, but soon after his arrival here, began to take a leading part in affairs in the city, and is now one of the best known ministers in the city. He has been active in the work of the local Y. M. C. A. and has also been much interested in war work of various kinds.

Mr. Horton was married on May 6, 1916, to Miss Carol Scudder Williams, of Glastonbury, and has one child. Mr. Horton does not know where he will be stationed, but in all probability he will soon be sent to France to take up the work there. He is the third Middletown minister to enter Chamber-war work, Rev. Edgar R. Hyde, pastor of the First Baptist Church having been the first to leave for Y. M. C. A. work. He has been in the work since January 1. Rev. Patrick L. Dolan, assistant at St. John's Church, is also to leave shortly for war work, and is now, like Mr. Horton, awaiting his call.

y, May 9.
rred at the urch, this when Miss daughter of Williams,
Horton, as-Congrega-were mars performed
Hazen, pasgregational
ten years.
a half hour
ndered by rganist. The as pleasing
ids came in side of the
the center
bule, where ed with the vn the cen-
the eight of honor,
her father.
altar by the man. The rom "Lohen-iven in mara recessional
r: Bride and nd maid of the Misses sister of the Williams, Ruth

Williams,
Helen L. lass.; Louise enter, Mass., ontreal, Can-MacCreadie
y wore pink urried cherry
Cross, Wale classmates and, 1912, and years, having succeeded Rev.
Dr. Azei in the class of 1912.
Miss Frances
e bride, was re deep pink carried pink old C. War-nn., Prince-were James
the bride;
ceton, 1913.

ley college, class of 1912, receiving the degree of bachelor of arts. She received the degree of master of arts at Columbia university in 1915. Mr. Horton is a bachelor of arts, Princeton, 1912. The next year he studied theology abroad and then entered the Hartford Theological seminary, graduating with the class of 1915.

May 9 Wedding 1916

Mr and Mrs Harold A. Ley gave a dinner party at the Colony club last evening to celebrate the golden wedding anniversary of Mrs Ley's father and mother, Mr and Mrs John C. Kingsley of Leyfred terrace. There were present beside Mr and Mrs

Seldom has one lifetime spanned that of Empress

MISS M'MANUS

President Butler and Other Company Officers Give Aid.

TFORD, CONNECTICUT, MONDAY, MAY 8, 1916.

MISS HELEN L. McMANUS.
President.

MISS MAY G. AHERN.
Vice-President.

MISS ANNIE E. TERRY.
Treasurer.

MISS ETHEL S. DENISON.
Historian.

MISS ANNA L. BUCKLEY.
Recording Secretary.

MISS LEONA O. SMITH.
Financial Secretary.

chief of the Windsor fire department.

announced that Agency Manager E. V. Preston had given a flag to the club by way of showing his interest in the scheme which the girls took up.

To
A. I.
Surre
Fred Jewee
engag
in the East circle nation singha large ventio want
of

MISS MARY S. AMES ENGAGED

Daughter of the Late Frederick Lothrop Ames to Become the Wife of Louis Adams Frothingham, Former Lieutenant Governor of Massachusetts

April 28 1916

No engagement in Boston society in a long time is more notable than that announced today of Miss Mary Shreve Ames to Louis Adams Frothingham, former lieutenant governor of this Commonwealth, the former Speaker of the Massachusetts House of Representatives and prominent in other ways in public life. The announcement was made from Miss Ames's country home, "Wayside," in North Easton, where she has been since her return from spending the winter season in Aiken, South Carolina.

Miss Ames long has been active in charitable and philanthropic work in Boston and has given much of her time to the promotion of various good causes in which she has been interested. She has taken an active part in the anti-suffrage movement. In social life she always has been prominent, not only in Boston but also in several other cities and she has an unusually extensive acquaintance. She is a member of the Chilton Club, the New Riding Club and the Norfolk Hunt Club.

Miss Ames is the daughter of the late Frederick Lothrop Ames and Rebecca Caroline (Blair) Ames, the latter from St. Louis, Mo. She is the sister of Oliver Ames of Commonwealth avenue and Prides Crossing, who married Miss Ellise West; of Frederick Lothrop Ames, of Dartmouth street and Commonwealth avenue, who married Miss Edith C. Cryder, and another brother is John Stanley Ames, of Dartmouth street, whose wife was formerly Miss Nancy Filley. The late Mrs. Robert C. Hooper (Helen Angier Ames) was a sister of Miss Ames. Two years ago Miss Ames, with her brothers, gave to North Easton $42,000 for the erection of a school.

The marriage of ex-Lieut-Gov Louis A. Frothingham and Miss Mary Shreve Ames, daughter of the late Frederick L. Ames of Boston, has followed quick upon the news of their engagement. The wedding took place in the Ames family home in North Easton on Monday. Both have a wide circle of friends, and the congratulations will be abundant. Mr. Frothingham is one of the alternates-at-large to the republican national convention, and probably his wife will want to view a gathering that will be of ex-

MISS MARY S. AMES MARRIED

Daughter of Late Frederick L. Ames Becomes the Wife of Former Lieutenant Governor Louis A. Frothingham at North Easton

May 8 1916

Miss Mary Shreve Ames, daughter of the late Frederick Lothrop Ames, and Hon. Louis A. Frothingham, former lieutenant governor of Massachusetts, whose engagement was announced the latter part of April, were quietly married this noon at North Easton. The wedding took place in Unity Church and was performed by Rev. William L. Chaffin, D. D., the minister, assisted by Rev. Paul Revere Frothingham, D. D., of the Arlington Street Church, who is a brother of the bridegroom.

The ceremony was witnessed only by the immediate members of the Ames and Frothingham families.

MRS. F. S. RUSSELL TO WED.

Engaged to Alexander S. Webb, President of Lincoln Trust Co.

The engagement of Mrs. Florence Sands Russell and Alexander S. Webb has been announced. Mrs. Russell is a daughter of the late James W. Sands and widow of William Hamilton Russell.

Mr. Webb is a son of the late General Alexander S. Webb and Mrs. Webb, and a brother of Mrs. John E. Alexandre. He is President of the Lincoln Trust Company.

The wedding is to take place on Wednesday, May 10, at the residence of Mrs. Russell, 271 Lexington Avenue.

East Hartford, May 10.—An attractive but quiet home wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John W. Gilnack of No. 48 Francis street this afternoon at 4 o'clock, when their only daughter, Miss Dorothy Marguerite Gilnack became the bride of Robert Seymour Forbes, son of Commissioner and Mrs. Lawrence S. Forbes of No. 1,037 Main street. Simplicity marked the wedding and only intimate relatives of the young couple were present. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Harold H. Critchlow, pastor of the Burnside Methodist church.

The couple were unattended. The Episcopal ring service was used. The bride was attired in a navy blue taffeta silk traveling suit and wore a corsage bouquet of mignon roses and maiden hair fern. A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents, which only the immediate families attended. The groom's gift to his bride was a pearl and diamond la valliere. Mr. and Mrs. Forbes will leave this evening for a honeymoon, and upon their return will reside at No. 1,021 Main street, and will be "at home" after September 10.

The bridegroom is associated in business with his father, being assistant treasurer of the East Hartford Manufacturing company, of which his father is president and

The bride was until recently What was expected to be one of the most brilliant weddings of the season in New York took place very quietly, Thursday when Miss Le Brun Parsons, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. Eugene Parsons, and a descendant of Madame Le Brun, the artist, and Philip Rhinelander, 2d, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Oakley Rhinelander, were married at the home of the bride's parents, Thursday afternoon. The marriage had been expected to occur latter in the season, but was changed because of the expectation of the bridegroom that he might be called to serve with the militia in Mexico as a member of the Seventh regiment. Only a small circle of close relatives attended the ceremony which was performed by Bishop Frederick Courtney, rector of St. James's church. The bride was presented at the Court of St. James in London three years ago and made her debut in New York the following season. She is prominent as a member of the younger circle at Newport. Mr. Rhinelander is a member of one of the oldest and wealthiest families in New York.

May 14

TRAVELERS GIRLS, 549 OF THEM, AT ANNUAL BANQUET POETICAL HISTORIAN.

G Miss Denison Does Herself and Travelers Girls Proud in Her Garden of Verse.

Evidently Miss Ethel S. Denison, retiring historian of the Travelers Girls' club, has ability other than required to pound a typewriter or run a filing cabinet. At the annual meeting and dinner and dance of the club in Foot Guard hall, Tuesday night, she submitted her review of the year's doings in verse and it made a great hit. Here are some samples:

Thus it befell that on the third of
June
Our girls marched bravely down the city street,
Arrayed in white, each group formed in platoon.
Five hundred strong they were, a cohort neat,
Though long the march, they dreamed not of retreat,
Led by the Travelers banner and its men
And by that flag which never knew defeat,
Our country's splendid emblem. Who knows when We may be called upon to serve that flag again?

Old Boreas wailed, and Jupiter
Pluvius wept,
Yet still our maids marched on, a stately train,
Undaunted by the wind that past them swept,
Oblivious of the steady, stinging rain.
From Washington, to Buckingham, to Main,
Our plucky color-bearer cheered us on,
Nor did our weary feet much respite gain
When up the length of Main street
we had gone,
Then down through High, until Asylum Hill we'd won.

And here a footsore few began to lag.
'Twas no small wonder they should feel dismay,
For "Captain Buckley" and her glorious flag—
Which Major Preston gave our club
one day—
Seemed to those rear-guard girls so far away
That inspiration failed; and so our first Fatigued detachment left us, sad to say.
Thence on through Spring we made a brilliant burst
Of speed; then, tired but victorious,
we dispersed.

As no men were admitted to the masquerade ball on January 30 in the Assembly hall of the Travelers home office building, there was no

TRAVELERS' GIRL'S CLUB PRESIDENT

MISS ANITA Q. CLARK.

Miss Ethel S. Denison, who read a chronicle done entirely in verse, touching on all the high spots in the club's history, including the preparedness parade of June 3, when 500 Travelers girls marched all in white.

Foot Guard Hall was decorated in red and white and with many American flags. There were red tulips and azaleas on the tables. The girls were in their loveliest gowns;
and—well, it would have been a sheer waste of much beautiful scenery, if the party had been confined to those who sat down to the dinner.

Middletown Young Woman Becomes Bride of Springfield Newspaper Man at Pretty Home Wedding.

May 13
Middletown, May 18.—Miss Katharine Stone Tuttle, daughter of Mrs. Katharine S. Tuttle of this city, and

Seldom has one lifetime spanned that of Emperors

NEW YORK IN LINE FOR PREPAREDNESS

Every Walk of Life, From Street
Sweeper to Supreme Court Judge, Represented in Great Demonstration

May 12 1911

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., SUNDAY, MAY 14, 1916—FORTY-SIX PA

THE 150,000 PASSING NEW YORK PUBLIC LIBRARY IN PREPAREDNESS PA

points. Of course, it's no affair of mine,
Mr. and So criticism I resign.
Gillett Content my interest to confine st To quite respectful glances, of Provid And yet it does appear to me until Jun These pretty maidens that I see, ited inc Garbed as they are, do certainly Gettysburg Take some tremendous chances.
ern Blue Ridge mountain section, Baltimore, Harrisburg and Pittsburg. This is the sixth annual auto tour of the same party.

From Paris, yesterday afternoon:—
"On the left bank of the Meuse the artillery combat continued without interruption in the sectors of the woods of Avocourt and Hill 804. During the night we realized further progress in the vicinity of Hill 237.
"On the right bank the Germans renewed yesterday (Friday) their attacks on our trenches southeast of Fort Donnau. In spite of the vo-lence of the bombardment which preceded the enemy assaults our line did

The marriage is announced of Miss Margaret H. Brockway, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Brockway, to Frederick Judson Tourtelotte of Chicago, Ill., which took place at Webster Hill, the home of the bride's parents in West Hartford, yesterday noon, Rev. Dr. Ernest DeF. Miel, rector of Trinity Church, officiated.

May 15

TO DEDICATE NEW WINDSOR CHURCH

119

Bishop Nilan Officiates at Impressive Service — Strong Sermon Preached by Rev. M. F. McAuliffe of Hartford — Short March by Church Societies.

WINDSOR, Monday, May 15.

The new St. Gabriel's Church in Windsor was dedicated yesterday by Rt. Rev. John Joseph Nilan, bishop of the Diocese of Hartford. The exercises connected with the dedicatory service were participated in not only by the members of the Catholic faith, but the townspeople, both Catholics and Protestants, were present in large numbers to witness the impressive exercises.

Previous to the dedicatory exercises, the various societies of the church and visiting societies from Poquonock marched from the junction of Poquonock and Bloomfield avenue to the foot of Stony Hill and returned to the church in time to participate in the exercises. The parade was led by St. Joseph's Drum Corps of Poquonock and was followed by Marshal Henry Willis and his aides. In the line were the Holy Name Society of St. Joseph's Church, Poquonock; the Tierney Cadets of St. Gabriel's Church, John Mastaglio, major; the Windsor Military Band; St. Cassimir's Catholic Lithuanian Society of Poquonock; St. Gabriel's Holy Name Society and the senior and junior Sodality of the Blessed Virgin Mary of St. Gabriel's Church. The members of the Lithuanian Society wore caps of blue and white. When the parade reached the foot of Stony Hill, the marchers formed in open files on both sides of the street and, as Bishop Nilan in his auto passed between the lines, all removed their hats.

Rev. John J. Fitzgerald, pastor of the church, had carefully arranged every detail. Promptly at 10:30 o'clock the ceremonies began. Rev. J. B. Doherty of Hartford was the master of ceremonies. Led by the Crucifer, altar assistants, attending priests and pastor of the church, the bishop, carrying the bishopric staff, was escorted to the front of the church and, returning, the Litany was chanted. Then followed the blessing of the edifice, the altar assistants, priests and bishop forming in procession and marching around the interior and the bishop sprinkled holy water on the walls as the priests in the procession chanted responses. On account of the large crowd in the church, it was with difficulty that the processions were formed. The building has a seating capacity of 600, but there were fully 1,000 in the church. Extra chairs were placed in the aisles and many stood during the entire service.

The celebrant of the mass was Rev.

PAGES.

PARADE

VERSARIES

V. Harrington
lcome J. Har-

IS
YEARS OLD

umberman for re Coming
ate.

No. 16 Center
94th birthday
at the home of askers. Neigh-
d with birthday
the nonogenarexcellent health
reserved and he
Mr. Maskers
Pa., and was askers.

g lumber in the
when he moved to Middletown, his home, and took up similar work, cutting timber for the market. He retired from work about six years ago and came to Hartford which has since been his home. He married Miss Emily Buck of Buck's Hollow, Portland, who died about two years after he moved to Hartford, aged 88 years. Of four children born of the marriage, three, Mary Maskers of Yalesville and Samuel Maskers and Elmer Maskers of Hartford are living. Rosetta died in infancy.

PASSING OF OLD WINDSOR CHUR ST. G 1,000 AT DEDICATI OF NEW ST. GABRIEL CHURCH IN WINDS

Rev. J

(S
W

An and Gabriel's which w Windsor this chur pastor a Rev. Fatl first past been app J. Nilan, I ford, to Rev. Fatl to St. Gal as he has Church a charge of. is a missi Old Edifice Which Soon Will Be Vacated By Congregation When New Church is Completed. He has had charge of both churches Thomas J. Quilty of Hartford, Miss and Mrs. W. R. Mc-for, nearly esteemed n but by the Rev. J. J. pastorate t at Windsor churches a and a new to St. Jose The new finished in in 1915. F been know was to be provide for assigned to of St. Gat from Miss Newton B. which stand at Lower place, and tory. The owns the edifice and In making congregatio Gabriel's C Rev. Father which had by Bishop co-operatio new parish.

ST. GABRIEL'S CHURCH IN WINDSOR.

ST. GABRIEL'S CHURCH.

Says Poincare.
Will Fight Until Foe is Vanquished

Seldom has one lifetime spanned
L. A. Gulnan of South Meriden, Rev.
M. H. May of Hartford was deacon and Rev. Felix Kuduka of Chicago vice-presi-

E. H. M' MEN ENTERS

Manchester
amination

June 23
Edward Hall
of Mr. and Mrs.
Manchester, ha
the physical an for admission
Naval Academ
will be sworn
He is a gradu

HARTFORD BOY PASSES EXAMS FOR ANNAPOLIS

John W. Dwyer Eligible to Enter U. S. Naval Academy.

May 14, 1916
John W. Dwyer, son of Mrs. John W. Dwyer of No. 815 Asylum avenue, has been notified that he passed his final examinations for admission to the United States Naval Academy at West Point, to which he was appointed by Congressman P. Davis Oahey after succeeding in the competitive examination which took place October 20. He is now await-

E. H. M'MENEMY ENTERS ANNAPOLIS

Manchester Boy Passes Ex- aminations for Admis- sion.

June 23—1916
Edward Hollister McMenemy, son of Mr. and Mrs. John McMenemy of Manchester, has successfully passed the physical and mental examinations for admission to the United States Naval Academy at Annapolis. He will be sworn into the service today. He is a graduate of this year's class at the naval course as a Keller, son of Keller of No. 18. Dwyer, alternate also inations, but idemy unless elop to pre- entering. Hartford April mary educa- school, he at- Keller

May 19. s Oahey has, he bureau of, ment, to the yer of Hart- emy of Man- ellers of Hart- inations for Academy at 18. Dwyer, appointee on first appoint- physical ex- found qual- idemy at that

s the first al- appointment. emy if found in- cipal failed examinations. rst alternate's yer, although examinations, unless Dwyer lly in June. passed with ades, Dwyer. 4, Keller 16.5 of a possible

Edward Hollister McMenemy.

of the South Manchester High School and is 17 years old. He has always maintained high grades during his high school course and was graduated as an honor pupil, although one of the youngest members of his class. He was also ivy orator at the class day exercises. He was appointed by Congressman P. Davis Oahey after passing the competitive examination. He has been admitted to the Academy.

GOLDEN WEDDING OBSERVED May 16 BY JUDGE AND MRS. CHAPIN

121

John W. Dwyer.

quietly, With res and Im-

rd Whitman et celebrated heir wedding
ial reception and immeout the day
erous letters ulation from ing the aftrved to the his being in nion.

are among er residents
ing lived in ire married and enjoy rday morn-
at the sit-
he received
rt officials.
married in i, by Rev
before her avinia Bee-as born in laughter of he received ners. Her nal officers

Judge Chapin the 55th wedding anniversary of Judge E. W. and Mrs. Chapin, which was celebrated by a small informal gathering at their home on Elm street. With the exception of a short of that city ar period in the earliest part, the whole of their married life has been spent in Holyoke and a few of their close friends and neighbors joined with the family and some relations in offer- ing congratulations on the auspicious occasion. A social hour was enjoyed and refreshments including a wedding cake were served. 1921 Justice of the Holyoke police court.

Judge Chapin served one term in the school board years ago. He is at the present time president of the Farr alpaca company. He is senior deacon in the Second Congregational church and is also a member of Holyoke lodge of Masons. Judge and Mrs. Chapin have four children, three daughters, Mrs. William F. Whiting, Miss Alice M. Chapin and Miss Clara M. Chapin; one son, Arthur E. Chapin, former mayor and state treasure, who is now in the banking business in Boston.

During the afternoon from 2 until 4 o'clock a reception was held at the home of Mrs. William F. Whiting, daughter of the couple, only the mem- bers and immediate friends of the family being in attendance. During the reception a musical program was presented which included the follow-

March 1916
At a dinner given Thursday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. William A. Rogers of Buffalo, N. Y., the engagement was announced of their daughter, Miss Alice L. Rogers, to Richard Dwight Hillis, son of Rev. Dwight Hillis, pastor of the Plymouth Church of Brooklyn, N. Y. Miss Rogers, who was introduced to society two years ago, is a graduate of the Westover School and Mr. Hillis was graduated from Yale University in 1910.

TEARING DOWN OLD CHURCH IN WINDSOR

St. Gabriel's Edifice Has Been Sold to J. L.
Porcheron.

STANDS IN REAR OF NEW BUILDING.

Contents of Old Cornerstone
Will be of Interest to Grace Church.

(Special to The Courant.)

WINDSOR, Sunday, Nov., 25.

Work has been started towards the tearing down of the old St. Gabriel's Church which stands in the rear of the new edifice which was completed in May 1916. The old church building has been sold to John L. Porcheron and the lumber in it is to be used by Mr. Porcheron in building a house. The passing of the old church marks the removal of a building which is rich in historic value to the town. It was built in 1843 by the Episcopalians and occupied as an Episcopal Church until September 13, 1865, when it was bought by the Roman Catholics and occupied by them until their new church was completed in 1916. Older residents of the town remember hearing of the laying of the corner stone and it is learned that there is a box in the corner stone which contains some things which will be much prized by the parish of Grace Church. of Grace Church has conferred with Rev. Father J. F. Quinn, pastor of St. Gabriel's Church and the officials of the church in regards to securing the contents of the box when the building is torn down. All have kindly consented to turn over to the Episcopal Church, the contents of the box, which will be carefully preserved by the officers of Grace Church.

New Britain, May 16.—The South church chapel will be the scene of a pretty wedding to-morrow evening at 7:30, when the Rev. Howard Stowell Fox, assistant pastor of the South church, and Miss Dorothy Louise Prentice, daughter of Mrs. Nellie L. Prentice, are united in marriage by the Rev. George W. C. Hill, pastor. As the bridal party enters the church Professor J. C. Beebe, church organist, will play the wedding march. The chapel will be prettily decorated for the occasion. The Rev. Theodore Fowle, a classmate of the Rev. Mr. Fox, will be the best man. The Rev. Mr. Fowle has been a missionary in China and only recently returned. Mrs. William Allen of Hartford, sister of the bride, will be matron of honor. The ushers will be Louis Bruemmer and Claire Upson. A reception will follow the ceremony at the bride's home at No. 48 Prospect street.

LONGMEADOW

TWO PRE-WEDDING LUNCHEONS

Mrs T. Edward Cordis Entertains for Miss Burbank and Attendants, and Frederick Clarke for Best Man and Ushers

The luncheons given yesterday afternoon at the Hotel Kimball and at the Country club were the concluding functions in honor of the two principal figures in the Burbank-Clarke wedding last evening. Mrs T. Edward Cordis of Longmeadow gave a luncheon of eight covers at the Kimball for Miss Burbank and her attendants, while Frederick Colton Clarke, the bridegroom-elect, entertained his best man and ushers at the Country club.

The luncheon at the Kimball was served in one of the private dining rooms, and the guests, in addition to Miss Burbank, included the maid of honor, Miss Ruth Kenyon; the bridesmaids, Miss Eunice Bliss Burbank of Longmeadow, a sister of the bride-elect, Miss Ruth Lane Harding of Braintree, Mrs Daniel Erskine Burbank of this city and Miss Marguerite Colton of Hartford, Ct., and Mrs Joseph O. Thompson of Amherst, another sister of Miss Burbank, and a house guest at the Burbank home.

The centerpiece upon the table was a low basket filled with sunburst roses, combined with blue and pink sweet peas, a fluffy bow of shaded yellow chiffon ribbon falling from the handles over the flowers. The favors at the eight places were distinctly bridal in their nature, being small silver vases filled with individual clusters of lilies of the valley. The place cards were in the form of kewpies and hearts. Following the luncheon, which was served at 1.30 o'clock, the guests enjoyed an hour of bridge.

Mr Clarke entertained at the same hour as the bridesmaids' luncheon, at the Country club, his guests including the best man and ushers. The former is Daniel Erskine Burbank of this city, and the latter include William F. Drysdale of New York, Frederick Gray Colton of Brooklyn, N. Y., Dr Thomas Grant Alcorn of Thompsonville and Harold Bradford Colton of New York. Other luncheon guests included Dr Joseph O. Thompson of Amherst college, T. Edward Cordis of Longmeadow and John Wheeler Harding of Braintree.

IN LONGMEADOW HOME

BURBANK-CLARKE WEDDING

Well-Known Young Woman the Bride of Schenectady, (N. Y.) Man

May 17 1916

An event in which Springfield people had much interest was the home wedding in Longmeadow last evening at the home of Mr and Mrs James Bliss Burbank on Longmeadow street, when their youngest daughter, Miss Laura Colton Burbank, and Frederick Colton Clarke of Schenectady, N. Y., were united in marriage. Rev Henry Lincoln Bailey was the officiating clergyman, and the ceremony took place at 6.30 o'clock in the spacious living room of the Burbank home.

The bridal party formed on the second floor, passing down the broad stairway to the strains of "The Bridal Chorus" from "Lohengrin," played by Nutting's orchestra. The ushers, who included William F. Drysdale of New York city, Frederick Gray Colton of Brooklyn, N. Y., Dr Thomas G. Alcorn of Thompsonville, Ct., and Harold Bradford Colton of New York, led the party, carrying a rope of green smilax and rosebuds, with which they formed an aisle for the bridal party, which passed through the east door of the living room to the west side.

The bridesmaids, Miss Eunice Bliss Burbank and Miss Ruth Lane Harding, made an attractive appearance in their gowns of pink maline made over pink taffeta with trimmings of silver lace and rosebuds. They carried arm bouquets of pink sweet peas tied with pink and silver ribbons. The bride had chosen Miss Ruth Kenyon of Long Hill street as her maid of honor. She wore a gown of soft green maline made over green taffeta, with a garniture of silver lace and rosebuds. She carried an arm bouquet of Killarney roses tied with wide pink and silver tulle ribbon. Then came the two small nieces of the bridegroom, the twin sisters, Mary Pitkin Barringer and Catherine Pitkin Barringer of Schenectady, N. Y., who made an extremely pretty picture in their pink silk dresses with white shoes and stockings. They each carried a basket of pink sweet peas.

Last of all came the bride, a vision of loveliness, gowned in white satin cut en train with trimmings of pearls and rhinestones, and a garniture of rose point lace. She wore a flowing bridal veil of tulle caught to a dainty cap with a wreath of orange blossoms, and carried a shower bouquet of lilies of the valley and bride roses. The bride and her attendants all wore silver hose and slippers. At the foot of the stairway the bride was joined by her father, and as they passed through the living room they were met by the bridegroom, his best man, Daniel Erskine Burbank, a brother of the bride, and Mr Bailey, who came through the west door, all forming

ine Boudoir Robes

The couple were assisted in receiving by the bride's parents, Mr and Mrs James Bliss Burbank, and the bridegroom's sister, Mrs Albert Pitkin of New York city. Mrs Pitkin wore a handsome gown of black net over gray satin with gold trimmings, while Mrs Burbank wore a becoming gown of two-toned blue and gray satin. Later in the evening the bridal party had supper in the dining room, while the large company was cared for in the spacious marquee erected for the occasion and brilliantly lighted by electricity, the lights being concealed in Japanese lanterns. Hughes was the caterer, and the arrangements were carried out so perfectly that confusion was avoided. One of the full length windows of the library had been removed and the guests not only passed through the hall door to piazza and marquee, but readily stepped from the window. The marquee not only extended over the front lawn to the sidewalk and driveway, but a room was fitted out on either side, where the guests could leave their wraps. Later in the evening the festive spirit was still more in evidence by the dancing on the broad platform of the marquee which extended some 40 feet to the north and some distance west.

The decorations by Osterman & Steele were unusually artistic. In the living room where the ceremony took place, the mantel was massed with maidenhair ferns, filled with Ophelia rosebuds. Palms adorned the corners of the rooms, and the background before which the bridal party stood was also of tall palms, with two rows of pink-tinted hydrangeas arranged with them, while a tall jar of fragrant apple blossoms stood beside the mantel. In the dining room the chandelier was twined with festoons of sparkleberry and maidenhair fern, three of these festoons being allowed to hang down above the table, with a cluster of sweet peas at the end of each. The large centerpiece of the table was of pink sweet peas, while the sideboard was massed with Ophelia roses mingled with asparagus fern. The color scheme carried out in all the rooms was of green, white and pink, and in harmony with this the mantel in the library was banked with luxuriant pink snapdragons with the fireplace below filled with palms, while palms and hydrangeas were arranged about the room. Similar decorations were in the hall, where the stairway

May Child-McCausland. 19
Miss Irene May McCausland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Elmer McCausland of No. 22 Brownell avenue, and Royal Arlington Child of this city, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Sparks of No. 280 Main street, were married yesterday afternoon at 5:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Dr. Edward Cary Bass of Providence, R. I., who was pastor of the church in Maine which the parents of the bride attended thirty years ago. He was assisted by Rev. H. Sargeant Scarborough, pastor of the South Park Methodist Church, the double ring Episcopal service being used. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was attended by her cousin, Miss Madeline S. Parkhurst of this city, as maid of honor, and the best man was Raymond B. Sherman of Norwich, cousin of the bridegroom. The ushers were Walter S. Patterson of New York, Alfred J. Woodward of West Hartford, William J. Craig and Lester S. Kittredge of this city, M. Thornton McGee of Providence, R. I., formerly of this city, Trinity, 1914, and Charles Wallace Cooke of this city, Trinity, 1915. The bridal chorus from "Lohengrin," by Wagner, was played by Miss Elsie J. Clemons. Preceding the ceremony, Mrs. Grace F. Melberger sang "O, Promise Me," and, following the ceremony, she sang "The Ring." The rooms were attractively decorated with palms, apple blossoms and pink roses, and there were large clusters of white lilacs in the room where the punch was served. The ceremony was performed in the front room before a high bank of the palms and apple blossoms. The bride wore a dress of white crepe de chine, cut with a train and trimmed with silver lace and the long tulle veil was fastened to a cap of princess lace. She carried a shower bouquet of white orchid sweet peas. The maid of honor wore light blue soiree silk and white Georgette crepe and carried a shower bouquet of pink orchid sweet peas. The bride wore a diamond and pearl lavalier, which was the gift of the bridegroom. The bride's gift to her attendant was a pearl and sapphire pendant and the best man received from the bridegroom a sapphire scarfpin. The gifts to the ushers were gold tie clasps and Miss Clemons received from the bride a green gold friendship pin. The bride's mother wore a dress of violet chiffon taffeta and Georgette crepe with opalescent trimmings and the mother of the bridegroom wore pearl gray taffeta with passementerie trimmings. Following the ceremony, there was a reception, a number of the bride's friends assisting in serving as follows: Miss Clemons, Miss Irene M. Tansley, Miss Helen F. Palmer, Mrs. William J. Craig, and Mrs. Lester S. Kittredge. Miss Emily W. Campbell was in charge of the punch and Helen Parkhurst and Virginia Parkhurst, young cousins of the bride, passed the wedding cake. Guests were present from New York, Norwich, Providence, R. I., Forestville, New Britain and Windsor. Following the reception, Mr. and Mrs. Child left for a wedding trip to Atlantic City and

Pet N

Kittredge for $200. The collision was between an automobile driven by Mr. Kittredge and a motorcycle operated

Charter 2055

(Special to The Courant.)
MANCHESTER, Thurs., May 18.
Their Wedding Day.

Yesterday was the fiftieth anniversary of the marriage of Mr. and Mrs.

Henry celebr aftern ceptio from evenir were braha perfor They Mass., twenty ing er Hilliar in Hi daugh Mrs. l Mrs. There dren

M.
 Pro. emerit
 Arts,
 their their their l
 A fam
 an int
 The fa
 Weir c fessor daughter

Perry and Mrs. Perry of Providence; Mrs. Joseph Denny Sergeant of New Haven and her children.

Mrs. Charles Thomas Welles of Washington street gave a large reception on Wednesday afternoon, in honor of her daughter, Miss Alice Bradford Welles, who was formally introduced to society on this occasion. The guests were received by Mrs. Welles, Miss Welles and Miss Alice Wilder Smith, an aunt of Miss Welles. The house was beautifully decorated with flowers, most of which were sent by friends of the debutante. Tea was served in the living room and coffee in the dining room. Those assisting were Mrs. Leverett Brainard, Mrs. Charles W. Havemeyer, Mrs. Frederick Wendall Davis, Mrs. James Lippincott Goodwin, Mrs. George E. Taintor, Mrs. Bernard T. Williams, Miss Julia Havemeyer, Miss Lucy Taintor, Miss Stone, Mrs. Lyman B. Brainard, Mrs. I. K. Hamilton, jr., Miss Frances Williams, Miss Mildred Corson and Miss Helen Pease. May 17, 1916

Miss Welles was graduated from the Hartford Public High School in 1911 and from Smith College in 1915.

LONGMEADOW

Mr and Mrs Oscar C. Pomeroy and Miss Agnes T. and Miss Dorothy C. Allen have returned from Chester, Ct., where they were called Sunday to attend the funeral of Simeon S. Brooks, who died very suddenly Friday. Invitations were to have been sent out next week for the wedding of the only daughter of Mr and Mrs Brooks, Miss Florence Brooks, and David B. Allen of Longmeadow, a brother of Mrs Pomeroy and the Misses Allen. The plans for a large wedding which had been made will now have to be

LONGMEADOW

May Brooks-Allen Wedding 18

David Bushnell Allen, son of Mrs Charles S. Allen of Longmeadow, and Miss Florence E. Brooks daughter of

MR. AND MRS. HENRY L. STACY.

Springfield

May Pastor 25 Years. 18

A reception will be given by the members of the Congregational Church for Rev. Thomas M. Hodgdon and Mrs. Hodgdon this evening from 8 to 10 o'clock, it being the twenty-fifth anniversary of Mr. Hodgdon's pastorate. They will be assisted in receiving by Rev. James T. Carter and Mrs. Carter of Elmwood, Deacon Edward W. Morley and Mrs. Morley, Deacon Arthur R. Thompson and Mrs. Thompson.

LUNCHEON FOR MISS HARRIS

Given by Mrs Edmond H. Smith at the Colony Club

A combination of pink and white was used in the floral decorations at the luncheon given at the Colony club yesterday afternoon by Mrs Edmond Harvey Smith of Mulberry street in honor of Miss Helen Osborne Harris, the fiancée of the hostess's son, James Parker Smith. The 24 guests were seated at small tables arranged in the porch dining room of the club, and the pink and white shades alternated at the tables, the one at which Miss Harris was seated being appropriately in white. A low basket filled with white roses, snapdragon and sweet peas was placed on this table, while on the others pink snapdragon and white sweet peas alternated with pink sweet peas and white roses, with the handle of each basket tied with white chiffon.

The place cards were all suggestive of the coming bridal. Mrs Smith's guests included the young women who are to form the bridal party on Thursday evening, including Mrs Frederic Marshall Jones, the matron of honor, and the other attendants, Miss Ruth Wallace, Mrs Daniel Erskine Burbank and Miss Constance Fowler of this city, Miss Katherine Wilby of Cincinnati, O., and Miss Barbara Barnett of New York. The other guests were intimate personal friends of Miss Harris.

DANCE AT COUNTRY CLUB

Mr and Mrs Enos Smith Entertain in Honor of Their Sons' Wives June 17, 1916

Mr and Mrs Enos Smith of Clarendon street entertained last evening at the Country club, the dancing party at which they were hosts proving to be one of the most delightful affairs of the season. It was distinctly bridal in its atmosphere, as it was given in honor of two brides who have recently entered the Smith family, the four honor guests being Mr and Mrs James Parker Smith and Mr and Mrs Rodney Lawrence Smith. The large living room was given over to the dancing, mountain laurel with its pinkest blossoms being used in the decorations there. The receiving party stood before the large bay window of the room, against a background of palms and laurel. Leading from the living room to the enclosed dining room was a long aisle formed with palms and dainty gauze ribbons, beneath the palms being arranged cosy corners for the convenience of the guests. At the opening of the aisle stood tall, slender baskets filled with pink peonies. The enclosed dining room itself had been converted for the occasion into a palm garden lighted with Japanese lanterns. Here punch was served during the evening.

At 10 o'clock in the intermission of dancing a course supper was served, the guests being seated at small tables arranged about the dining room, all looking toward the table at the end of the room where sat Mr and Mrs Smith, their honor guests and a few others. This table was most bridal in its appearance for there were two other brides and bridegrooms seated there, while the exquisite centerpiece represented a "honey moon" of yellow flowers rising from a floral foundation. This centerpiece was arranged by Schlatter, who also arranged the decorations of the other rooms. On the other 14 tables were large vases of pink peonies, while in recognition of Bunker Hill day, observed yesterday, the hostess, who is a member of Mercy Warren chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, had suspended a large American flag from the gallery. In recognition of the same sentiment several patriotic airs were rendered by the Philharmonic orchestra, which also played for the dancing.

HARRIS-SMITH WEDDING

Well-Known Springfield Young People United in Presence of Large Company—Reception at Harris Residence on Maple Street

May 15—1916

The second large church wedding of the month took place last evening in the church of the Unity when Miss Helen Osborne Harris, younger daughter of Mr and Mrs Frederick Harris, became the bride of James Parker Smith, son of Mr and Mrs Edmond Harvey Smith of Mulberry street. The auditorium of the church was completely filled with the many hundred guests, while several hundred relatives and friends attended the reception held immediately after the church ceremony at the Harris home on Ames hill. The ceremony took place at 7 o'clock and was performed by Rev Augustus P. Reccord, pastor of the church. C. L. Safford of St George's church in New York city presided at the organ, and as the bridal party entered played the wedding march from "Lohengrin," playing later as the recessional the Mendelssohn wedding march.

The decorations of the church were carried out with great simplicity and beauty entirely in keeping with the architectural lines of the church itself. Smilax was massed about and below the reading desk, the sprays of smilax running over to conceal the choir lofts, and the same vine was used beneath the organ pipes themselves. Mingled with this smilax beneath the pipes were three clusters of yellowest daffodils, and a cascade of the same flowers came from the reading desk. At either side beneath the choir lofts other clusters of yellow daffodils gleamed. Below these were banked palms, reaching on either side to the first column, which was twined with smilax. The pews were also marked with clusters of daffodils tied loosely with white ribbons.

The yellow used in the decoration of the church was in harmony with the colors of the gowns of the bridal attendants and of the flowers they carried. Last evening's bride was attended not only by a matron of honor but also by a maid of honor, the former being her older sister, Mrs Frederic Marshall Jones, and the latter Miss Ruth Wallace. Both these attendants appeared in effective gowns of yellow silk and each carried a large arm bouquet of Aaron Ward roses and lilies of the valley. The four bridesmaids, who included Mrs Daniel Erskine Burbank and Miss Constance Fowler of this city, Miss Katherine Wilby of Cincinnati, O., and Miss Barbara Barnett of New York city, were similarly gowned. Yellow tulle over pink silk composed these dainty frocks which were ornamented with yellow ribbon. Their bouquets were arm ar-

The best man was a brother of the bridegroom, Bradford P. Smith, while two other brothers acted as ushers, Theodore R. Smith and Rodney L. Smith, the others including Theodore W. Ellis, Russell C. Parsons, Charles Tift, all of this city, and Dodd Ewing of New York city.

At the reception following at the Harris home, Mr and Mrs Smith received in the bay window of the spacious drawing room, assisted by Mr and Mrs Harris and Mr and Mrs Edmond H. Smith. Mrs Harris wore a handsome robe of blue brocade and carried pink sweet peas, while Mrs Smith appeared in a gown of white made over pink, trimmed with lace. One of the most charming of the guests was little Emily Harris Jones, the niece of the

ENTERTAIN FOR MISS HARRIS

Mr and Mrs Frederic Jones Give Party in Honor of Last Night's Bride—Miss Wallace Gives Luncheon

Mr and Mrs Frederic Marshall Jones entertained in their home on Maple street yesterday noon in honor of the latter's sister, Miss Helen Osborne Harris, whose marriage to James Parker Smith in the church of the Unity last evening was one of the brilliant affairs of the week. The guests included the members of the bridal party and out-of-town guests, in addition to several of the intimate friends of the bride and bridegroom. There were about 125 present. A buffet breakfast was served at noon. Members of the Jennie Woodbridge orchestra of Boston furnished music for the midday dancing. Hadley roses were arranged in a fancy basket to form the centerpiece on the breakfast table, and the other rooms of the house were brightened with the flowers of the season.

Another affair in honor of Miss Harris was the luncheon given on the preceding afternoon at the Country club by Miss Ruth Wallace, at which the guests included in addition to Miss Harris, her sister, Mrs Frederic Marshall Jones, who was matron of honor last evening, and the other members of the bridal party. Mrs Daniel Erskine Burbank and Miss Constance Fowler of this city, Miss Katherine Wilby of Cincinnati, O., and Miss Barbara Barnett of New York.

Mr and Mrs Marshall Jones, 30 guests at last evening's marriage party. Miss H. Jones, who was matron of honor, and the other members of the bridal party. Mrs Daniel Erskine Burbank and Miss Constance Fowler of this city, Miss Katherine Wilby of Cincinnati, O., and Miss Barbara Barnett of New York city, were similarly gowned. Yellow tulle over pink silk composed these dainty frocks which were ornamented with yellow ribbon. Their bouquets were arm arof white in white, a small,

the house, the church

were ex-

but striking the drawing

dragon were h wall pockflower on Harris, whose marriage to James Parker Smith in the church of the Unity festooned the same vine

he southern the library,

was placed, d upon the parlor yellow were com-or entrance room which rear of the riking effect

nite cheese- against this lattices of Miss Harris was the luncheon given on the preceding afternoon at the Country club by Miss Ruth Wallace, at which the guests included in addition to Miss Harris, her sister, Mrs Frederic Marshall Jones, who was matron of honor last evening, and the other members of the bridal party. Mrs Daniel Erskine Burbank and Miss Constance Fowler of this city, Miss Katherine Wilby of Cincinnati, O., and Miss Barbara Barnett of New York.

cases of an extreme kind an adequate punishment for murder was

Life imprisonment was should not be imposed except in ex-extreme penalty for murder, death, wisely in accepting the plea, as the Attorney Joseph B. Wily had acted to take the church guests in-bridal party friends, weral other couple cam

death, Yeung escaped the electric life, and that of first-degree murder degree murder is imprisonment for first degree. The penalty for second-tried on a charge of murder in the in the second degree, instead of being plead guilty to a charge of murder to afternoon. Yeung was allowed to

W. Irwin in superior court yesterday state prison for life by Judge Richard tember 12, 1915, was sentenced to Wu Shue Chang and Ng Hong, Sep-

Containing A SPORTS
Track Team
What the American

Hartford Boy at Theological Seminary to Have Two Years' Study
Here or Abroad.

May 1916
The John S. Welles fellowship of the Hartford Theological seminary, which provides for two years' study in this country or abroad, has been awarded this Perry, a Har-

is a son of the Tyler Perry,

ford people,
from Hartford of '85, and w as professor Perry was als
college for th death. Mr.
daughter of
at one time ter Oak banl
and still resi

Mr. Perry
Mass., and re
cation in th
His high se
ceived in M
which he g
took his B. A in 1910, and dictorian of Phi Beta Kai
in Y. M. C. college durin
was a cand scholarship.

The years spent by Mr.
vard, where degree in cl was then called to his alma mater in Marietta to act as instructor in Greek and Mathematics for the years 1912 and 1913. He held a summer pastorate in Sherburne, Vt., last summer.

Mr. Perry's plans are not yet definitely settled as to where he will apply his fellowship, but he will doubtless enter upon his studies in the fall, possibly at Chicago university or at Basle, Switzerland.

May 19
Miss Dorothea deKay Gilder, daughter of the late Richard Watson Gilder, and of Mrs. Gilder of New York, and Dallas D. K. McGrew, son of Rev. Dr. George H. McGrew and Mrs. McGrew of Silver Spring, Md., were married Friday at the home of the bride's mother.

WIDOW OF MAGAZINE EDITOR

Mrs. Richard Watson Gilder of New York
Was a Granddaughter of Joseph R.
Drak

May 19
Another was added yesterday afternoon to the many affairs given in Richard honor of Miss Miriam Tapley in the editor (tea at which her younger sister, Miss day at Beatrice Tapley, entertained about 35
tieth yefriends at the Tapley home on Union for apstreet. The guest of honor was en-cently, ticed into the library, where she was met by a dummy figure made out of various articles of tin, the gifts of Her fat the young women present, and while in Dres she was studying the formation of ested in the wonderful figure various bits of original verse were read. Tea was by three then served in the dining room, where Dorothe Mrs William W. Tapley, mother of the 19, to D hostess, presided at the tea service, assisted in serving by Mrs William C.
Bemis, Miss Lucy Chapin and Miss Mabel Knight. The centerpiece upon the tea table was a flat, oval basket, filled with yellow snapdragon, daffodils and pink sweet peas, with a large gauze bow upon the handle. The decorations in the other rooms consisted American Beauty roses.

ALFRED M. PERRY.

Seldom has one lifetime spanned
MATHER - PHELPS WEDDING

AT NORTHAMPTON HOME

May 20 1916
Daughter of Former Mayor Marries Ellsworth Phelps, Now of Washington, D. C.—300 at Reception

The home of ex-Mayor and Mrs
John L. Mather on Elm street, Northampton, was the scene of a pretty wedding last evening, when their daughter, Esther Henrietta, and Ellsworth Phelps of Washington, D. C., were married. There was a large party, numbering some 300, at the reception, following the marriage service at 6 o'clock, attended by only the relatives and a few intimate friends. The rooms were beautifully decorated. The prevailing color in the parlor was yellow, and that of the dining room was pink. The vows were spoken in a bay window, banked with palms and ferns, and approached through white columns surmounted with bouquets of yellow roses. The double-ring service was used and the minister was Rev Dr H. G. Smith, pastor of the Unitarian church. The attendants were a bridemaid and best man, a flower girl and two ring-bearers. The processional march from "Tannheuser" was played by Miss Charlotte Miller of Haydenville, cousin of the bride, and the Mendelssohn

Immediately after the ceremony a supper was served for the house guests and the wedding reception was held from 7 to 9. There were guests from New York, Boston, Hartford, Ct., Windsor, Ct., Wallingford, Ct.,
Holyoke and the neighboring towns.
A large group of guests
Goshen, where the bride's a summer home. Richr tra played at the rece refreshments were serv
lege friends of the b catered and the decorat done by Butler & Ullm ding gifts were shown room and made a beauti sive display. There w glass and china in pro of furniture and a
amount in gold coins.
gifts were received fro members of the bride's Legislature. The you ligious union of the Un of which the bridegroo member, sent a pair o sticks, and a similar g
the Colonial club.

The bride is a gr
Northampton high sch
of 1911 and of Smith class of 1915. The br

Miss Dorothy Dewey an Docla Dewey of Maple street
tained yesterday afternoon in of Miss Miriam Tapley of street, whose marriage to Mitchell Munroe is to take p morrow. They were hostesses at the Rose Tree inn in No
ton. The guests, who mot Northampton in the middle afternoon, included the men Miss Tapley's bridal party a Miss Beatrice Tapley, Miss Tapley, Miss Ruth S. Munroe
ington, Ct., Miss Elizabeth Munroe of Huntington, N.
Lucy Chapin and Miss Nan of this city, Miss Gladys P Norwich, Ct., and Miss Blau dauer of Nashville, Tenn.
about avenue, Wa
July 1.

Mrs Donald Mitchell

Formerly Miss Miriam
daughter of Mr and Mrs
Wells Tapley.

(Photograph by Co

20 ARE GRADUATED FROM SEMINARY

Prizes Announced and Degrees Conferred by Dr. Mackenzie.

REV. W. H. BUTLER OF BOSTON IS SPEAKER.

Some Graduates Will Continue Studies—Others to Begin Preaching.

June 1—1916
Twenty were graduated by the Hartford Theological Seminary yesterday with the exercises in the chapel at Hosmer Hall at 10:30 o'clock. Fifteen received the degree of bachelor of divinity, four the degree of master of sacred theology and one of doctor of philosophy.

Rev. Dr. William Douglas Mackenzie, president of the seminary, announced the awards of prizes as follows: Greek prize, Alfred Morris Perry, '16; Hartranft prize in evangelistic theology, Earle Hoit Ballou, '16; Turretin prize in Ecclesiastical Latin, Alfred Morris Perry, '16; William Thompson prize in Hebrew, divided equally between Moses Bailey, '18, and Harwood Baldwin Catlin, '18. Alfred Morris Perry was appointed John S. Welles fellow. This fellowship provides opportunity for two years of advanced study either in this country or abroad.

Moral Integrity—Spiritual Insight.

The graduation speaker was Rev. Willis H. Butler, associate minister of the Old South Church, Boston. Mr. Butler taking the subject, "The Authority of the Minister," spoke, in part, as follows:—

"Ex-President Tucker of Dartmouth has said that of all the ministries which the Christian Church performs, two are of special importance—spiritual authority and human sympathy. But these experiences do not seem to me to get down to reality. There never has been a time before when so many people have wanted to hear those who can give first hand knowledge. At one time the minister was an orator; he was the only scholar of a community, and nearly every community

EARLE HOIT BALLOU.

Winner of Evangelistic Theology Prize.

ALFRED MORRIS PERRY.

Winner of Ecclesiastical Latin story of the purpose of God. It is summed up: 'All things are of God, who reconciled us to himself through Christ, and gave unto us the ministry of reconciliation.'

"But, how are all things reconciled unto God? This is the question today, especially across the ocean. Reconciliation is what the world needs; reconciliation between class and class, between nation and nation, and between man and man. What is reconciliation? Do treaties stand for reconciliation? Is reconciliation to be found between man and man alone? That reconciliation of life with life, of man with man, that inward will of man toward all other men—how are we to deal with that? It must spring from a spirit in man, from God working in human hearts. Have you learned this in your three years here with a spirit that will carry you unfailingly? The faculty has prayed. We have tried hard as we prayed. We have prayed as we have tried. We have tried to show you that the only reconciliation possible is that which springs from an act of God. God is in Christ today reconciling the world unto Himself—reconciling every man. Think of your service. Your position outtops that of all princes and politicians, for their power shall fade. May God give you fifty years to do your work. You, my friends, are going to pour the water of life into your people. Nothing could be more sublime.

"The true ministry of the church is the ministry of reconciliation between man and man, and between man and God. We, therefore, with all love, confidence, and hope, charge you never to rest until you know all that this act means. It is the source of your power. God's light may shine in other lives through your service. Remember the reconciliation of man with God through Jesus Christ."

will sail for Japan in August will become editor-in-chief "Christian World." Mr. T. has been traveling through New England for the past week to Japanese representatives for conference at Northfield.

Julius Smith Augur of Yale was graduated from Yale University in 1913. He will enroll in the summer course at Massachusetts cultural College. In September Augur will sail for the Philippines to begin missionary work.

Earle Hoit Ballou, the winner of the evangelistic theology prize, Mrs. Ballou will leave Vancouver August 10, on the Empress of India. They will go direct to the Language School in Peking, China.

Robbins Wolcott Barstow, main as assistant to Rev. J. of the South Congregational. Last summer, Mr. Barstow in Middle Haddam. He is Miss Dorothy M. Rogers of Harris Charles Beebe, been at Vernon Center for as pastor, will move his South Coventry immediately has been called to the Congregational church there.

Miss Gertrude Brown of West Hartford is to go to Hawaii, to become associate secretary to Rev. Rowland B. the Maui Aid Association.

Tetsu Katagiri will return to seminary in the fall to study degree of master of sacred theology. Grover C. Laudenslager, minister of the Tariffville Church, two years and plans to remain next year and also to take a work at the seminary.

George Bennett Marsh is preparing to take up work in a country. He spent last summer as a student to Rev. Albert R. Williams, Maverick Church in East. Henry Clinton Newell

TAPLEY - MUNROE NUPTIALS

Beautiful Service Attended by Large Company and Followed by Reception at Colony Club.

Immediately following the ushers came Miss Elizabeth B. Munroe, who walked alone, gowned in pink, after whom walked together, Miss Eudocia Dewey and Miss Mary W. Tapley, gowned in pale green. Miss Ruth S.
Munroe and Miss Gladys Preston appeared in blue, with Miss Nan Pills-

127

Miss Elizabeth B. Munroe
Miss Mary W. Tapley,
Miss Ruth S. Munroe

lver.]

Hartford Boy at Theological Seminary to Have Two Years' Study Here or Abroad.

May 1916
The John S. Welles fellowship of Seidman has one lifetime spanned

MATHER - PHELPS WEDDING

AT NORTHAMPTON HOME

May 20 1916
Daughter of Former Mayor Marries Ellsworth Phelps, Now of

Portrait of V. G. Cariani, the Artist

Formerly of Springfield, by Frederick Negler, another Springfieldian, now lying in New York. This portrait was awarded the $50 portrait prize at Art students' league of New York.

[Photograph by Juley.]

From
and the m for the be gauze dov orations i America

the other rooms consisted beauty roses.

July 1.

TAPLEY-MUNROE NUPTIALS

Beautiful Service Attended by

Large Company and Followed

by Reception at

Colony Club

Springfield May 20

Miss Miriam Tapley, daughter of Mr and Mrs William Wells Tapley, and Donald Mitchell Munroe, son of Frederick Mitchell Munroe of Huntington, L. I., were married in the

S The ceremony was at 6.30 o'clock, an hour of special sentiment in the Tapley family, as 25 years ago it was the hour of the marriage of Mr and Mrs William W. Tapley, who thus observed their silver anniversary upon the wedding day of their eldest daughter. Mr and Mrs James P. Anderson of Paterson, N. J., the former of whom served Mr Tapley as best man, were among those present last evening. Another guest was Miss Grace Potter of Brookline, who, with Mrs Fordis C. Parker of this city, who was also present last evening with Mr Parker, an usher at the wedding 25 years ago, served Mrs Tapley as her bridesmaid.

The large wedding party attending the principals in last evening's ceremony was of unusual interest in that it contained so many young people from Springfield, or connected with Springfield families. The maid of honor was Miss Beatrice Tapley, a sister of the bride, whose other sister, Miss Mary W. Tapley, was one of the bridesmaids. The other bridesmaids were Miss Elizabeth B. Munroe of Huntington, L. I., Miss Ruth S. Munroe of Washington, Ct., the two sisters of the bridegroom, Miss Gladys Preston of Norwich, Ct., Miss Blanche Lindauer of Nashville, Tenn., Miss Nan Pillsbury, Miss Docia Dewey, Miss Dorothy Dewey and Miss Lucy Chapin of this city.

Pastel shades were used as the colors of the gowns of these attendants, the entire party giving an effect of a delicate rainbow as it came down the aisle to the platform, where the bridegroom was waiting with his best man, Sherman Hoar Bowles, and the minister, Rev E. B. Freeman, acting pastor of State-street Baptist church. The procession was led by the 10 ushers who included three cousins of the bridegroom, William H. Baldwin, 3d, Whitney Bowles of New York city, and C. Allen Bowles, Russell W. Tapley, a brother of the bride, C. T. Whiting, Jr., of Greenfield, J. E. Fowler of Boston, J. Howard Randerson of Albany, N. Y., John S. Norton, Robert Fuller Duncan and Lester F. Lewis, all of this city.

The gowns of the bridesmaids were all similar in their general outline. Radium taffeta formed the foundation of them all, while silk tulle of shimmering glints of self-color was used in the ruffles and double skirts which gave to each gown a bouffant effect. The skirts were all cut in a short length, while the bodices were finished with tiny ruffled sleeves, except in two instances, where angel sleeves were the fashion. From corresponding shoulders fell a butterfly scarf of tulle. Finished at the end, where it just cleared the floor, with a tiny cluster of flowers of contrasting shades, a similar cluster holding the scarf to the one shoulder.

Immediately following the ushers came Miss Elizabeth B. Munroe, who walked alone, gowned in pink, after whom walked together, Miss Eudocia Dewey and Miss Mary W. Tapley, gowned in pale green, Miss Ruth S. Munroe and Miss Gladys Preston appeared in blue, with Miss Nan Pillsbury and Miss Blanche Lindauer in yellow, while, last of the bridesmaids, came Miss Dorothy Dewey and Miss Lucy Chapin in lavender. All carried bouquets of sweet peas of shades corresponding to those of the gowns, with forget-me-nots to give the touch of blue and snapdragon for the yellow. The flowers were combined with maidenhair fern and tied with silver ribbon, those having been arranged by Osterman & Steele, who also had charge of the decorations of the church.

The maid of honor appeared in a gown of rose pink imported grosgrain silk embroidered in silver. An underskirt of cloth of silver was covered with silver lace over which was draped the rose silk, allowing the silver lace to show at either side, where the rose was draped in bouffant effect and caught with a bow of silver ribbon, thus giving the shepherdess effect. From the shoulders fell a

Mr and Mrs Munroe left last evening under a shower of rose petals for a short wedding trip, the bride wearing a suit of dark blue serge and taffeta, with which she wore a hat of violet. After October 1 they are to be at home at their apartment, 192 Central street, where there will be place for the extremely beautiful and costly gifts which were displayed last evening in two rooms of the Tapley home.

Mrs Munroe is a graduate of the Elms in this city and last year attended the Garland school, from which she graduated in June. With the exception of the time spent in extensive traveling and at the Tapley summer home at Watch Hill, R. I., Mrs Munroe has been active in the social doings of the young people. Mr Munroe is the only son of Frederick Mitchell and the late Elizabeth Bowles Munroe, and a nephew of the late Samuel Bowles. He graduated from the Huntington (L. I.) high school, and later attended the Massachusetts agricultural college, leaving there to take a position in the business department of The Republican. He is now connected with the advertising department of the paper.

Among the out-of-town guests were Miss Elizabeth Dold of Buffalo, N. Y., Mrs G. G. Brewer and Miss Agnes Donham of Boston, Mrs A. E. Potter and Miss Grace Potter of Brookline.

Apple blossoms and lilacs were used in great quantities in the decorations. Henry tions of the Charles L. Chapin home, Mr and Mrs on State street last evening for the Patterson, N. dancing party given by Miss Lucy Tapley and Miss Chapin in honor of Miss Miriam Tapley, R. I., ley, whose marriage to Donald Mitchell Hopkins of Munroe is to take place Saturday, June 1, at 6 o'clock, evening, and Miss Dorothy Dewey, I. Thomas who is to be married on June 1 to Edwin, Ct., Mrs Dr Francis Gilman Blake of Boston, Hills, N. Y., About 60 guests were present to enjoy the dancing for which Chase's John T. King of orchestra furnished the music.

MIDDLETOWN, Sunday, May 21.

The marriage of Miss Katherine Stone Tuttle, daughter of Mrs. Katherine Stone Tuttle of the Newfield district, to John Earle Martin, assistant sporting editor of the "Springfield Republican," was solemnized last night at 6:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Earl W. Bennett, in this city, by Rev. Azel W. Hazen, pastor of the North Congregational Church. The bride was given away by her brother, Elmer Leroy Tuttle, and the double ring ceremony was used. The matron of honor was Mrs. Bennett, while the bridesmaids were Misses Marian and Ethel Tuttle, sisters of the bride. The best man was Winsor Blanchard Williams of Newton Highlands, Mass. The music was by Lawyer Bertrand E. Spencer. The bride wore white crepe meteor with pearl trimmings, and carried a shower bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley. The matron of honor wore blue taffeta with Georgette crepe and carried Ward roses, while the bridesmaids wore pink taffeta and carried mignon roses. The house was tastily decorated with palms and roses. Following the ceremony there was a reception, after which Mr. and Mrs. Martin went on a wedding trip. They will be at home after July 1 at No. 206 High street, Springfield. Mr. Martin is the son of Homer Martin of Cromwell.

The marriage of Frederick A. Pearson, a son of the late Dr. Frank Pearson, to Miss Mary E. Adams, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Adams, was solemnized last night at 6:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Earl W. Bennett, in this city, by Rev. Azel W. Hazen, pastor of the North Congregational Church. The bride was given away by her brother, Elmer Leroy Tuttle, and the double ring ceremony was used. The matron of honor was Mrs. Bennett, while the bridesmaids were Misses Marian and Ethel Tuttle, sisters of the bride. The best man was Winsor Blanchard Williams of Newton Highlands, Mass. The music was by Lawyer Bertrand E. Spencer. The bride wore white crepe meteor with pearl trimmings, and carried a shower bouquet of orchids and lilies of the valley. The matron of honor wore blue taffeta with Georgette crepe and carried Ward roses, while the bridesmaids wore pink taffeta and carried mignon roses. The house was tastily decorated with palms and roses. Following the ceremony there was a reception, after which Mr. and Mrs. Martin went on a wedding trip. They will be at home after July 1 at No. 206 High street, Springfield. Mr. Martin is the son of Homer Martin of Cromwell.

CIVIL WAR VETERAN VISITS BATTLEFIELDS

Henry M. Adams of This City Has Returned From Visit to the South.

About May 13
Henry M. Adams of No. 621 New Britain avenue has returned from a trip that I Hartford perington, D. C. party in Wasto the battle-during the Cry, Sharps-Keedysville.

tietam he s-
where he l-before bein-and nursed
Henry F. Tr-
He also visimother cam-
when he w-months by found a ri-tietam that teenth. Cowaived thro-owned by found it the
the battle-week and that marke-of his regt-tower that erected at view may l-
The nation-
burg is kep-
and was one of the things that im-
Mr. Adams on his journey.

H. M. Adams.

MISS HELEN ROBERTS TO BE NURSE IN WAR HOSPITAL IN FRANCE

Miss Helen Roberts, daughter of George Roberts of No. 323 Washington street, and niece of former Governor Henry Roberts, will leave Hartford about May 15 for France to become a nurse in a British base hospital. She will be one of the volunteer nurses of the Third Harvard Surgical Unit, in charge of Dr.
Hugh Cabot, and will spend six months in France. The exact date when the unit will leave this country has not yet been definitely determined, but it will sail from New York, probably on a Dutch liner, soon after the middle of this month.
From New York the unit will go to Falmouth, and while in England will be uniformed and otherwise prepared.

Miss Helen Roberts and Dr. Thomas A. Foster Sail for Front From New York.

May 20 1916
Miss Helen Roberts, daughter of George Roberts of No. 323 Washing-

HARVARD UNIT COMING HOME JANUARY 13, 1919

Surgeons and Nurses, Some of Whom Have Been Overseas for Nearly Three Years
Are Expected To Reach Boston Next Week

After service overseas with the British Army of two years and eight months, the Harvard Surgical Unit is expected to reach home next week. The members of the unit sailed yesterday from Liverpool for St. John, N. B., and upon landing there will come to Boston by train. Word of this effect has been received from Lieutenant Colonel Herbert H. White, treasurer of the University Press, Cambridge, and manager of the unit by his secretary
Thomas S. Longridge.

While the cablegram did not announce the ship upon which the unit will sail or give the names of those who are coming it is probable that most of the thirty-five physicians and one hundred nurses in the unit will return home, though it is possible that some of the doctors may remain abroad for special work. Dr. Hugh Cabot with the rank of lieutenant colonel, is head of the unit.

In the spring of 1916 several groups of surgeons and nurses were sent abroad from Harvard and Dr. Cabot went with the third contingent, afterwards becoming head of the unit at British Base Hospital 22, near Boulogne, France. As originally organized, the unit had 33 surgeons and 75 nurses, but a year and a half ago the number of nurses was increased to 100. Replacements have caused the sending overseas of between 400 and 500 people for the unit.

During its long service there was only one death in the unit, that of a nurse who was a victim of meningitis. The enlisted personnel was provided from the British Army, and the physicians were given honorary commissions in the British Army, in that way being relieved of the necessity of renouncing their American citizenship.
The hospital was twice bombed by Hun airplanes and in one raid a hospital across the street was wrecked, with many casualties.

Chicken
Would be things is now hard feelings

You couldn't state of limitaa man's great-grandmother
over the man's ing to make him say to him: 'No
' And so for sp
man is making
'I think you are
' Birskey said. 'I that England has an Irishman must of Irish settleme
no real estate, the in Russia, and a couldn't use the Irish like the Poles couldn't their business with Bus
'Oser a Stuck!' Zapp man could live where own real estate and same like he acts i ates, and as for the Birskey, the average
so much about it a Hakodesh, Birskey
To my sorrow, Zapp
Birskey. 'Well, if ever you d Zapp retorted, 'learn good as Paderewski Birskey. It's a whole and you'll get more en which you could ta Birskey, if the English
sisted that every Irish learn Irish, y'understan son there would be an
and the Kaiser would neither.'
'Did the Kaiser fina Birskey asked.
'A question!' Z
'Didn't the revolution
Birskey, I could find it i that feller the way ha good money after bad.
that poor nebich ha
pulling off explosio Birskey, y'understand, thing which has

prika Chicken Mit Would be

them things is now vorbei for years already, hard feelings ain't like promissory notes. You couldn't bar them by a statue of limitations, and if you murder a man's great-grandfather, starve his grandmother and take away his roof from over the man's own head, you ain't going to make him love you exactly if you say to him: 'Nu, let bygones be bygones.' And so for spite only, Birsky, the Irishman is making a revolution."

"I think you are fooling yourself, Zapp," Birsky said. "I think you would find that England has got things fixed that an Irishman must got to live in a pale of Irish settlement and couldn't own no real estate, the same like our people in Russland, and also an Irishman couldn't use the Irish language the same like the Poles couldn't use no Polish in their business with Russians."

"Oser a Stuck!" Zapp declared. "An Irishman could live where he wants to, vote, own real estate and act in Ireland the same like he acts in the United States, and as for the Irish language, Birsky, the average Irishman knows just so much about it as you do about Loschen Hakodesh, Birsky."

"To my sorrow, Zapp, I never had the time to learn it," Birsky said.

"Well, if ever you do have the time," Zapp retorted, "learn instead to play as good as Paderewski on the piano, Birsky. It's a whole lot easier, Birsky, and you'll get more enjoyment out of it, which you could take it from me, Birsky, if the English government insisted that every Irishman must got to learn Irish, y'understand, then with reason there would be an Irish revolution, and the Kaiser wouldn't got to finance it neither."

"Did the Kaiser finance the Irish revolution?" Birsky asked.

"A question!" Zapp exclaimed. "Didn't the revolution fail? Honestly, Birsky, I could find it in my heart to pity that feller the way he keeps throwing good money after bad. Millions of dollars that poor nebuchadnezzar has advanced people for pulling off explosions of canals and bridges, y'understand, and every time the only thing which has blown up was the plans."

declared. "The best a feller could expect that finances a scheme through the Kaiser is an undeterminate sentence Birsky. He is particularly schlemazel-dich in the revolutions he's been backing. With the accommodation paper he made and indorsed for the South African revolution he could of floated a chain of department stores any one of which would make Marshall Field and B. Altman look like new beginners already, and for all the good it done down in South Africa, Birsky, he might just so well of invested the money in Anglo French 5s. Egypt and India was the same way, Birsky, and now that the Irish revolution went mechullah on him for several million dollars money loaned, Birsky, if he figures on financing any more revolutions against England, y'understand, he would do a whole lot better by advising the revolutionist president to take out life insurance and put up the policies with the Reichsbank as security for a loan. The way revolutions has been going recently Birsky, the Reichsbank would realize on the policies within five days after the revolution starts and it would keep the Kaiser's name out of the affair."

"Abner how do you know the German was behind the Irish revolution?" Birsky insisted.

"In the first place everybody says so, Zapp explained, "and in the second place it sounds awful German to me. Every thing was figured out in advance, Birsky in the regular German way. They had coins coined, postage stamps printed, president, a vice-president, a Cabinet, and in fact, it was the last word in what a republic should ought to be, according to the opinion of Professor von Spinngeewebe, of the Department of History of the University of Berlin. No pains was spared in working out the details, Birsky, and nothing was overlooked—absolutely nothing except a couple million English troop about six hours away in England and several warships of the English navy. Yes, Birsky, the whole thing seems like the gen-wine brand of German efficiency—the same as Verdun and the Battle of the Marne. It reminds you of one of them surgical operations by a $2,000 professor, where he diagnoses the case successfully, opens the patient successfully removes most everything he sees successfully, closes the patient successfully and brings him out of the ether successfully and the patient gets along splendidly up to two or three days before his funeral."

"But by your own showing, the Germans did succeed in bring about the Irish revolution, Zapp," Birsky said.

ASSOCIATED AVENUE

ars

With Passing of the Old Shepherd Another Hartford

WITH the passing of the house which formerly stood between Asylum and Farmington avenues, the residence of the late Dr. George R. Shepherd, another of Hartford's landmarks has disappeared. What was a century and more ago a farm house in the country has passed through the hands of a wrecking company, trees that have been the admiration of thousands have fallen before the ax and where house and trees stood, monuments of the past, a twentieth century apartment house is to arise. Contrary to popular belief, what is now Asylum avenue and known formerly as Gufney road was an original thoroughfare from Hartford to West Hartford. Farmington avenue was laid out much later. When the Shepherd house was built is not known, nor the name of the builder, but it was standing when Farmington avenue was constructed, more than 100 years ago.

Home of Prominent Men.

Many well known citizens of Hartford that belong to history have owned this property and the house that has just gone has sheltered some whose names in their day were known throughout the country, and abroad. Sylvanus Andrus was probably the first man to own title to the realty to that part of Hartford that lies between and on both sides of Farmington and Asylum avenues from the brow of Asylum Hill for some distance west. Since his day, through the Colonial, Revolutionary and National periods, many transfers of ownership have occurred and the names of Bull, Caldwell, Scarborough, Comstock, Allen and Wilson with others appear on the Hartford land records as owners of the lot where the Shepherd home stood.

Dr. Comstock Lived There.

Perhaps the most famous man to live in this name was Dr. Comstock, whose "Philosophy," was a textbook used throughout this country and to a certain extent in England for a long time. Many of the older people now living racked their childish brains in learning its precepts so as to be marked "perfect" by their teacher when they "recited" in school. The book was written in this of a delegation of Hartford school children that received Lafayette on his visit to the city during his famous tour of the United States. Whether or not the distinguished Frenchman, patriot and soldier ever entered Dr. Comstock's home is unknown. The late Thomas M. Day, who lived at a later date, in the house next east of the Shepherd house, was a small boy at the time and was greeted personally by the Marquis but he could not recall whether Lafayette visited Dr. Comstock or not.

Historic Building Between Asylum and Farmington Avenues the Home of Many Well-Known Citizens in Days Gone By—Place Was Once a Farmhouse in the Country—Century-Old Trees Also Give Way to Modern Apartment House—Original Building Greatly Altered—Time Has Wrought Many Changes in Place.

Legend of the Duck Pond.

Two large acacia trees that stood near the Asylum avenue boundary of the property, with a walk between them, were levelled last week. They were planted during Dr. Comstock's time by a student of theology named Brinsmade. A tulip tree, that has also just fallen, and that had grown to lofty proportions, was a seedling in Dr. Comstock's day. At that period in the northeast corner of the last was a small duck pond. There is a legend that on one occasion a Yale student who had come from New Haven to call upon Dr. Comstock's charming daughter fell into this patch of water under circumstances that required all the self control the young ladies possessed to express sympathy and commiseration without the twinkle of an eye to the college youth as he emerged from his bath with his white nankin trousers dripping with water and soiled with mud.

At a much later date and within modern times the distinguished composer and organist, Henry Wilson, owned and occupied the place. During his residence an organ was built into one of the rooms, and the whole house echoed the strains that came from the hands of a master.

Within quite recent years this house has been the home of different times of four men, each well known to Hartford and its varied interests and each but lately, if time be measured by the home they dwelt in passed away: John R. Redfield, Gordon Trumbull, Rev. Dr. Llewellyn Pratt and Dr. George A. Shepherd.

Alterations Made.

The home at the time of its destruction had been greatly altered from its original form. External the main part of the building, shown in the accompanying cut, was except in a few details, practical as originally built. The wing that is shown running to the east was formerly on the west of the body of the home and extended for a distance about double to what it did after being moved.

Inside the most interesting feature was a fireplace and chimney close made of old sundried bricks. Some of the nails used in construction were hammered out by hand and made before the days of machinery. In making alterations a few years ago oaken beams were sawed through and the wood showed up being cut as white and sound as no more than ten years old instead of ten times ten.

Getting Back to Earth. (Washington Star.)

"How big did you say that fish was?"
"Did I mention it to you just after I caught it?"
"Yes."
"I don't believe I can tell you how big I said it was. But I can tell you how much it actually weighed."

Shepherd House Hartford Landmark Disappears

SHEPHERD HOUSE, FARMINGTON AVENUE, FRONT.

SHEPHERD HOUSE FROM ASYLUM AVENUE.

1 Birsky Discuss Recent World Events Over Knockerl--The Spanish War, if it Happened Printed "Amusement Notes."

ish revolution was

It was like a fairly put on while there tions in town, Zapp. otices, and the conse- Saturday night."

if you can talk like revolution, Birsky," ou wouldn't of con- a way if, instead of was burning, the d of conducted one orchestras with a w bells and blowing e. To my mind, uris that happened sh revolution is the rsky said, "I am go- ind of theayter for lish, Yiddish and thing I learned it, is anything more medy which ain't it's a tragedy that t help laughing at. ame them people for any more than you or eating paprika rl while them poor d by the thousands, happen me if I did t us say, for exam- out now into the ne gutter and beat policeman—an Irish —comes along and tter with me Zapp, arrying on that way ion gets put down ances is he would magistrate—and an that—and the first relations is paying to a lawyer he f the asylum with zeous corpus, which- ks he could charge ight or wrong?"

about the policeman irsky," Zapp said, bout your relations.

Birsky, it don't a feller's rela- te sends you "Might your relations would act that way, Zapp," Birsky said, severely, "but my relations would figure that blood is redder than water and from a feller in jail or an asylum they couldn't get no accommodation notes or stick him with a post-dated check. And, anyhow, Zapp, so far as my relations is concerned, I give them suckers leave to let me sit in an asylum the rest of my days if I would make such an exhibition of myself in the public streets."

"Well, you couldn't expect no better, Birsky," Zapp said, "and them poor Irishmen, nebich, couldn't expect no better, neither, because you could be so sorry for Ireland that you could cry tears in the streets for her, y'understand, and you could be so anxious to see Ireland independent of England that you could shoot off guns in the streets for her, understand me, and just so long as you only talk about doing it and write about doing it, you would be O. K. For instance, you take these here Irishmen and they says months ago already: 'England's tzuris is Ireland's simcha,' and when Mr. Asquith reports it the English government only smiles and says they should tell their troubles to Birrell and that Asquith should please ask Kitchener has the expressman deliverd them 1,689,352 khaki uniforms yet. A little later these here Irishmen goes to work and incorporates under the style of Sinn, Fein & Co., Max J. Sinn, president, Louis Fein, vice-president and treasurer, and even with them German names for officers the English government says what is the difference; if they want to, let 'em organize under the name of the Dubliner Aufruhrerischer Gesellschaftsverein and by printing only one proclamation in a union shop they would exhaust their funds for composition alone. Then they turned around and got on paper the Irish Republic, and the English government figures that the Henry George Junior Republic was also a republic, and let it go at that, and so you see, Birsky, as long as them poor fellers' revolution was on paper, Birsky, or just a matter of talk, y'understand, the worst that could of happened to 'em was that 'em's lawrence, edon

a specialist to treat you at a hundreds a visit. But them poor ists felt so strong about Ireland that they had to give vent to it.

"Well, their feelings done 'e Birsky said.

"Sure, I know," Zapp ag feelings which are a credit to Birsky, remains a credit to him long as he keeps 'em to him after that they become a debt. A feller must always pay for his feelings, Birsky. If he by making for somebody a blue got to pay a fine to a magistrate if he shows 'em by joining lution, he's got to pay with the government he is rebelling and you could no more blame trate for collecting the fine as blame the English government lecting the feller's life, which if otherwise, Birsky, you are acti poor sport."

"I don't claim nothing about revolution because I don't know about it," Birsky said, "but I and raised in Russland, Zapp, feller is a revolutionist, nebich, my best wishes up to and incl funeral."

"Well, I'll tell you," Zapp "a Russian revolutionist is o and an Irish revolutionist is else again. What a Russian nist wants is that he should live in Russia under government conditions a quarter as good as the Ireland, but as he couldn't miracles exactly, he would be s he could get one-tenth the li Irishman has got."

"Then what is the Irishman tionist for?" Birsky asked.

"He is a revolutionist for sake," Zapp continued. "A and twenty years ago, English killed and worse than killed tives by the thousands; seven ago the English government his poor Grossmutter olav ha starve, and down to twenty English landlords gave him a for not paying rent on propo wasn't worth no rent at

F. A. HOADLEY HURT IN BAD ACCIDENT

Hip Broken When Two Men on Motorcycle Hit His Wagon.

John Wise in Hospital—Mr.
Hoadley's Wagon Smashed to Bits.

MAY 22, 1916.

Francis A. Hoadley of No. 242 Fern street and John Wise of No. 236 North street, New Britain, were both seriously injured about 4:45 o'clock yesterday afternoon when a motorcycle operated by Mr. Wise crashed into Mr. Hoadley's wagon drawn rig on near Quaker lane. Another who was of the motorcycle lently to the horse's kicking right hip was taken to in a serious condition and bruises and injuries.

The horse killed the wreckage and fields near the Troop B Armory. Members of Troop B on horses pursued and captured it. The animal was slightly hurt. Mr. Hoadley was thrown to the ground in the midst of wreckage of his buggy, the two men on the motorcycle piled on top of him and the horse smashed the carriage to splinters around them. The third man, whose name was not learned, and who was the least injured, said that the horse stepped on his tongue. It was badly lacerated, and was not bitten by his teeth.

Neighbors ran out to offer assistance after the crash. Wise was unconscious and appeared in a critical condition. He was carried on the lawn of A. W. Gilbert's house and was attended by Dr. C. O. Purinton of West Hartford, who was soon at the scene of the accident, and was taken in Ahern's ambulance to the Hartford Hospital. Mr. Hoadley had a long rest and retire from the hotel business, in which he has been prominent for fifty years. He came to Hartford from New Haven at the time the old Hotel Garde, of which he was proprietor, was removed to make way for the new hotel.

BY FRENCH RENT LAW

April 20 - 1916
Miss Katchen M. Wagner, daughter of E. C. Wagner of No. 558 Prospect avenue, was married yesterday to Frederick H. Meyer of this city. Mr. Meyer is treasurer of the Hotel Garde Company. Owing to a recent bereavement in the family, the ceremony was private. The marriage was performed by Rev. James W. Bradin.

MAY 22, 1916.

The transfer of the Hotel Garde from the company now owning it, consisting of Ernst H. G. Myer, his wife, and their son, Fred H. Myer, to the latter, was being arranged today with the understanding that he should become the sole proprietor. He has been treasurer of the Hotel Garde company, and up to the time of his marriage to Miss Katchen M. Wagner, daughter of A. C. Wagner, acted as manager of the hotel.

Change in Management of Hotel Garde; F. H. Myer To Succeed His Father Buys Interest of His Parents and Understood to Have Backing of Father-in-Law, A. C. Wagner, to Ex- tent of $70,000.

a long rest and retire from the hotel business, in which he has been prominent for fifty years. He came to Hartford from New Haven at the time the old Hotel Garde, of which he was proprietor, was removed to make way for the new hotel.

May 22 - 1916
In honor of the birthday anniversary of Foster E. Harvey, an elaborate dinner dance was given Monday evening at the Hartford Golf Club. The tables banked at each end with American beauty roses and asparagus ferns and in the center of each table was a large basket of long-stemmed American beauty rosebuds, the number corresponding with Mr. Harvey's age. Wittstein's Orchestra of New Haven furnished the music during the dinner and later played for the dancing. Unique menu cards were used. On the outside of each, the guest's name was engraved and on the inside there was a picture of Mr. Harvey, and the menu. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Foster E. Harvey, Mr. and Mrs. Alton E. Woodford, Mr. and Mrs. Irving C. Treat, Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Garde, Mr. and Mrs. Leon P. Broadhurst, Mr. and Mrs. Walter St. G. Harris, Mr. and Mrs. Emerson F. Harrington, Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Olsen, Mrs. P. Davis Oakey, Mrs. Mary L. Selleck, Robert H. Lewis, John T. Austin, Mr. and Mrs. Walter O. Roberts, Mr. and Mrs. George I. Clapp and Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Martin of Rockville.

R. F. Jones Buys Tract on Farmington Avenue.

MAY 24, 1916.

$80,000 PAID FOR CAPT. PRATT PLACE

made through the agency of William A. Sanborn of this city. The papers have been signed but the formal transfer and filing of the deeds has not yet taken place. Captain Pratt reserves for his future home the house at No. 214 Farmington

Selectman George H. Barton of now occupies Farmington avenue, who will have and he has vacated his home in the fall as the result of the sale of the Captain James C. Pratt tract, has bought the be torn down Spencer L. Flower place at No. 200 development on Farmington street and after a general remodeling and repairing will occupy completed it in the fall. The price is understood to be around $9,000.

be extended through the center of the property, connecting with Farmington avenue. The work has been begun at one to build all this road.

The proper corner of Farmington street. The development of out the building which is built by Ira Dimock the Vanderbilts. The Hamilton Street Joseph road is parallel to Farmington about 180 feet. Homes are now being built on the street.

The new owner is quoted as saying: "I am very much interested in the development of this tract. I am very much interested in the development of this tract. I am very much interested in the development of this tract."

The new owner is quoted as saying: "I am very much interested in the development of this tract. I am very much interested in the development of this tract. I am very much interested in the development of this tract."

MRS. WHITTELSEY IN PORTLAND HOSPITAL

Taken Off Train in Oregon on Belief That She Is Demented.
(Special to The Courant.)

Portland, Ore., May 23.

that she had been robbed of several valuable diamonds while on her way here, Mrs. Alice G. Whittelsey, who says she lives at 226 Farmington avenue, was taken from a train last night in what is said to be a demented condition. She is now in Roseburg Hospital. She is well dressed, and is thought to be a member of a good family. She had plenty of money and was bound from Portland to San Francisco, Cal.

Mrs. Alice G. Whittelsey of No. 226 Farmington avenue, widow of Edgar G. Whittelsey, is not now in Hartford. Her house has been closed.

MRS. WHITTELSEY GOES TO SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA

HARTFORD DAILY TIMES, TUESDAY, MAY 23, 1916.

Two New Bank Directors.

HORACE H. ENSWORTH.

DANIEL S. MORRELL.

Daniel S. Morrell, assistant manager of the Hartford Machine Screw works, and Horace H. Ensworth of the L. L. Ensworth & Son iron and steel firm, were elected directors of the Connecticut River Banking company at a meeting this afternoon to fill vacancies caused by the death of Stanley B. Bosworth, three weeks ago, and the resignation of Arthur D. Coffin of Windsor Locks, effective to-day.

Other directors of the bank are Charles L. Spencer, Louis R. Cheney, A. N. Williams, Arthur L. Shipman, Martin Welles, L. Edmund Zacher and Louis F. Butler. Mr. Spencer is president and Mr. Welles vice-president of the bank. The cashier is H. W. Erving.

Mr. Morrell was born in Brooklyn, N. Y., fifty years ago and came to Hartford when 9 years of age. He was graduated from the Hartford high school with the class of 1885 and has had his business career with the Hartford Machine Screw company. He is married, has a daughter and a son and lives at No. 134 Oxford street.

Mr. Ensworth is the eldest son of the late L. L. Ensworth and has been connected with the business ever since his graduation from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology at Boston.

MERCER--BOOTH NUPTIALS.

May 24/1916
 Many Guests at Charming Wedding of New Haven Society Girl to

Mr. Mercer is a special agent of the Travelers Insurance company.

Miss Marian Booth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford H. Booth of Orchard street, New Haven, and Charles W. Mercer of this city were married at 7 o'clock Wednesday evening at Plymouth church in that city, the Rev. Orville A. Petty, pastor of the church, officiating, in the presence of many guests.

The bride was given in marriage by her father, and was attended by her sister, Mrs. Ralph D. Hunting of Cedar Rapids, Ia., as matron of honor, and by Miss Genevieve Bettcher of New Haven and Short Beach as maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Mrs. W. Jerome Gilbert, Miss Dorothy Schroeder, Miss Ruth Woodruff of New Haven and Mrs. Frederick H. Johnson of this city.

Harold B. Holden of this city was best man and the ushers were Howard D. Wright of Pittsburgh, James Anderson, jr., of Evanston, Ill., W. Jerome Gilbert of New Haven, and Herbert A. Mercer, Albert B. Fuller and Frederick H. Johnson of this city.

The church was decorated with masses of white lilac against a background of green and the music was provided by Richard T. Percy, organist of the Marble Collegiate church of New York and cousin of Mrs. Booth, the bride's mother, and Mrs. Percy, who sang. Besides the chorus from "Lohengrin" and the Mendelssohn wedding march, Mr. Percy gave a program including "March Heroique" by Saint Saens; "Pastorale" by Widor; "Nocturne" by Iljansky and "Cantabile" by Massenet. Mrs. Percy sang "A Perfect Day" and "Because."

The bride wore a gown of ivory satin imperial with trimmings of white chantilly lace and a court train. Her tulle veil was caught with orange blossoms and she carried a shower bouquet of white lilacs and lilies of the valley, wearing as her only ornament a string of pearls which was her gift from the bridegroom. The matron of honor wore a gown of silver lace over white crepe de chine and carried pink Killarney roses. The maid of honor's gown was of pink eGorgette crepe trimmed with silver lace and she carried a shower bouquet of pink roses. The bridesmaids wore rose pink taffeta and flowered net and carried garden hats filled with pink roses.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, following the ceremony, the bride's mother wearing a gown of rose Georgette crepe and satin and Mrs. Charles B. Mercer of Julius street, mother of the

COMPLETES 25

YEARS AS BUYER

May 24
 Harry L. Eliot of Sage, Allen & Co. Store Celebrates With Sig Sales.

Harry L. Eliot has just completed his twenty-fifth year as buyer of notions at the Sage, Allen & Co. store and he celebrated the event by having a sale at his department which opened yesterday with the largest sales record in the de-

Harry L. Eliot.

He had ar- nly a great igh the co- the largest s, he was customers hooks and

ay that he l when he re twenty- as the erously to n he first ns depart- l, carrying is, needles, yesterday needed to nniversary, store gave he conclu- yesterday. many com- stomers of ufacturers business

r. ford from

MAY 24, 1916.

An organization to be known as "The Investment Bureau," has been established jointly by the Phoenix Mutual Life Insurance Company and the Phoenix (Fire) Insurance Company, the purpose of which is to gather information concerning investments, both those now held and those which are bought from time to time.

Through the various connections of these companies, including the Connecticut Fire Insurance Company and the Equitable Fire and Marine Insurance Company, reaching into all parts of the country, many valuable items of information can be gathered which will enable these companies to analyze present holdings and plan for future investments, the trend of which seems to be changing materially.

The bureau will be in charge of Arthur M. Collens as manager. He has, for some years, been the head of the statistical department of Ladd & Wood, a general investment house of New York.

Mr. Collens is a graduate of Yale in 1903. He comes of an old Hartford family and is a cousin of Atwood Collins. His father was Rev. Charles Terry Collins and his grandfather was Charles Collins, long a member of the firm of Collins Brothers. Mr. Collens and his family will live on Oxford street. He will come to Hartford tomorrow and at once enter upon his duties.

You can buy tone and its wo Rosenthal, Mosz

May 24—

In the presence of about 100 guests, Miss Flora Eva Silience, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Silience, of Jordan lane, and Howard Clifton Chase, son of Mr. and Mrs. Hiram H. Chase of Evergreen avenue, were married at 1:30 Wednesday afternoon at Christ church,

HOBART WILLIAMS GAVE FORTUNE FOR

FRIDAY, NOVEMBER 4, 1921.

Reverses Cause Her to Try Suicide

EVELYN NESBIT ATTEMPTS SUICIDE

Takes Overdose of Morphine When About to be Evicted.

New York, Oct. 28.—Evelyn Nesbit was resting comfortably tonight, after taking an overdose of morphine when a city marshal began moving furniture from her apartment.

Miss Nesbit, once the wife of Harry K. Thaw, later the wife of a dancer, Jack Clifford, and now Evelyn Nesbit again, is owner of a tea-room in the theater district. Her financial distress came to light a month ago when a city marshal appeared at her tea-room with an eviction warrant. Miss Nesbit arranged to pay overdue rent on the $300 a month tea-room and $150 a month apartment upstairs. The marshal went away. He came again today and Miss Nesbit was unable to raise the necessary funds.

The landlord on hearing about the episode announced he would wait until noon next Monday before pressing for the enforcement of the eviction warrant.

Evelyn Nesbit, former wife of Harry K. Thaw, was found today in a state of suicide by taking a large dose of morphine. She was found by a neighbor who called the police. She was taken to a hospital where she is now recovering. Her furniture was placed on a sidewalk.

EX-WIFE OF THAW MARRIES CLIFFORD.

Husband in Private Life
Known as Son of Italian
General.

Baltimore, Md., May 25.—Evelyn Nesbit Thaw was married at Ellicott City, in Howard county, ten miles from Baltimore, at 3:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon to Virgil James late Brigadier-General of the Italian army and nephew of General Dico Milo, Italian.

She is better known as Evelyn Nesbit, a professional name, and has been three seasons the acting partner of Harry K. Thaw, generally better known when her husband was alive.

Clifford, as he is known, arrived in Baltimore on the 2:15 train. His automobile was waiting for him. He was met by his wife and they drove to the Howard county courthouse where the ceremony was performed. The Rev. J. J. Scapellato, pastor of the Episcopal church, officiated.

Her name as given in the license was "thirty-one" years of age.

She was married in Maryland, where she was unable to obtain a divorce from Thaw's divorce last month. She had a certified copy of the divorce, May 4. They were married by Judge Cohen of Baltimore.

Allen of Pittsburgh, Thaw May 15 judge had refused to grant her a divorce, as he had not, as is his fee, and been paid, the a certification. The judge's inability of the attorneys to obtain a divorce or his attorney's necessity for a long time may be paid. He said he would wait and innum. He was indicated with of the judge and found a not needed in sent for Clifford to buy a platinum ring post haste. He was hidden for the a jockey. He In the Spanish founded.

Once I first saw her going to take the load from her shoulders—the load she's carried for ten years.

WAR OF
FOR

Miss Ba Been Sail for

COMPLE
IN L

Is Niece

Eldridge

Cousins

June

Miss Jean

Niece of Mrs.

No. 7 Wood

who has lived for several m

land as soon

take passage

the English

paper and

May 24-1916
Miss Mary Laurie Bacchus of Yorkshire, England, niece of Mrs. Frank H. Eldridge of this city, and Amory Standard Skerry, formerly of Montclair, N. J., will be married this afternoon at 3:30 o'clock at Trinity Church by Rev. Dr. Ernest DeF. Miel, rector of the church. They became engaged three years ago while Miss Bacchus was on a visit to this country. She has until recently been a volunteer worker in a military

WAR OFFICE JOB FOR ENGLISH GIRL.

Miss Bacchus, Who Has Been Visiting Here, to Sail for Home Soon.

COMPLETES COURSE IN LOCAL COLLEGE

Is Niece of Mrs. Frank H. Eldridge—Has Eight Cousins at the Front.

June 1917
Miss Jean Ramsden Bacchus, niece of Mrs. Frank H. Eldridge, of (Remington) No. 7 Woodland street, Hartford, and who has lived at the Eldridge homestead in the for several months, will sail for England as soon as she is allowed to take passage, and will then serve in the English war office as stenographer and French interpreter. She

JEAN RAMSDEN BACCHUS.

Does not know the exact date of the birth of a family of ten, being the third child.

England, and, with her arrived in Mr. Skerry her's mills town they ill be very nts being Miss Elinor and Jerome bridegroom, Miss Jean th Commo- Eldridge at street dur-

s of Bridge- 4th birthday

s 90th Anni-

best resident s 90th birth-

ome on North

He was born

just south of

nk, May 25,

of (Remington)

andcher. He re-

the attending the

by Institution

ducted by

he West Suf-

ng school, he

uilt two houses

occupied by

y, and in com-

other, George for several

Eve, 1861, he

pencer of Say-

a year ago at

son, Horace S.

he is employed

Cordage Com-

field part of the suffield, Horace

brook, but was because of ill

Norfolk, this for six years.

tsfield, Mass.,

teen years, lat-

where he has

h 90 years old,

tains the use of usually good. He gfield alone for

nbars a long list

a memorandum.

a memorandum.

it is able to get

He is a member

gational Church

living member

children, he be-

The engagement is announced of Miss Elsa Morgan St. John, daughter of Mrs. and the late Dr. Samuel B. St. John, to Leonard Welles Frisbie, son of Mrs. Charles G. Frisbie, of this city.

In honor of Miss Elsa Morgan St. John, daughter of Mrs. Samuel B. St. John of Washington street, whose marriage to Leonard C. Frisbie will take place next Thursday afternoon, a luncheon was given

FRISBIE-ST. JOHN.

Many Friends at Charming May Nuptials—Episcopal Service Used.

May 25/1916
The marriage of Miss Elsa Morgan St. John, daughter of Mrs. St. John, of No. 166 Washington street, and the late Dr. Samuel B. St. John, and Leonard Welles Frisbie, son of Mrs. Charles G. Frisbie, of Prospect avenue, will take place at 4:30 this afternoon, at the home of the bride. The Episcopal service is to be used for the ceremony, which will be performed by the Rev. Dr. Rockwell Harmon Potter, pastor of Center church, and the Rev. Dr. John Brownlee Voorhees, pastor of the Asylum Hill Congregational church.

Quantities of apple blossoms against a background of smilax, asparagus ferns and other greenery, are to be used as decorations, and about 100 guests are to be present. The bride will enter on the arm of her cousin, Samuel St. John Morgan, of Boston, and will be given in marriage by her mother. Her sister, Miss Helen Curtis St. John, is to be maid of honor, and Miss Mary Leverett Brainerd, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman B. Brainerd, is to be flower girl. Charles G. Frisbie, brother of the bridegroom, will act as best man.

Old flounces and point lace worn the trim- which is n. Her fastened she will lilies of ls. The Watteau with an due tulle, ith flow- es of or- t hat is trimmed rget-me- quet of h a blue ent hat are to be who will the wed- a string lker, and l chorus ; "Elsa's pera; "O delssohn

ollow the vill wear lver lace ume of

HORACE ARCHER.

black lace over white satin.

FRISBIE—In this city, March 9, 1917, a daughter, Elsa Morgan, to Mr. and Mrs. Leonard W. Frisbie, of 93 Niles st.

FRISBIE—In this city April 30, 1924, a daughter Eleanor St. John Frisbie, to Mr. and Mrs. Leonard W. Frisbie, 888 Asylum ave.

FRIDAY MORNING, MAY 26, 1916.

AN OLD FRIEND.

Jacob A. Turner, foreman emeritus of "The Courant" composing-room, will be 80 years old today. Everybody who knows him has to be told to believe, but the family Bible testifies. Mr. Turner has been connected with "The Courant" since long before the civil war and his duty in the army marks the only break in his service here of practically sixty years. Nobody else in Hartford has a similar record with any paper, nor, if we are not mistaken, with any other establishment. Mr. Turner worked here in the days of the hand press. He is the only head of a mechanical department that survived the successive changes that modern progress has brought into the business; to the others it was too much to master the novelties. No newspaper and no other business ever had a more loyal assistant than he has been all these years to "The Courant."

A CARD FROM MR. TURNER.

response to Many 80-Year Congratulations.

To the Editor of The Courant:—

Kindly afford me space to thank my many friends, not forgetting my associates in the editorial, city, printing and business departments of "The Courant," for their very generous reminder that I have reached and passed the 80-year milestone, and still retain their esteem and affection. By well-timed notes, post-cards, personal interviews, telegrams, etc., etc., modern communications have brought me what can only be called a small mat-limit to our "en," and he aimed at it. But it is life has been since the meeting of the entire college body. He fills the vacancy left by the failure of Edward G. McKay of Norwich, elected to the position last June, to return to college this fall. The president of the college senate is also president of the college body, and election to this office is the highest honor that can be shown to an undergraduate.

President Woolley is captain of in which the football team, having played world—mettackle for three seasons. He is a friends for senior class man, and was a substitute on the baseball team last happy day, spring. He is a member of the Medusa and of the Sophomore Dining club, the two honorary societies of the college. He has served on the 1916 Ivy board, the 1916 junior promenade committee, and is a member of Phi Gamma Delta.

With me Sincerely, J. A. Turner.

May 27, 1916.

HUNDREDS OF FLOWERS FOR "JAKE" TURNER

Many Congratulate Man Who Pleads Guilty to 80 Years.

It was fortunate that Jacob A. Turner, whose birthday anniversary was observed yesterday, was not more than 80 years old, as a few more years might have meant a flower famine in the city, his friends insisting that the way to remind him that he had reached the four-score mark was to give him a blossom for each year of his age. So eighty roses plus eighty carnations, plus—well never mind the grand total, but there were flowers in large quantities at home and office.

His associates on "The Courant" and groups of personal friends and individuals did their part to make "Jake" feel that, even if a man lives to such a green old age that he has outlived most of his early friends, he can, if he keeps young, collect a lot of friends of other generations to re-enforce the survivors.

Mr. Turner was in the best of health and spirits and frankly announced that he proposed to live to be 100. The congratulations from his friends were received all through the day. The following from Thomas F. Dignam, who was one of his "boys," is a graceful specimen of the kind thoughts and words that came to him:—

Dear young friend:—

"The Courant" to Frederick P. Woolley of This City in Trinity
Honorary Society.

May 25
The annual tap day was held at Trinity College yesterday, when five members of the junior class were tapped for Medusa, the senior honorary society. Shortly after 7 o'clock in the evening the Medusa men of the senior class, Frank Lambert, Landon Cole, John Norton Ives, Robert Morris and Charles Byron Spofford, wearing their academic gowns, filed out of the first section of Jarvis Hall and assembled before the junior class, which was lined up on the college fence. One by one they marched to the line of juniors, each one tapping a man. When five juniors had been tapped, the seniors led them back to Jarvis Hall, and the rest of the juniors and the spectators dispersed. Membership in the Medusa is one of the greatest honors that a Trinity student can receive.

The juniors tapped were Allen Northey Jones of Perth Amboy, N. J., William Wade Macrum of Oakmont, Pa., Edward Gabriel McKay of Norwich, and Albert Neuman Rock of New York. Frederick Porter Woolley of Hartford. Woolley has played on the football team for three years and is captain-elect for next year. He has also played class basketball. He was a member of the freshman-junior banquet committee, the 1916 "Ivy" board, the sophomore hop committee, the junior prom committee, and the junior smoker committee. He is a member of the Sophomore Dining Club and the Tau Alpha Chapter of the Phi Gamma Delta Fraternity.

WANTS CONSERVATOR FOR FREDERICK BRONK

teaching profession today. Despite low salaries which have forced 110,000

Miss Gertrude Merrick Marries
Son of Rev Dr John S. Lyon
The A. Judson Merrick home on street in Holyoke was in gala

135

May 27
1916

Wherever going you to go well We'll be glad be of service

TIME

Our Idea of

To supply customers in an store, with a forts that ap taste, mercha
absolute con
know that o
itative, and o
cism.

To furnish ed by people and courteous

To guar
every article represented.

This is th could, or ev

eventually e Courant
r's trade,
n, which as named dle name
Courant

ree firms,
another General
Warner,
s M. Day

Jack"
Adams,
ederic C.
ark and has also ons, with in the torial de Intertype
ses, ster-hundred ie making manage-the senior's interest for Bronk. Should remainder interest develop, th cree in the divorce suit will drawn that Mrs. Bronk can court and ask for alimony unde claim as outlined in the divorc plication.

a member of the 1906 class of Holyoke high school and was graduated from Dartmouth college in 1910 and from the Columbia law school in 1915. He is now connected with the law firm of Green & Bennett.

JACOB A. TURNER CELEBRATES BIRTHDAY PROPPED UP IN BED

Friends Pay Tribute On 84th Anniversary of "Courant" Veteran.

1920

It is rarely that a man celebrates his eighty-fourth birthday in bed with a broken leg, but this was the unique experience of Jacob A. Turner, foreman emeritus of "The Courant" composing room, who welcomed a number of friends yesterday at his home, No. 873 Windsor avenue. A cavalcade of automobiles drew up in front of the house late in the afternoon and Mr. Turner received his friends while propped up in bed, with his left leg anchored with twenty pounds of plaster.

Three weeks ago yesterday Mr. Turner was in an automobile accident and his left leg was broken just below the knee. But now he is so rapidly recovering that he expects to be out on crutches in three weeks. Even now, he is able to change from the bed to an easy chair at times.

A number of his friends who called upon him yesterday and expected to find an invalid were surprised to see their old friend as hearty and jolly as ever and experiencing no pain. Of course, the plaster upon his injured leg was heavier than any boot he would put upon a trotting horse, but even this did not cause him to lose his accustomed cheerfulness. Mr. Turner has received a number of callers since the accident and he was glad to talk over old times with President William B. Clark of the Aetna Insurance Company, who is only 80 years old. They talked of their boyhood and this visit did Mr. Turner a great deal of good. Mr. Clark not only brought back the spirit of their youthful days, but also a

JACOB A. TURNER.

Jacob A. Turner, Youthful Octogenarian and Tributes of His Friends

twenty, tries of the college. He has served do and as on the 1916 Ivy Board, the 1916 the next to junior promenade committee, and is
With me a member of Phi Gamma Delta.
Sincerely, J. A. Turner.
May 27, 1916.

The 1916 Ivy Board, the junior prom committee, and the junior smoker committee. He is a member of the Sophomore Dining Club and the Tau Alpha Chapter of the Phi Gamma Delta Fraternity.

WANTS CONSERVATOR FOR FREDERICK BRONK

Feb. 11. — 1916
His Mother Also Wants Him

MRS. BRONK FREED FROM HER HUSBAND

May 26, 1916
Divorced by Judge Case Be-

Miss Gertrude Merrick Marries
Son of Rev Dr John S. Lyon
The A. Judson Merrick home on Elm street in Holyoke was in gala dress last evening for the wedding of the only daughter, Miss Gertrude Merrick, and Clifford Stanley Lyon. The lawn about the house was inclosed in front, taking in the side garden, lovely with the freshness of the delayed spring. The inclosure

The rooms ful with a parkleberry pink and profusion.
it was pink

THE HARTFORD DAILY TIME

142 Years with the Hartford Courant

Frederick W. Turner

Jacob A. Turner

Bertrand H. Turner

It is seldom that the male members of a family follow each other in the same profession, and that is why the story herewith is unique. It was more than sixty years ago—specifically sixty-two—that the senior of this bit of history, Jacob A. Turner, sauntered to the office of the Hartford Daily Courant, then located in a shabby little office in the building at the corner of Main and Pratt streets, now occupied by the Steiger-Vedder company and other tenants. The whole business outfit included the business office, taking up more room than the average modern office. Half a dozen compositors, a printer, an editor-in-chief, a sort of general or news paragraph editor, together with a bookkeeper, comprised the entire force mentioned on the payroll. The edition was run off on an old hand press, a man furnishing the type.

This was the condition when Turner senior entered the newspaper field in earnest, his position then being a compositor at so much per thousand as the work was counted at that time. A dozen or more years later a turn of the wheel elevated him to the foremanship of the composing room.

In the course of time Turner senior was married—this before he was elevated to the managerial position. Three years later a son was born and named Frederick Weston. In 1869, at the age of eight years, he entered the employ of the Hartford Courant, his first duties being the folding of papers by hand, this being the method employed by most newspapers at that time. Later on, a paper route was added to the folding job and both carried along until the age of seventeen when he entered the composing room to serve an apprenticeship. On the retirement of the father a few years ago, F. W. was put in charge of the mechanical department, and last December rounded out fifty years of continuous service on the Hartford Courant, having served longer than any active member of the Courant force at the present time.

In time another son was born to the parents—indeed twin boys. One of these passed on at the age of five years, the other was spared and eventually turned his footsteps toward the Courant where he learned the printer's trade, later becoming night foreman, which position he still holds. He was named Bertrand Hubbard—the middle name being after a member of the Courant firm, long since dead.

The elder Turner survived three firms, being associated at one time or another with such well known men as General "Joe" Hawley, Charles Dudley Warner, "Dan" Fiske of Cornell, Thomas M. Day—at one time sole owner—Major "Jack" Kinney, Charles Heminway Adams, Patrick Henry Woodward, Frederic C. Penfield, Charles Hopkins Clark and many other lesser lights. He has also jogged along, as we sons, with the wonderful improvements in the practical as well as the editorial departments—the Linotype and Intertype machines, the lightning presses, stereotyping, typewriters and a hundred lesser things that go toward the making of a modern newspaper.

About five years ago the management voted to continue the senior's a member of the 1906 class of Holyoke high school and was graduated from Dartmouth college in 1910 and from the Columbia law school in 1915. He is now connected with the law firm of Green & Bennett.

DISPENSARY HAS DEDICATION DAY

May 28, 1916

Seldom has one lifetime spanned Dispensary's History.

The Hartford Dispensary was incorporated in July, 1871, and has continued since with various affiliations. At one time it was connected with the Hartford Hospital. After occupying small quarters on Pearl street

Remodeled Home of Hartford Dispensary

NEW BRITAIN NEWS OF THE DAY

60th Wedding Anniversary

May 28, 1916

MR. AND MRS. M. S. BURDICK AND FAMILY.

Sitting, Left to Right—Miss Emma Burdick, Mr. and Mrs. M. S. Burdick.
Standing—Charles Burdick, Mrs. Emmons, James M. Burdick, Mrs. Bassford, Mrs. Perrin.

Mr. and Mrs. Manley Squires Burdick of No. 32 Dwight street are receiving congratulations and greetings of their many friends on the occasion of their sixtieth wedding anniversary. The anniversary of their marriage was Sunday, but owing to the illness of Mr. Burdick the day's immediate observance was confined to members of the family.

Mr. Burdick, who was born in East Hampton, September 13, 1833, and Charlotte J. Baisden, who was born in Cromwell, November 6, 1834, were united in marriage May 28, 1856. The family came to New Britain in 1872, Mr. Burdick becoming foreman of the foundry at the Union Manufacturing company, which position he held until 1905, when he retired.

The aged couple have six children, James M. Burdick, general superintendent of the Stanley Rule and Level company; Charles A. Burdick, Miss Emma J. Burdick, Mrs. Carrie A. Bassford of Watertown, Mrs. Isa-bella A. Emmons of New Britain and Mrs. Lucy A. Perrin of the Taft school at Watertown.

There are nine grandchildren, Earle, Stewart and Harry Burdick, sons of James M. Burdick; Walter and Harold Bassford, sons of Mrs. Bassford; George and Louis Burdick and Mrs. Alvah Ventres and Doris Burdick, children of Charles Burdick.

There are also three great-grandchildren, the children of Earl Burdick, Walter Bassford and Mrs. Ventres.

The dispensary is a purely private charity, receiving no funds from the city or state and being entirely dependent for its support on voluntary contributions. Its policy is not to treat large numbers of cases in a superficial way, but rather to do intensive work along certain lines, with a thorough system of follow-up. Its aim is to cure disease and not merely to relieve the suffering caused by it, to detect disease in its incipient stages and to prevent disease by teaching mothers how to care for their children.

treated sickness as an abstract thing, but perceived clearly that sickness is always associated with individuals and that individuals are human and are to be dealt with as such. The prejudice and suspicion which used to exist against public institutions established for the cure of disease is happily passing away. Certainly one reason for it is that there has been manifested through

To entertain Matrons. will be organized.
separate division

over and make sure it leads right, and if it does I'll have something important to say to you."

The wagon-pole in question was attached to a canvas-wagon near by, and Detective Gubb seated himself on it and thought. The Side-show ladies and gentlemen, having finished their meal, entered the Side-show tent—with the exception of Syrilla, who remained to finish her meal. She ate a great deal at meals, before meals, and after meals. Mr. Gubb, from his seat on the wagon pole, looked at Syrilla thoughtfully. He had not the least doubt that Syrilla was the lost daughter of Mr. Jones (or Medderbrook as he now called himself). The German tattoo artist had sworn to complete the eagle by putting its claws on Mr. Jones' daughter, if need be, and here were the claws on Syrilla's arm. But, just as it is necessary at times to have a handwriting expert identify a bit of writing, Mr. Gubb felt that if he could prove that the claws tattooed on Syrilla's arm were the work of Mr. Schreckenheim, his case would be stronger. He longed for Mr. Schreckenheim's presence, but, lacking that, he had a happy idea. Mr. Enderbury, the tattooed man of the Side-show, would perhaps be able to identify the eagle's claws. Leaving Syrilla still eating, Mr. Gubb entered the Side-show tent.

Mr. Enderbury, seated on a blue property case, was engaged in biting the row of finger-nails on his right hand, and a frown creased his brow. He was enraptured by a long purple bathrobe which tied closely about his neck. As he caught sight of Mr. Gubb, he started slightly and doubled his hand into a fist, but he immediately calmed himself and assumed a nonchalant air. As a matter of fact, Mr. Enderbury led a dog's life. For years he had loved Syrilla devotedly, but he was so bashful he had never dared to confess his love, and year after year he saw her smile upon one man after another. Now it was Mr. Lonergan again it was Mr. Winterberry—or it was Mr. Gubb, or Smith, or Jones, or Doe; but for Mr. Enderbury she seemed to have nothing but contempt. Mr. Enderbury had seen her first when she was posing in the infant incubator, and had loved her even then, for he was twenty and she was but five. The coming of a new rival always affected him as the coming of Mr. Gubb had, but for some reason he hated Mr. Gubb worse than any of the others.

"Excuse me for begging your pardon," said Mr. Gubb, pausing at the side of Mr. Enderbury, "but in the detective business questions have to be asked. Have you ever chanced to happen to notice some tattoo

"Maybe they don't," said Syrilla. "But when I was a small child I had an accident and had to be took to a hospital, and it wasn't until after that that anybody saw the eagle's claws on me. I considered that maybe it was like the laundry puts a mark on a handkerchief it has laundered."

"I don't know much about the manners of the ways of hospitals," admitted Mr. Gubb, "and that may be so, but I have another idea. Did you ever hear of Mr. Herr Schreckenheim?"

"Only that Mr. Enderberry is always cross on the days of the month that he gets Mr. Schreckenheim's statements of money due. Mr. Schreckenheim is the man that tattooed Mr. Enderbury so beautiful, but poor Mr. Enderbury has never been able to pay him in full."

Philo Gubb arose.

"I am going to telegraph Mr. Medderbrook to come on to West Higgins immediately by the 3 p. m. afternoon train," he said, "and you will meet him as your paternal father and arrange to make your home with him as soon as you desire to wish it."

At 5 o'clock that afternoon Mr. Medderbrook, escorted by Mr. Gubb, entered the Side-show tent. The lady and gentlemen freaks were resting before evening grub, and all were gathered around Syrilla's platform, for the news that she was to leave the show to enter a home of wealth and refinement had spread quickly. Syrilla herself was in tears. She was loath to part from her kind companions.

"I tell you, Mr. Gubb," Mr. Medderbrook said, as they entered the Side-show, "if you have indeed found my daughter you have made me a happy man. You cannot know how lonesome my life has been. Now, which is she?"

"She is the female lady in the pink satin dress on that platform," said Mr. Gubb. Mr. Medderbrook looked toward Syrilla and gasped.

"Why, that—that's the fat woman! That's the fat woman of the Side-show!" he exclaimed. "I thought—I—why, my daughter wouldn't be a fat woman in a side-show!"

"But she is," said Mr. Gubb.

"Great Scott!" exclaimed Mr. Med-

For years Mr. Medderbrook had retained a memory of his daughter as he had seen her last, a babe in long clothes. As he rode toward West Higgins, however, he had thought about his daughter and he had revised his conception of her. She was older now, of course, and he had finally settled the matter by deciding that she would be a dainty slip of a girl—probably a tight-rope one hand of the German was a large silver golf cup with a deep dent on one side. As Mr. Gubb arose to his feet, still holding the German tattoo artist's foot in his hand, he said:

"Mr. Medderbrook, the detective business is not always completely satisfactory in all kinds of respects and it looks as if it appeared that the daughter I found for you is somebody else's, but if you will look at the other end of the assaulter and batterer I have in hand, you will see that I have recovered the silver golf cup trophy once again for the second time."

Alaskan Forests. (Indianapolis News.)

To counteract the impression given by those who want the national forests turned over to private exploitation that the Alaskan forests have little timber of commercial value, Henry M. Graves, chief United States forester, tells of his observations last summer. There are two national forests in Alaska, both on the southern coast. Speaking of the Prince William Sound region, a part of the Chugach forest, Mr. Graves says that its external appearance is deceptive. From the shore line all that can be seen are scrubby hemlocks and dead snags, but on advancing into the interior spruce trees from two to three feet in diameter are numerous. In many sections there are stands that will average from 10,000 to 20,000 feet an acre and stands yielding as high as 50,000 feet are occasionally found. In the Tongass region, which lies near the northwestern states, the timber is said to be even heavier. One corner of the Chugach forest contains coal claims and from time to time bills have been introduced in Congress affecting the forest.

Although the national forests are confined to the southern coast, Mr. Graves says there is much valuable timber in the interior which is in need of government protection. The principal species are white spruce, white birch and cottonwood. The trees are smaller than on the coast and the yield lighter. These forests, while not important in the general lumber market, are of great importance locally. Millions of acres have been burned by forest fires and the writer believes that the government should take steps to prevent further damage. The current idea that Alaska is largely a treeless, inhospitable country, says Mr. Graves, is altogether without foundation. Originally over 40 per cent. of the country was covered with trees, very nearly as great a percentage as originally existed in the United States. The southeast coast of Alaska has a very equable climate and its timber is much like that of the Pacific states. The principal trees in this section are the Sitka spruce, Western hemlock, Western red cedar and Alaska yellow cypress. The spruce is the most valuable and often grows six feet through and 200 feet high. The national forests in Alaska like other national forests, are under the supervision of the forest service. More than 40,000,000 feet of timber is sold from the Alaskan national forest every year.

136 DISPENSARY HAS King's Daughters to Celebrate

Twenty-Fifth Anniversary of Good Samaritan Chapter Next Tuesday

11

May 23

The Good Samaritan Chapter of the King's Daughters will celebrate its twenty-fifth anniversary Tuesday May 23 by holding a special meeting in the First Methodist-Episcopal Church, at which dinner will be served at 6:30 o'clock, followed by talks given by old members, former presidents and state officers of the King's Daughters, and recitations given by daughters of members, who will also furnish music. The occasion marks the silver anniversary of the founding of an organization that has done much to add to the happiness of the blind people of the city. The activities of the chapter may be summed up by the line on its yearly program that reads, "Visits and Financial Aid to the Blind." Every year in the spring entertainments are given at the Connecticut Institute for the Blind, in which music, recitations and plays by the blind people are the features. This year a minstrel show and concert was given that showed the proficiency of the sightless entertainers. A picnic is given annually for the members of the chapter and their blind friends at Laurel Park, to which they are taken in a special car. A luncheon is served and entertainments provided. A sale is held every year, and sometimes an entertainment, to raise funds for the work among the blind. Donation day is held in November for the receipt of donations for the home on New Britain avenue, which is maintained by all the King's Daughters. Meetings are held at the Y. M. C. A. every last Saturday in the month from September to June. The chapter has several blind beneficiaries to whom it pays monthly stipends that help support them and buy things to keep them contented. There are about twenty on the regular visiting list and it is safe to say that since the founding of the order some thousands of individual visits have been made, each bringing a message of hope and courage to the blind person in question.

All the blind that care to go, though most of them do not care to, are sent each year to the Playridge House at Woodmont and have their board paid for two weeks in the summer time. A new home is being built for the blind by the state near Woodwin Park. It is to cost $85,000 and only $60,000 has been appropriated so far. It is rumored that he chapter may do something to help out toward the rest of the amount, but nothing definite has been done on this score. Though work with the blind constitutes the chief activity of the chapter, it also concerns itself with other worthy enterprises as far as it is possible. The Travelers' Aid has received help from the Good Samaritans on several occasions as have others.

The program for the anniversary has not been wholly arranged but it will consist of many talks and papers

MISS M. ELLA RILEY.
Founder and First President.

that will recall milestones along the way to the quarter century mark. The dinner will be served by the women of the First Methodist Church, who will use the money for their own charity work.

Mrs. Clarence F. R. Jenne the president of the chapter, will give the greeting, saying how glad she is and the chapter members are to be celebrating their twenty-fifth birthdays and how glad they are that out-of-town members have been able to be present. Mrs. Ira E. Forbes, county president of the association is one of these out-of-town members and she will bring a welcome from the whole county and congratulations on having survived so long in the good work that is being done.

Seldom has one lifetime spanned

Thirty circles will thus send their greetings to the birthday celebration of one.

Mrs. E. A. Mitchener will be in charge of the musical selections. A reading will be given by Mrs. Marion Colby Clapp. Mrs. William H. Dawley of Norwich, state president of the organization, has been invited and is expected to be present, bringing greetings from the whole state. A number of past presidents will speak. It is hoped that the founder and first president, Miss M. E. Riley, will be able to come. Others that are expected are Mrs. Edward J. Pearson, Mrs. Edward H. Smiley and Mrs. Leonard S. Harris, all of these being past presidents. Some of the charter members are also expected to come and tell what they know. Two or three early members are to be called on specifically by Mrs. Jenne. They are Mrs. C. L. McMur-ray, Mrs. F. D. Moulton and R. D. Allen.

The present officers are: Mrs. Clarence F. R. Jenne, president; Mrs.

MRS. CLARENCE F. R. JENNE.

Frank J. Garette, vice-president; Mrs. Harriet S. Moseley, recording secretary; Mrs. Merrit A. Alfred, assistant secretary; Miss M. Alice Stuart, corresponding secretary; Mrs. O. V. Marsh, treasurer; Mrs. Elton Ackley, assistant treasurer; William A. Willard, auditor; Mrs. Edward H. Smiley, chairman of the devotional exercises; Mrs. William E. Farnsworth, chairman of the local out committee; Mrs. Henry Turner, chairman of the finance committee; Mrs. I. M. Prouty and Mrs. A. A. Gallup, chairmen of the visiting committee; Mrs. Ralph E. Colby, chairman of the music committee and the officers and chairmen of committees constitute the executive

History of the Chapter.

The chapter came into existence May 22, 1891, at the home of Miss Ella Riley, who may be properly called its organizer, the founder of its spirit, and the creator of its benevolent policy. Rev. Dr. Joseph E. Twitchell was present at its founding and gave an interesting and inspiring talk. The motto of the circle as established at this time and maintained for twenty-five years is "Watch For Opportunities." Its old was defined as follows: "To endeavor by individual effort to help those in trouble and the sick, and to strive by precept and example to repress idle talk and evil speaking." Miss Riley was elected chairman and Miss Edith Spencer general secretary and treasurer. At the first annual meeting the offices were increased by a corresponding secretary and a treasurer. At the second far distant from each other as Maine and the state of Washington. Chicago and Boston were still boundaries when the tenth anniversary was held. The first first organized effort of the chapter was the sending of comfort bags to Spain for distribution among the sailors that came into the port of San Sebastian.

The chapter had been organized specifically for individual effort but it was later decided that the blind people of the city needed help and the special work of the chapter from that time on has been for the blind. A visiting circle was formed with Miss Riley as leader to call regularly on the blind read to them and help them as opportunities and means might present themselves. The first combined work for securing money for the blind was a sale and supper in October 1892, the profit from which was $210. This was given to the Heart Sunshine Society Association. Assistance was also rendered the society in the fair that it held in December of that year, $56 being netted.

When the American Institute and Business College for the Blind was established in Hartford in 1893 the association helped by securing patronage. Aid was also given to the "Pioneers Concert Company," a blind company of musicians on their trips by sending personal letters to friends in the cities where they were going. Money was given and solicited by individual members for the Industrial Home and Kindergarten for the Blind.

In 1893 the Circle of Young Samaritans was formed from the boys and girls under sixteen. Their motto was "Scatter Seeds of Kindness." In 1892 the New York branch was formed and did much good among the blind of their state. In 1895 they severed relations with the local society, for good and sufficient reasons. A branch was established in Durham in 1893 and did commendable work there becoming an independent order in 1899.

A library was started in 1894 for the blind and the books were read to them by members of the local chapter. Part of the banner placed in the King's Daughters' room at the world's fair in this year was paid for by the local organization. A constitution and bylaws were adopted in this year and were amended in 1897. An account of the work of the order was printed in the Silver Cross. More systematic efforts for securing money were begun in the same year by an entertainment given in Unity Hall and followed by a sale in Jewell Hall. Many entertainments of this sort followed. At its tenth anniversary the members

George W. Cable, of Mass. have announced that of their daughter, Cable, to Charles Lawes of Cambridge. Lawes was graduated College in 1911 and editorial staff of the "anion." The wedding at the home of the Hampton on Thursday, presence of the im-

Yarborough.

Lee Yarborough of C., and Arthur Newton Windsor Hill were married at the day afternoon at the and Mrs. Martin J. 90 York street, New ceremony was performed by O. Scoville, rector church, New Haven. Miss Varner of New Haven

Greenberg.

Greenberg, daughter of Mrs. Leon Greenberg of venue, and Stephen B.

of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan 662 Madison avenue, Y., were married last 6:30 o'clock at the Hotel ceremony being performed by W. Ettelson, rabbi Beth Israel. The bride by her sister, Miss Esberg, a student at Smith the best man was Arbrother of the bride-entire mezzanine floor was used, the ceremony rmed in the second room ni-circular bank of palms n which were small clus-othy Perkins roses. The y entered through an ed by light blue ribbon Colonial posts of white vined with green and tied bunches of the roses. The s were festooned with hilax with occasional clus- pink roses. The bride ss of white silk and car-er bouquet of lilies-of-and white orchids and the onor, whose dress carried lor scheme of light blue, shower bouquet of pink oses suspended by blue following the ceremony, s attended by about fifty nd intimate friends, a wed-er was served in the third a table in the form of a are, the center of which with palms and ferns. On of each side was a light at filled with Dorothy Per- and ferns, similar baskets on three small tables. The ceremony and dancing lowed the dinner was fur- the Hotel Bond Orchestra decorations were arranged e direction of Vincent H. of the Asylum street store, the florist. Mr. and Mrs. for a wedding trip, after ey will be at home at No. Main avenue, Albany, N. Y. e, who is a graduate of elock's Kindergarten Train- in Boston, has been teach- kindergarten of the Ar-

MRS. L. S. HARRIS.

President for Eleven Years.

al meeting there were added vice chairmen and an assistant secretary.

There were sixteen members in chapter at its organization and end of the second year (1893) membership had increased to During the first year meetings held twice a month at the of the members, but the first year they were once a month in Memor- until the fall of 1894. They then held in the Y. M. C. A. g where they are now held. Annual meetings, except the ae, were held in the parlors Pearl street church until the g was torn down in July 1899. founding members were as

MRS. CLARENCE

Frank A. G.

Mrs. Harris &

secretary, Mrs. M.

assistant secretary,

Stuart, corres-

Mrs. O. V. McK.

Elton Ackley,

William A. W.

Edward H. S.

devotional exer-

E. Farnsworth,

chairman of the

Mrs. I. M. P.

Gallup, chair-

committee; Mr.

chairman of the

and the officers

he an chi woi cad motl day
the ly lo faile pointe Mechli formed which duchess lace fell
and the tulle vel
soms, al
the veil i atmosph carried a
of the paper co
of ivory

Miss E gown of tone tal dragons peared
of whi with a a clust margy hair
large

Mrs. Francis Gilman Blake

Who was Miss Dorothy Dewey, daughter of William Child Dewey. Mrs. Blake wore the bridal attire worn by her mother upon her wedding day.

Mr.
New Y
ment
Newbo
gan, Y
grand Coolid
can A gan,
D. Mo
Ver o
Tori
Wash
spond weddi

June 3

Rutland Young Man Takes Mount Carmel Young Woman for Bride at Church Wedding To-day.

Special to The Times.

New Haven, June

In the presence of friends from various parts of the country as the state, who filled to overflowing, Miss daughter of Judge H. Webb of Springfield, Carmel, was married to Edward N. Gossett.

The cere o'clock in of Mount orated la white a of gree ground
nies,
in g effe
cel

Invitations have been sent out to the wedding of Miss Elinore Adelaide Morehouse, daughter of Mrs. D. W. Springfield, Mass., to Erick, a grandson

139

June 3

New York
ment of Newbold
gan, Yale
grandda Coolidge
can Am
gan, wh
D. Morg
ber of t
York a Washing
sponden wedding

b
T
W yest coun Morg abroad from Y a son of
New York

his ever ss but to Saturn

bridge and row in the 'varsity boat

MASONIC VETERANS IN 50TH REUNION

Jewel for Oldest Member Awarded to Wilfred H.
Nettleton of Bristol.

Special to The Times.

Derby, June 24.

The fiftieth reunion of the Masonic Veteran association of Connecticut was celebrated to-day with King Hiram lodge, No. 12, F. & A. M., under whose auspices the first reunion was held June 17, 1871. The first reunion on that date was so successful that a second reunion was held with King Hiram lodge in 1872. The third reunion was held in Bridgeport, and in the following years the association met in various places, coming here again for the fiftieth reunion. The reunion to-day was therefore one of special interest to the present membership of approxi-

WILFRED H. NETTLETON.

David/Nicoll, William Westland, Emerson M. Parker, Wallace Thompson, Edwin W. Stevens; Lafayette, Hartford, Samuel Alexander.

Orient, East Hartford, Nathan S. Lawrence; Daskam, Glastonbury, Hector Chapman; Franklin, Bristol, Grove W. Wooster; Harmony, New Britain, Samuel W. Clark; Village, Collinsville, Burton O. Higley, George F. Lewis; Washington, Windsor, Charles F. Lewis; Hiram, Bloomfield, Oscar J. Tobie, Royal C. Eddy; Eastern Star, Willimantic, Eugene S. Boss; Manchester, Manchester, James W. Cheney; Evening Star, Unionville, Charles R. Hawley.

Included in the new members admitted to-day were Past Grand Masters Leonard J. Nickerson of West Cornwall, Wallace S. Moyle of New Haven and William T. Petherbridge of Pittsfield, Mass. The latter was made a Mason in Oriental lodge of Broad Brook in 1874 and was master of that lodge in 1878, 1879 and 1882.

Dinner was served at the Lakeview casino on the Housatonic river, by Queen Esther chapter, Order of the Eastern Star. After dinner there was a social session. Past Master Harry N. Downs of King Hiram lodge was chairman of the joint committee of arrangements, composed of fifteen.

Oldest Veteran.

Wilfred Hopkins Nettleton, who received the Veteran's jewel, is one of the oldest and best known residents of Bristol. He was born in Waterbury, June 2, 1825. His family moved to Bristol when he was 12 years old, and his whole business life has been passed in that place. He was engaged in clock manufacturing for many years and patented many inventions relating to clocks and machinery for their manufacture. He is the only surviving member of the board of directors of the Bristol National bank, established in 1875.

Mr. Nettleton received the Master Mason degree in Franklin lodge, No. 56, of Bristol, July 13, 1853. He joined the Masonic Veteran association at the reunion held with Franklin lodge in Bristol, June 25, 1891.

The Association.

The incentive for the first reunion of the Veterans was to give opportunity for the aged members of lodges in Derby and vicinity to witness degree work again. Many had not attended a lodge meeting for a long period, and the reunion was held in the afternoon at Nathan's hall in Birmingham, now Derby. About 300 were then present.

The venerable masters of the association have been Robert M. Narramore of Derby, 1871 to 1879; William Wallace Lee of Meriden, 1880-1903; John H. Barlow of Hartford, 1904-1908; Reuben H. Tucker of Ansonia, 1909-1918. All are deceased.

'14—The marriage of Anne Bunce, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lucius Chester Ryce ('86) of New York City, and Gile took place in the Chapel of the Cathedral of St. John, New York City, on June 3. George 4th, '14, served as best man. '14, was one of the three ushers at the recent death of Mr. Moses C. Gile, father of the groom, the wedding was attended only by members of the family and friends. Mr. and Mrs. Gile, 14 Dana Street, Cambridge, Mass.

June 3 - '14
Miss Anne Bunce Ryce of Mr. and Mrs. Lucius C. Gile of New York, who formerly lived on Sycamore road, West Haven, Conn., and Clement M. Gile of Boston, married this noon in the St. Boniface of the Cathedral of St. John, the Divine, in New York City. The ceremony will be a simple one, because of the recent death of the bridegroom's father, prominent in the community. The wedding will be attended by the relatives, only. Miss Ryce will be her sister and the best man will be Washington Patterson, Arbor, Mich., a classmate of Gile at Yale University, they were graduated in 1914. Gile was pitcher on the baseball nine. Following the ceremony, a wedding breakfast will be served in the apartment of the bride's parents, after which Mrs. Gile will leave for her trip. They will live in Boston, Mr. Gile's business being in Boston.

June Atwood-Bunce
Miss Grace W. Bunce, daughter of Henry L. Bunce, president of the United States Bank, and George Atwood of this city, were married yesterday evening at 8 o'clock at the home of the bride's father, No. 64

The ceremony was performed by Rev. James W. Bradin, pastor of St. John's Church, who usually performs the copal service. The bride was attended and the best man by

Egan-Hurley
Miss Sadie J. Hurley, daughter of Mrs. Mary G. Hurley of New York, and John B. Egan, son of the State Police, were married yesterday evening at the Church of St. Augustine, where three former generations of her family have been married. The Rev. Alexander Leo, of Philadelphia, will officiate, assisted by the Rev. Dr. John Coleman Barry, pastor of the church. Miss Higgins of this city, who is maid of honor, and the best man will be Mr. Lowry of this city. A wedding breakfast was served at the home of the bride following the ceremony, at which Mr. and Mrs. Egan left for a trip to Atlantic City. The bridesmaids are to be Miss Marjorie Washington, D. C. Agnes Maercklein and Miss Marjorie turn, they will live at 14 Howe street. The bride is the secretary of the O'Donnell

One of the first of the June brides in Hartford, this season, will be Miss Boardman, who is the only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Howard Francis Boardman, of No. 694 New Britain avenue. Her marriage to John Remington Nichols, of New York, formerly of Branford, will take place at 7 o'clock, Saturday evening, June 3, at the Church of the Redeemer, where three former generations of her family have been married. The Rev. Alexander Leo, of Philadelphia, will officiate, assisted by the Rev. Dr. John Coleman Adams, pastor of the church. Miss Boardman is to have as maid of honor, Miss Dorothea Payne, of this city, and Russell Mabbatt Nichols, of Branford, an undergraduate following the ceremony, at which Mr. and Mrs. Egan left for a trip to Atlantic City. The bridesmaids are to be Miss Marjorie Washington, D. C. Agnes Maercklein and Miss Marjorie turn, they will live at 14 Howe street. The bride is the secretary of the O'Donnell

MISS MARIEL WILDES BOARDMAN.

The ushers will all be relatives of the bridegroom, another brother, Walter Roger Nichols, of Branford, and three cousins, Thorvald Tenney, of Branford, an undergraduate at Yale; Thorvald Hammer, of Bethlehem, Penn., formerly of Branford, and a Yale graduate, and Edward Hall, of New Haven. A small reception at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Boardman is to follow the ceremony. After September 1 Mr. Nichols and his bride will be at home at No. 1707 Nelson avenue, New York. Mr. Nichols is a son of the late Walter and Sarah Mabbatt Nichols, and a nephew of Mr. and Mrs. Valdemar T. Hammer, of Branford. Miss Boardman has spent many summers with her parents at Short Beach and Indian Neck, on the Branford coast, and Mr. Nichols, who is now connected with the Western Union Telegraph company, in New York, spent his boyhood in Branford with his grandfather, the late John W. Nichols, at Cherry Hill, and afterward attended Peddie institute.

side his bride will

June Nichols-Boardman-3
Miss Mariel Wildes Boardman

JUN
DEAN
H. du To-morro first birthd
of the Ber
Dean Hart
June 4, 18
Dr.
every week
layan have

DEAN
ate,
in 18
merito
H
to 189
and way in and w

ST. PAUL'S AT SIXTY

ENDOWMENT FUND APPROACHES MILLION

$200,000 Additional Will Be Presented at Commencement This Week, When the Days of Activity

The speakers at the Commencement exercises will be Dr. Hart, William Roscoe Taylor of Boston, and President John Pier Hibben of Princeton University. Special athletic programmes have been prepared for both days, in addition to the annual events, among which is the boat race between the Halcion and the Shattuck crews. Unlike most schools of this character, St. Paul's does not compete with outside schools except in hockey. "Hoby" Baker of Princeton, is a product of the school. Rowing always has been the leading sport at St. Paul's, nearly a hundred boys being on regular crews.

The track and field contests will be between the Isthmian, Old Hundred and Delphian teams. This year the annual alumni rush is expected to be one of the most interesting events. In ordinary years about 300 members of the alumni take part at least 2000 are expected to be present. This is an unwritten law of the school, and what his age will stage a the smallest addition to the made following on June 6. a concert and re-stivities. The ry of the school chools that fol-d St. Mark's of bring about any on. It is the the alumni that haracter should than 300, at is al attention to ent runs higher. ill be used to l for other gen-

the alumni who are J. Pierpont novelist, Junius e, H. H. Have-y Rainey, C. P. Vanderbilt, Cor-Jay Chapman, Sprague, 2d, T. Dupont, Edward plan, Robert P. xter Tiffany, F. stus P. Gardner ndolph Hearst.

ed under the re-Protestant Epis-markable for the anifested by the s not profit-mak-any other of the in that it clings h form of school larger proportion athletics than in competition with me of the great have been St. very big univer-graduate of the ctorate. Ordained to the priest-hood in 1870 he has had a useful d meritorious career in the urch. He was at Trinity from 68 to 1899 as tutor, assistant pr-essor and professor. He came to rkeley in 1899 as professor of rctrinal theology and the prayer ok and was made dean in 1908. stars of track and Paul's boys, and near-sity in the country ha-school in its crew.

DEAN SAMUEL HART.

Miss Lora Standish, younger daughter of Dr. Myles Standish and Mrs. Standish of Boston, and William Henry Weston, jr., of New York will be married at the South Congrega-tional Church, Boston, on Monday, June 5. A reception at the home of

AT HOTEL WORTHY LUNCHEON

Miss Elsie Smith Gives Party for Miss Harriet Davis Phelps, Who Is To Be Married This Evening

Miss Elsie Smith of Sumner ter- race, who is to be one of the bride- maids attending Miss Harriet Davis Phelps upon her marriage to Harold Hastings Cutter this evening, enter- tained the young women members of the bridal party at luncheon in the Hotel Worthy yesterday afternoon. Miss Phelps was the guest of honor and the other members of the party were Miss Dorothy Phelps, sister of the bride-elect, who is to be maid of honor; Miss Hester Davis of Dorches- ter, Miss Eleanor Rice of Brooklyn, and Miss Helen Cutter, who are to serve with yesterday's hostess as bridesmaids. A large basket of lilies of the valley and bride roses formed the centerpiece, a large bow of white chiffon ribbon tying the handle of the basket. Small individual bouquets were placed at each cover. At the place of the guest of honor was in addition a miniature bride and bride- groom. Favors of small horseshoes with tiny white doves perched above them were the unique favors for each guest.

A rehearsal of the ceremony was held at 8 o'clock last evening in the home of the bride, followed by a din- ner of 12 covers at 9.30 o'clock. In addition to the young women who were Miss Smith's guests yesterday afternoon the number included Lee Spear, who is to act as best man; Raymond G. Cowles of Atlantic City, N. J., a cousin of the bride-elect; Cutter Davis of Dorchester, also a cousin, and Clifton West and Ralph Brierly of this city, who are to act as ushers. The decorations were car- ried out in a color scheme of pink and white, a large pink basket filled with pink Killarney roses and small forming the centerpiece, while the place cards were dainty pink and white slippers. At each place was a small pink basket filled with pink roses.

Mr and Mrs Walter Dimmock Phelps have as their guests in their home on Buckingham place several of the out- of-town guests here for the wedding this evening of their daughter, Miss Harriet Phelps, and Harold Hastings Cutter. Among the house guests are Mr and Mrs H. E. Sweezey of New Haven, Ct., uncle and aunt of the bride-elect; Mr and Mrs Charles H. Davis, another uncle and aunt, with Miss Hester Davis and Cutter Davis of Dorchester and Miss Eleanor Rice, the last three being members of the bridal party. Another of the bridal party, Raymond G. Cowles, is here from Atlantic City, N. J., and is stay- ing with his parents, Mr and Mrs My- ron O. Cowles of High street, who are also entertaining Mrs H. C. Beach and her children, Richard and Doris, of Philadelphia. Mrs Beach is a sister of Mrs Cowles and an aunt of Miss Phelps.

Y, JUNE 3, 1916

musical comedy next rail.

She has been married once before to Tod Sloan, the famous jockey, from whom she was divorced in 1912 after five years of wedded life.

follow the sh will be at- Mrs. Bradley land, O., and of Litchfield, the bride's jr., was re- Mr. Weston's andish.

Ben Ali Hag- 000,000 heir, onnie Glass, rons of the isic hall, and newspapers of Eugenia

nding their tate at Ros- gin is well has shown a portrait up a town studio is at id marriage.

h taken for Bonnie as h Robinson, s. Jeremiah and she 20 in the Little- her in 1903.

ancing part- performer. In- ness hours on of James sman and turesque of Haggin died e estimated The artist estate, al- painter had joy itself.

ary Garden derable at- comment. ion in 1914, Connecticut. eeper to at- eneral Dan

MARRIED

Lieutenant the United

me 6 the singer and Tuesday, at enant Brad- the Presby- ng was wit- m Jay Bar- oom, and Mr. rents of Miss on performed then left for t Barnette is from his du- rk branch of phic Bureau. it in "Sybil" l star in this

REV. DR. HART P. B. K.
SENATOR FOR LIFE.

SEPTEMBER 15, 1916

National Council Signally Honors Dean of Berkeley Divinity School.

TRINITY GRAD,
CLASS OF 1866

Only Two Other Men Have Been Chosen to This Position.

The Rev. Dr. Samuel Hart, dean of Berkeley Divinity school, Middletown, and member of the corporation of Trinity college, was elected a senator for life of the United chapters of Phi Beta Kappa at the twelfth triennial national council in Philadelphia this week. Only twice before in the history of the society has a similar honor been conferred, the recipients being Thomas Wentworth Higginson of Harvard and Colonel William Lamb of William and Mary college. Dean Hart graduated from Trinity in the class of 1866 and has been one of leading figures in Phi Beta Kappa for years. He has been a senator of the national council by successive elections since 1892.

Professor Bayard L. Morgan, Trinity '04, was a delegate to the council from the University of Wisconsin. All officers were re-elected.

Friends of Joseph Archer, Secretary to Vice-President Way, Remember Anniversary.

June 6 — 1916
Joseph Archer, secretary to Vice-President John L. Way of the Travelers, was being congratulated to-day on the completion of twenty-five years' service in the employ of the company. Among those who remembered Mr. Archer's anniversary, in addition to Mr. Way, were Major E. V. Preston, Samuel R. McBurney, H. H. Armstrong, Walter E. Mallory, and Louis N. Denniston. Mr. Archer's desk was covered with flowers and he received a number of other gifts. Mr. Archer first worked for Major Preston in the capacity of secretary, in the early days when the company employed only seventy-five clerks. He has seen that number grow up to 1400. He was 25 years old at that time.

About a dozen years ago Mr. Archer's services were transferred to Mr. Way and in that position Mr. Archer has made himself much esteemed by the officers of the company. He is married, has two children and lives at No. 20 Vineland terrace.

When Major Preston, the oldest living employee of the Travelers, heard about Mr. Archer's anniversary, he said:

"There isn't a more devoted, capable, and beloved man in the office than he. He was my clerk for a long time; and Mr. Way took him from me a dozen years ago because he wanted the best man he could lay his hand on. There's a man who is always wanting to do something for everybody in the building."

Major Preston sent Mr. Archer the following note:

"My dear Archer: They tell me you celebrate your twenty-fifth anniversary with the Travelers Insurance company to-day. I am more sincerely glad than I shall be able to express that you are living, still connected with the company and that I have had the benefit and pleasure of close touch with you for all the twenty-five years that have passed. I hope you may live, certainly twenty-five more, be well and happy all the time and prosperous too, and on as good terms with everybody in the Travelers as to-day, and that, by the way, is saying a good deal."

Miss Mary G. Miller, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy Miller of Bridgeport, who has returned from the Misses Masters's School at Dobbs Ferry, N. Y., for the summer vacation, is in this city.

Robert Samuel Burnap, son of Rev. Irving A. Burnap and Mrs. Burnap of Ivoryton, formerly of this city, and who was graduated from the Hartford Public High School in 1912, will be graduated from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology in Boston next week Wednesday. Mr. Burnap has received an appointment to enter the research laboratory of the institute, to begin his duties on July 1. This appointment is in recognition of his high standing in scholarship and his general ability. He is 20 years of age.

Seldom has one lifetime spanned

June Mather-Gellert.
At the home of Mr. and Mrs. Anton N. Gellert of Myrtle street, East Hartford, their only daughter, Miss Cecelia Margaret Gellert, and Melville H. Mather of this city, were married Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock. The bride wore a dress of white crepe meteor with pearl trimmings and cut with a train. She carried a bouquet of white roses and lilies-of-the-valley. She was attended by Mrs. Henry S. Griswold of Wethersfield as matron of honor, her dress being of crushed strawberry taffeta and her bouquet being of pink sweet peas. She was also attended by Winona Sweet and Mary Sweet, daughters of Dr. A. M. Sweet and Mrs. Sweet of Essex, as flower girls, the girls being nieces of the bridegroom. Verner E. Mather, brother of the bridegroom, was the best man. The ceremony was performed by Rev. P. Miles Snyder, pastor of the First Congregational Church of East

Former Lieutenant-Governor Lyman A. Mills and Mrs. Mills Celebrate Today.

(Special to The Courant.)

Middlefield, June 5.

Fifty years ago tomorrow, former-Lieutenant Governor Lyman A. Mills and Miss Jennie L. Andrews were married in New Britain at the home of the bride by Rev. Charles Lewis Mills, father of the bridegroom. In speaking of the event Mr. Mills said tonight that it was fifty short years of wedded bliss which one often reads about in novels but rarely experiences. To show his appreciation of the good things that he has enjoyed in business, social and home life, Mr. Mills has extended an informal invitation to all residents of Middlefield to partake of his hospitality from 3 to 6 o'clock tomorrow afternoon when he will be host to the town. As the whole town knows and admires Mr. Mills, it is safe to predict an exodus to the Mills home that should make the hearts of the long-time wedded couple beat with gratification.

Mr. Mills is the son of the late Rev. Charles Lewis Mills, a Congregational minister and a graduate of Yale University, class of 1835. Through his father, he is descended from John and Priscilla Alden.

Mrs. Mills was Jennie Louisa Andrews, daughter of Deacon A. Andrews of New Britain, who was author of the "Andrews Family Genealogy," "Stephen Hart and His Descendants," and "The History of New Britain." Mrs. Mills is a descendant of Thomas Hooker. The couple were married June 6, 1866.

Mr. Mills was lieutenant governor in 1899-1900 and is at present the president of the Lyman Gun Sight Corporation, a trustee of the Middletown Savings Bank, a director of the American Wringer Company, president of the Levi E. Coe Library Association and holds many other positions of trust and responsibility. He is a lover of art and in his home, built in 1787, are to be found many art treasures, including paintings by well known American, English and Dutch painters.

June 7, 1916
 The marriage of Miss Charlotte Frances Jameson, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Jameson, of No. 202 Jefferson street, and William Howard Knowles, of Detroit, son of Mrs. Carrie Knowles, of this city, will take place at 4:30 this afternoon at the home of the bride's parents. It is to be a quiet home wedding, with only relatives and intimate friends present. The Rev. H. M. Thompson, pastor of the Memorial Baptist church, will officiate. There are to be no attendants and the Mendelssohn wedding march will be played by Miss Laura Merrill.

The house decorations are to carry out a color scheme of green and white, a background of mountain laurel and ferns being used with white flowers. The bride is to wear a gown of white taffeta and Georgette crepe, with point de venise lace trimming, and will carry a shower bouquet of white roses.

After a wedding trip up the Hudson and on the Great lakes, Mr. Knowles and his bride will live in Detroit, where he is chief engineer of the Saxon Motor company.

June 7
Washburn-Tryon.
 At the home of the bride's parents at 5:30 this afternoon the marriage of Miss Grace F. Tryon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Tryon of No. 355 Barbour street, and Cyrus O. Washburn of this city, son of Mr. and Mrs. William M. Washburn will take place, the Rev. John Rosebaugh, assistant rector of Christ church, officiating. There will be no attendants. The house decorations are to be green and white and the bride will wear her traveling suit of navy blue silk and a white hat. Mr. Washburn and his bride are to go to Niagara Falls and travel through Canada on their wedding trip, and will be at home after September 1 at No. 47 Edgewood street. The bride is a graduate of the Hartford Hospital Training School for Nurses and had been engaged in hospital work in Columbus, O. Mr. Washburn is employed by the Travelers.

June 7
 Miss Mabel Griswold, daughter of Mrs. Charles Eno of Franklin avenue, and Leverett E. Smart of this city were married Wednesday evening at 6 o'clock at Christ Church by Rev. Dr. James Goodwin, rector of the church. The bride was attended by her sister.

The announcement of the engagement of Miss Beatrice Harper Bonnell of No. 15 East Eleventh street, New York, to Waldo Banning of Old Lyme, has recently been mentioned by the New York papers. Miss Bonnell is the daughter of the late John Harper Bonnell and Margaret (Baker) Bonnell, both members of well-known New York families. She is the great-granddaughter of John Harper, who was one of the founders of Harper Brothers, the publishing firm. Her father was at one time the owner of one of the largest manufacturing of printing inks in this country. Mr. Banning has been a resident of Old Lyme for ten years and is a graduate of Princeton university, class of 1902. Miss Bonnell and her mother have been summer residents of Old Lyme for the past two years.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Alden Weir of New York have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Caroline Alden Weir, to George Page Ely, son of Mrs. George Ely of Old Lyme, this state. Miss Weir made her debut two years ago and her father is a well-known artist, president of the National Academy of Design, and former president of the American Painters and Sculptors. The family has spent much time in Connecticut and an uncle of the prospective bride, John F. Weir, was formerly director of the Yale School of Fine Arts at New Haven. Mr. Ely belongs to a well-known old Connecticut family and has a number of acquaintances in this city.

June 7
 A marriage of interest to Connecticut and many Hartford people was that of Miss Caroline Alden Weir, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. Alden Weir of New York and Windham, this state, and George Page Ely, of Old Lyme, which took place Wednesday in the Church of the Ascension in New York, the Rev. Percy Stickney Grant officiating. The bride wore a gown of white satin and point lace that had been worn by her great-grandmother on her wedding day, and a veil of old lace. She carried white roses and lilies of the valley. Her chief attendant was her sister, Miss Dorothy Weir, who wore a lace gown and blue hat. Another sister, Miss Cora Weir, and Miss Clara Boardman were bridesmaids. They wore gowns of buff Georgette crepe and mauve hats. Henry S. Page was best man and the ushers were A. V. Baird of Delaplain, Va., Gardner B. Perry of Albany, Arthur G. Rotch and Frank E. Sweetser of Boston, Ellis Adams, Sidney Smith, George S. Franklin, Harold Otis, Gurdon S. Parker, Payson McL. Merrill and Silas W. How-Old Lyme Guests at New York Ceremonies in Which Fellow Townsmen Are Bridegrooms.

Special to The Times.

Old Lyme, June 9.

Two New York weddings of the week which were attended by Lyme people were the Ely-Weir wedding on Wednesday and the Banning-Bonnell wedding on Thursday. In both cases the bridegrooms, Page Ely and Waldo Banning, were Old Lyme men, and both ceremonies were performed by the Rev. Percy Stickney Grant of the Church of the Ascension, Fifth avenue and Tenth street, New York. Mrs. Ely was Miss Caroline Alden Weir and is the daughter of J. Alden Weir, the president of the National Academy of Art. Hers was a church wedding, with a reception at the home of her parents, No. 471 Park avenue. Mr. Ely is a member of the real estate firm of Payson McMerrill Co. of New York. He is the son of Mrs. George Ely of Old Lyme and spends much of his time here.

June 8
 Mrs. Banning was Miss Beatrice Harper Bonnell and is the daughter of Mrs. John Harper Bonnell of No. 15 East 11th street, New York. Her grandfather was John Harper, a founder of the publishing house of Harper Bros. This wedding was at the home of Miss Elizabeth Harper, a cousin of the bride, at No. 143 East 63rd street. Only relatives were invited. Mr. Banning has been a resident of Old Lyme for the last ten years and the couple will make that place their home.

WEDDING AT BEVERLY FARMS

Mrs. S. Reed Anthony of Commonwealth Avenue to Be Married Late This Afternoon to Randolph Frothingham of Boston

June 7, 1916
Mrs. S. Reed Anthony of 113 Commonwealth avenue, who has a summer estate, "Rose Ledge," on Hale street at Beverly Farms, is to be married late this afternoon to Randolph Frothingham of Boston. The marriage will take place quietly in St. John's Episcopal Church at Beverly Farms, and the ceremony will be performed by Rev. Elwood Worcester, D. D., rector of Emmanuel Church, Boston. There will be present only Mrs. Anthony's children and the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Frothingham of New York city. Robert W. Seymour of Boston will act as best man for Mr. Frothingham, and Mrs. Anthony will be unattended. It has been planned to be as simple in every way as a

COOLIDGE-ATKINS WEDDING

Ceremony Uniting Miss Mary Shepley Coolidge to Edward Farnsworth Atkins, Jr., Takes Place at the Home of the Bride's Parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Coolidge

June 7, 1916
Important among the mid-week weddings is that of Miss Mary Shepley Coolidge and Edward Farnsworth Atkins, Jr., of Belmont, Harvard '15, taking place late this afternoon at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles A. Coolidge, 82 Marlboro street. The marriage is of much interest because of the extensive acquaintance of both families.

The ceremony is to be witnessed only by members of the families and the relatives, with perhaps a few intimate friends, and it will be performed by Rev. Alexander Mann, D. D., rector of Trinity Church. Miss Coolidge will be given in marriage by her father.

The bride has decided to have only one attendant, her sister, Miss Isabelle Coolidge, as maid of honor. Randolph Boyle of Louisville, Ky., Harvard classmate of Mr. Atkins, is to serve as best man. There is a notable group of ushers, including Charles A. Coolidge, Jr., the only brother of the bride, a junior at Harvard; Robert W. Atkins, a brother of the bridegroom; Franklin Hunt Trumbull, Harvard '14; Nicholas Roosevelt of Oyster Bay, also of the class of '14; Williams Prescott, David Rives Sigourney and William H. Claflin, Jr., of Boston, Morgan Brigham Phillips of Brookline; Robert Winthrop Kean, of New York; Ernest Goodnough Swigert, of Portland, Oregon, and John Cleveland Talbot, of Milton, all Harvard '15 men, with Mr. Atkins; also, Leon Sherwood Chichester of Allegan, Mich., and Kent Bromley of New York, both seniors; William H. Taylor of the Middlesex School, James Brownlee of Albany and R. Cushing Hamlin of Portland, Me.

Following the ceremony, a reception will be held by the bride's parents. The guests will include those present at the ceremony with many other friends invited to meet Mr. Atkins and his bride, who are to make their home on the Atkins estate on Concord avenue, Belmont. The bride is the granddaughter of Mrs. David W. Coolidge, who, in Miss Coolidge's debutante season, was hostess for several interesting affairs in honor of the debutante. Miss Coolidge was the guest in the spring of her fiancé's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Farnsworth Atkins, at their sugar plantation in Cienfuegos.

Seldom has one lifetime spanned West Springfield Property Sold for Residential Use for $50,000

June 6, 1916
Brush Hill, the West Springfield estate of Henry S. Hyde of this city, was sold yesterday for $50,000 to Theodore H. Nye through the real estate office of Frank C. Brinkerhoff. Mr. Hyde retains the right to live on the property until October 1. Mr. Nye buys for a permanent residence, and is yet undecided whether to remodel the house now on the property or whether Walter L. Goodwin Adds $60,000 Lot to His Present Estate.

LAND BOUGHT OF ROBERT J. ALLYN.

W. Stuart Glazier Buys Next to John T. Robinson Property.

Two important real estate deals are in progress, involving valuable properties on opposite sides of Asylum avenue, west of Woodland street,

The property which Robert J. Allyn, who lives at No. 1,340 Asylum avenue, transfers to Mr. Goodwin, is at the east of the Allyn property and adjoins, on the west, the residential property of Mr. Goodwin, whose home is at No. 1,280 Asylum avenue, thus giving the purchaser much more extensive grounds in connection with his house. From Woodland street to Scarborough street, on the north side of Asylum avenue, a matter of about half a mile, there are only the residences of Mr. Allyn and Mr. Goodwin, although Dr. J. B. Griggs is building west of the Allyn residence. East of Mr. Goodwin's property is that of the J. J. Goodwin estate, where his father, the late James J. Goodwin, lived when in this city, with the house, however, facing on Woodland street, the latter property adjoining that then and now occupied by Rev. Dr. Francis Goodwin, brother of James J. Goodwin.

The property on the south side of Asylum avenue bought by Mr. Glazier, who is connected with the J. B. Williams Company and is a son-in-law of the late Dr. G. Pierrepont Davis, is directly west of the residential property of John T. Robinson, who bought his land from James J. Goodwin. The Glazier purchase is east of Girard avenue and the purchaser will have for a neighbor the new Hartford Theological Seminary, which will build on the east side of that avenue.

Aeroplane Romance Ended.

Grahame-White Seriously Hurt.

rights granted to his wife last January.

CLARKE-DALEY—The marriage of Miss Helen Daley of this city and John J. Clarke of St. Clair, Pa., was solemnized at 8 a. m. at Our f Sorrows Church, by the Rev. J. Galvin, rector of the church. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Fena Garrity, the bridesman was William Daley. The ceremony was served at the Hotel. Mr. and Mrs. Clarke left for St. Clair, Pa., on the afternoon train. Will be home August 10. 73 Kibble street, city.

BRETTE—In this city, Wednesday, June 7, 1916, Miss Maud L. Brette to George T. P. Klix, by the Rev. John Barstow.

-KING—Married at her death. No. 167 Joralemon street, Brooklyn, N. Y., on Saturday afternoon June 8th, 1916, by the Rev. C. J. Archdeacon, Isabel Simlaught of Mrs. Waldemar King, to Lester Hazen King of this city.

Cheney-Calkins. Congratulations were received yesterday for the marriage of Thomas Cheney, son of the late Mr. Knight D. Cheney of this city and Miss Judith Seager Calkins will take place Saturday, at 4 o'clock at the Gates Mill, Ohio. Mr. Cheney is in charge of Cheney Brothers office, succeeding his father, Knight D. Cheney, on his previous going to New York was in charge of the spinning department at the mills here, and was held in high esteem by all connected with him.

Manchester, May 17. Langdon Cheney, son of Mr. and Mrs. Knight D. Cheney, and Miss Judith Seager Calkins of Gates Mill, O., were married this afternoon. The ceremony was held at the Gates Mill, O., where a large number of invitations had been sent out but owing to developments which required the departure of Mr. Cheney at once, the wedding was performed this afternoon in the presence of a few intimate friends. The couple will spend their honeymoon in England.

is born to Mrs. Thomas L. Cheney of New York last week.

e C. Peck of this city and Mrs. Cooke of Wilson were married yesterday in New York by the Rev. Williams, pastor of Calvary Church. Mrs. Cooke is the home of the insurance companies. Ethel employed at the office of George e Company.

1916 We received 22.—Flight marriage of Grahame-White and John Levey, the Beach, Mr. Dunlap has Miss Dorothy her home obtained a divorce, at the June. Ethel achieved the wife of and painted New York. is held ex-dissolved in the Hotel Hartford two years ago. During the past winter she has been studying at the school of design in Boston.

*Is ended Oct. 28, 1916.
The man & woman about May 18, 1917, June 1919.*

Homestead.
General A. G. McCook,
Who Saw Ceremony 50
Years Ago, Here.

The golden anniversary of their marriage was observed by the Rev. Dr. John J. McCook, professor of modern languages at Trinity college, and Mrs. McCook at their home, No. 396 Main street, Wednesday. The event was very informal and only members of the family were present. Dr. McCook had told only a few of his friends of the anniversary, but those who knew of the occasion sent telegrams and letters of a congratulatory nature.

Mrs. McCook was born in the house at No. 396 Main street and which has always been her home. It is thought to be the oldest house in Hartford in which one family has lived continuously. Mrs. McCook was Miss Eliza Sheldon Butler, and the house was built by her grandfather, Dr. Daniel Butler, who was a leading physician and prominent in the town life of Hartford in his time. The main part of the house was built about 1781, and there are indications that the rear section is much older.

much older. Professor McCook and Mrs. McCook were married June 7, 1866, at Christ church by Bishop John Williams. The bishop was assisted by the Rev. George Clark, rector of the church. There were two ushers, the late James J. Goodwin of Hartford and the late Phillip J. Miller of New York. After the ceremony a reception took place in the parlor at the Butler homestead, and the room was arranged Wednesday evening to correspond as nearly as possible with the happy day a half century ago. There was a bell under which the couple stood and about the room were roses and other flowers. As Dr. McCook and Mrs. McCook and the other members of the family went to luncheon, the wedding march was played by musicians, present, through the kindly interest of Elwyn N. Emmons, who assisted in the playing. Later there was old time music.

The only person present Wednesday who witnessed the ceremony fifty years ago, was General Anson G. McCook, of New York.

G. McCook, of New York. The children of Professor McCook are all Cook and Bishop Logan H. Roots of China present for and Mrs. Roots and their five chil-
They are and Mrs. Roots are expected shortly in this city
John B. McCook and Mrs. Roots are expected shortly in this city
J. McCook to spend a year's leave of absence, wife of E. McCook. Mrs. Roots was before her marriage, Hankow, Miss Eliza McCook, daughter of Rev.
A. McCook. Dr. John J. McCook and Mrs. Mc-Cook of Bishop Cook of Main street.
were there. The other children of Philip J. McCook, were detained at home by illness. Mrs. McCook, wife of General Anson G. McCook was also there.

Dr. McCook was born in New Lisbon, Ohio, February 2, 1843. He had hardly passed his eighteenth birthday when he enlisted in the Virginia union command in the Civil war. He graduated from Trinity college in 1863 and from the Berkeley Divinity school, Middletown, in 1866. Dr. McCook had been lay reader at the Episcopal mission in East Hartford for some time and on the day he was ordained deacon, May 30, 1866, he was asked by the East Hartford parish, then only a few months old as St. John's Episcopal church, to become its leader, and thus began his connection of fifty years with the church.

East Hartford Church Fifty Years Old — Special Services Today.

DR. J. J. M'COOK,
RECTOR, HONORED.

Reception Given to Him and Mrs. McCook—Flag Presented.

(Special to The Courant.)

E. HARTFORD, Sunday, June 11.

Members of St. John's Parish gave a reception last evening to Rev. Dr. John J. McCook and Mrs. McCook, in honor of the fiftieth anniversary of the parish. A flag was presented to Dr. McCook by Percy S. Bryant, in behalf of the members of the parish. The flag is seven feet by five feet, is made of light taffeta, each star is hand embroidered and the flag presents a similar surface on each side. It is mounted on a staff and displays a gold emblem at the top.

In the receiving line were Dr. McCook and Mrs. McCook, Bishop Logan H. Roots and Mrs. Roots, Mrs. William H. Lord and Mrs. Daniel D. Bidwell. During the evening a large number of the town and district officials and members of the Ecclesiastical Society of Hartford attended the reception. Several professors from Trinity College, associates of Dr. McCook, were also present.

The fifth anniversary services of the organization of the parish and the beginning of the pastorate of the present rector, Dr. McCook, will be held today. The first service will be at 8 o'clock this morning when Rev. James W. Lord, the assistant rector, will celebrate holy communion at 10:45 o'clock, there will be morning prayer, holy communion and the anniversary sermon by Dr. McCook. At 4 o'clock in the afternoon there will be an address by Rt. Rev. Chauncey B. Brewster, bishop of Connecticut, and the sermon by Rt. Rev. Logan H. Roots, bishop of Hankow, China.

SINCE CHURCH WAS ORGANIZED.

Rev. Dr. James J. McCook Completes Fifty Years of Devoted Service.

SPECIAL SERVICES AND RECEPTION

St. John's Church in East Hartford Plans for Rector's Anniversary.

Special to The Times.

East Hartford, June 9.

The parish of St. John's church will celebrate in a fitting and impressive manner Saturday and Sunday the semi-centennial of the rectorate of the Rev. Dr. James McCook. The festivities will begin Saturday evening when there will be a public reception at the parish house from 7:30 to 9:30 p. m. given for the rector and Mrs. McCook in commemoration of the fiftieth anniversary of Mr. McCook's rectorship.

Sunday the exercises will start at 8 a. m. when there will be holy communion with the Rev. James Wat-

ity for furnishing the new home

OUR Saving at Room Free

NOTICE

called, in Burnside. This mission ter, was founded in 1852 through the ef-ween the forts of two students of Trinity col-ueue was lege, Alfred B. Goodrich and a Mr. McCook Leffingwell, who afterwards be. f. McCook came widely known in the Episcopal e house is ministry. built and How Parish Began.

Passing through East Hartford on Lord was their way to Manchester, where theyister and conducted a lay service, they saw with Dr. parish. It an unused house of worship in theparish. Its village of Burnside, at the junctionpts that a of Burnside avenue and Larrabee,lished in street, on land now owned by the Wangum-East Hartford fire district and usedised every as a park. The building had been d girls of erected for the use of Methodists in Burnside, but was temporarily unoc-/mnasium) cupied. There seemed to be a fieldift of Miss for mission service, and the two is built of young men entered into the work, resemble and a number of leading Methodistst of the in Burnside co-operated with them, and the early annals of St. John's June 12. parish gives the names of a num- the fiftieth ber of men who were prominent church, ob- in East Hartford sixty years ago, and church, ob- whose children or grand-childrenhops and a are now among the most respected ere present citizens of the town.

In the latter part of 1865 Dr. Mc- exercises Cook commenced his work here andunion, the has worked untiringly up to the, the assist- present time. Early in his ministry elebrant. At his ability and fearlessness were rec- prayer and ognized and his services were eager- anniversary ly sought in broader fields, but he John J. Mc- commenced his work in the little church as church and nothing could lure him ars. The permanently away. Starting with a e Brewster, small parish in Elm hall, really aid the Rt. mission station, interest was aroused s, bishop of and in 1915 the record of the four- the evening nal of the convention shows that was hand- there are 267 families and 606 bap- tized. A legal organization was per- r. fected and formal application was his address made for the parish to become a constituent part of the Protestant Episcopal church of the diocese of ig of your Connecticut. s mind and but we are y and of his

The Present Church.

The present site was purchased as, centered from Ezra E. Smith, and the corner- here. Your stone of the present church was laid tor yand its Thursday, June 6, 1867, at which the Rev. John Williams, bishop of Con- rished ser- necticut, assisted by the dean of I will not convocation of Hartford county, off- so bravely ciated. Eighteen other clergymen of community always de- this diocese were present. An his- Nor can I torical sketch was read by Dr. Mc- his services Cook and deposited in the corner- e his monu- stone. On June 22, 1869, the church- lt something was consecrated by Bishop Williams, tand to his The Right Rev. William C. Doane, bishop of Albany, preached the ser- en present mon. unk W. Har-

The church is a beautiful example ideacon Wil- of pointed Gothic architecture, and Warehouse while the building is small, it has a C. Thomas seating capacity of about 250. Every George T. detail is as perfect as ecclesiastical, Rev. Dr. C. art could be devised. Built of cut College, and brown stone, laid in its natural bed, T. Beckwith. with steep slated roof, surmounted by iron crest, it bids fair to stand his address for ages as a monument of the del- h J. McCook ity and zeal of those who built it. fiftieth year

A feature which will mark the nd entrance fiftieth anniversary is the installationf St. John's of electric lights and the complete eartly were re- rejuvenation of the interior. The people in this old colors in every particular have ratulate him been preserved as they originally n the length were, but all traces of the wear of his priest- half a century have been removed. has been ac- The sub- and the edifice looks as fresh as on the day it was consecrated. ard and vis-through all these years most gener- lished service ously and self-devotedly given to Christ and His church.

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH, EAST H

THE PARISH of St. John's Church in East Hartford is preparing to celebrate in a fitting manner, the semi-centennial of the rectorate of Rev. Dr. J. McCook.

McCook commenced his work in East Hartford as a lay reader in 1836 but was not officially connected with the parish until after his ordination to the diaconate and upon his return from the Berkley Divinity School in 1866. While the event celebrates the fiftieth year of his ministry, his period of work in East Hartford is considerably longer than that.

At the commencement of his work the parish was unorganized; a small meeting weekly and holding service in what was then known as "Elm Hall." The room is now one of the class rooms in the Center School. The Parish is a successor of Grace Church Parish, as it was then called, in Burnside. This mission was founded in 1852 through the efforts of two students at Trinity College, Alfred B. Goodrich, and Mr. Leffingwell, who afterwards became well known in the Episcopal ministry. Passing through East Hartford on their way to Manchester to conduct lay service they saw an unused house of worship in the village of Burnside at the junction of Burnside avenue and Larrabee street, on land now owned by the East Hartford Fire District and used as a public park. This building had been erected for the use of the Methodists in Burnside but was temporarily unoccupied. There seemed to be a field for mission service and the two young men zealously entered into the work. A number of the leading Methodists in Burnside heartily co-

Semi-Centennial of His Rectorate Church That Was College

REV. REEVE HOBBIIE.
Appointed assistant rector of St. John's Church in 1872.

of this chapel and aided liberally in the support of the church.

The zeal of the young men to carry on this mission work is disclosed in some quaint entries in the records. Once it is mentioned that Mr. Easton drove them to Hartford at the close of the afternoon service. Usually they walked, winter and summer, regardless of the weather, from the college to the chapel holding a morning service followed by Sunday school. If they were lucky enough to be invited by some of the parishioners they enjoyed a dinner. In the afternoon, service was held, and at the close they walked back to Hartford. Once it is recorded they went back by boat. This must have been during a period of some high flood, though no mention is made of it in the records.

During the period of the Civil War due to the changes in the population of Burnside, and the paucity of lay readers, the mission languished and later services were suspended entirely. The little church was converted into a place of residence and is now used for this purpose.

Start of Work in East Hartford.

In the latter part of 1865, Rev. Dr. John J. McCook commenced his work in East Hartford. Early in his ministry his ability and fearlessness for righteous and the orderly conduct of services were recognized and he was eagerly sought in broader and wealthier fields, but he had commenced his work in the little town and nothing could lure him permanently away.

Commencing with a little handful and a weekly service in Elm Hall, really a mission station, though not in fact a mission as it was self-sustaining, interest was aroused, the congregation increased until the records of the 1915 Journal of the Convention shows that there are 267 families, 606 baptized, 163 in the Sunday school, and 369 communicants. A legal organization was perfected and formal application made for the Parish to become a constituent part of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the Diocese of Connecticut.

The need of a church building was felt and steps looking to future building were immediately taken.

ST. JOHN'S EPISC

The site was purchased from Ezra E. Smith on Main street and foreseeing the future needs of the parish, all the adjoining land between the site and Burnside avenue was acquired by a faithful and beloved communicant of the church and held by her at considerable pecuniary loss until the church had grown to need and was able to pay for it.

Laying of Corner Stone.

The corner stone of the present edifice was laid with impressive ceremonies, Thursday, June 6, 1867 at which Rt. Rev. John Williams, Bishop of Connecticut, assisted by the dean of the convocation of Hartford county, officiated. Eighteen other clergymen of this diocese were present. An historical sketch was read by Dr. McCook, and deposited in the corner stone. On June 22, 1869 the church was consecrated by Bishop Williams. Rt. Rev. William C. Doane, Bishop of Albany, preached the sermon. Some of those present besides the rector and those already mentioned were: Rev. Dr. Abner Jackson, president of Trinity College; C. H. B. Tremaine of Hartford, Professors Pyncheon, Johnson, and Huntington of Trinity, Professor W. H. Vibberts of Berkeley Divinity School, Leopold Simonson, T. M. K. Brown of New York City and T. B. Fogg.

The church is a beautiful example of pointed Gothic architecture. The building is small, seating only about two hundred and fifty but every detail is as perfect as ecclesiastical art could devise. Built of cut brown stone, laid in its natural bed, with steep slated roof, surmounted by operated with these young men and the early annals of St. John's Parish mention the names of a number of men who were prominent in East Hartford sixty years ago and whose children or grandchildren are now among the most respected citizens of that place.

CHARLES C. MOODY.
The first senior warden of St. John's Church, East Hartford.

Chapel Erected in Burnside.

To meet the growing needs of this little congregation, and as the occupation of their quarters was only temporary, a small chapel was erected on Forbes street, a short distance south of the Hockanum bridge, and this was used for a number of years as a place of worship. Moses Chandler and Agis Easton were largely responsible for the building

HARTFORD, TO HONOR REV. DR.

rate to be Celebrated in Fitting Manner—as the Outcome of the Efforts of Two Trini e Students Over Sixty Years Ago.

OPAL CHURCH OF EAST HARTFORD—THE PARISH HOUSE AND RECREATION HALL ARE ALSO SHOWN.

REV. DR. JOHN J. MCCOOK.

For Fifty Years Dr. McCook Has Been Actively Connected With St. John's Church in East Hartford.

iron crest, it bids fair to stand for ages as a monument of the fidelity and zeal of those who built it. Separated from the body of the church by a handsomely illuminated chancel arch the sanctuary is famous as one of the most beautiful in Connecticut. On either side of the chancel proper are the choir stalls, separated from it by heavy screens, while in front are the lecture and pulpit. The Litany desk is in the body of the church facing the raised altar and above the altar flanked on either end by large candelabra are three magnificent stained glass windows. The center window pictures in life size the Crucifixion and on either side, the Baptism and Ascension of Christ. The organ is on the side of the chancel above the choir stall the pipes facing the opposite choir stall. The fount, a work of art in Indian limestone, is symbolically placed near the entrance to the church.

Interior Renovated.

One feature of this fiftieth anniversary is the installation of electric lights in the church and the complete rejuvenation of the interior. The old colors in every particular have been preserved as they originally were but all traces of the wear of half a century have been removed and the edifice looks as fresh and as bright as on the day it was consecrated.

St. John's Chapel Parish.

The first officers elected May 13 1865 were Charles C. Moody, Charles M. Bidwell, wardens; Newell Leste and Moses Chandler, vestrymen; All class, as well as a desire for sim-

148

ST. JOHN'S CHURCH 50 YEARS YOUNG.

BISHOP ROOTS ON CHINA'S FUTURE.

Church Dignitary Left

Two Bishops
propriate
East Hart

TESTIMON
TO T

B. y. D.
Anniversary
fers to U Progress

Rev. D. messag
Nov

LONG A WHITE

Rev. Harry P.
York, Has Sp
mers at The

Rev. Harry P.
York, who is s
"Concordia Hut,"
The Intervale, 1
forty-seventh sun
tains and celebra
a tramp up Tu
summit of Mt.
ing him were Bi Hankow, China,
McCook Roots ar
Nichols's daught
berg of Kansas
twentieth season
Her Bryn Mawr
kins of Philadelph
They visited the Tuckerman's rav usually large this

JULY 2
JANUARY

The Misses Mc
gave a small tea
ernoon for their
H. Roots of Hank
Roots, Mrs. Roc children have bee wood street this taken an active and religious life
They will leave t

and will sail for China about the first of February.

They earnestly requested me to ex rect, if possible, any impression that would tend to make the relations of the two countries unfriendly."

Bishop Root does not believe China will enjoy perfectly peaceful conditions for many years.

Miss Helen Hamilton of New York
 Granddaughter of the late J. P. Morgan, who is to marry Police Commissioner Arthur Woods. She is 7 years old and Mr Woods is 43.

Holding His Non Commissioned Superior Officer

(Copyright International Film Service, Inc.)

Lieutenant Colonel and Mrs. Arthur Woods

Photographed in Their Home in New York With Their Five Months Old Baby. Lieutenant Colonel Woods Was Formerly Police Commissioner of New York City, and Now Holds a Commission in the Aviation Branch of the Signal Corps

March 11, 1918

Mr. and Mrs. W. Pierson Hamilton, of New York gave a dance on Friday night at their country place, Table Rock, near Tuxedo, New York, to introduce their daughter, Miss Helen Morgan Hamilton. Miss Hamilton is a granddaughter of the late J. Pierpont Morgan. Oct 30, 1916

MISS HAMILTON ENGAGED

Granddaughter of J. P. Morgan and Cousin of Hartford Goodwins to Marry New York Police Commissioner.

An engagement of more than usual interest, particularly to Hartford, and one that occasions considerable surprise, is that of Miss Helen Morgan Hamilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Pierson Hamilton of New York, and granddaughter of the late J. Pierpont Morgan, through her mother, who was Miss Juliet Morgan, and a cousin of the Goodwin family of this city, to Police Commissioner Arthur Woods of New York.

Miss Hamilton was a favorite of her grandfather and was at his bedside when he died in Rome, on March 31, 1913. She was introduced to society a year and a half ago with a large dinner dance at Table Rock, the home of her parents at Sterlington, near Tuxedo Park, N. Y., and immediately became a leader in the younger set, joining the Colony club and the Junior league, and having a prominent place in the entertainments given by the latter. She is a great, great granddaughter of Alexander Hamilton.

Commissioner Woods has long been regarded as a confirmed bachelor. He is 43 years old and was graduated from Harvard in 1892, afterward taking special courses in chemistry and government and at the University of Bonn, and becoming a teacher at the Groton school after returning to this country. He was ambitious for a career in public life and his first opportunity occurred when he went to the Philippines as a member of the party with William Howard Taft, then secretary of war, in 1905. He was a reporter on the New York Evening Sun for a short time after his return, and was then made secretary of the citizens' committee on police. He made a study of police administrations in Europe in 1907, and on his return was appointed fourth deputy police commissioner by Commissioner Bingham, being placed in charge of the detective bureau and the bureau of supplies. Leaving the police department with Commissioner Bingham he went to Mexico, remaining out of Public Life, 1910.

Invitations have been issued by Mr. and Mrs. William Pierce Hamilton for the wedding of their daughter, Miss Helen Morgan Hamilton, to Police Commissioner Arthur Woods of New York on Saturday, June 10, at Sterlington, N. Y. The ceremony, which will be attended by relatives only, will be followed by a large reception at Table Rock, the country place of Mr. and Mrs. Hamilton. Miss Hamilton is granddaughter of the late J. Pierpont Morgan.

The wedding of Miss Helen Morgan Hamilton of New York, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Pierson Hamilton of New York, and a granddaughter of the late J. Pierpont Morgan, and Police Commissioner Arthur Woods of New York, took place yesterday in St. Luke's Chapel, Sterlington, N. J. The ceremony was performed by Bishop Philip Rhinelander, an uncle of the bride. Miss Hamilton's only attendant was her sister, Miss Elizabeth Schuyler Hamilton. David N. Goodrich served as Mr. Wood's best man, and the ushers were Pierpont M. Hamilton, Lawrence M. Hamilton, Chalmers Woods, jr., and Francis R. Appleton, jr. A wedding reception followed the ceremony at Table Rock, the Hamilton home.

RELATIVES and friends from Boston were among those to attend the wedding on Saturday in St. Luke's Chapel in the Ramapo Hills, near Sterlington, N. Y., of Miss Helen Morgan Hamilton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Pierson Hamilton, and Mr. Woods. The marriage ceremony was performed by Rt. Rev. Philip M. Rhinelander, D. D., bishop of Pennsylvania, and uncle of the bride, who is a granddaughter of the late J. Pierpont Morgan. None but relatives were asked to witness the marriage ceremony, but many others were invited to the reception which followed. The only attendant of the bride was her young sister, Elizabeth Schuyler Hamilton, as flower girl. The best man was David N. Goodrich, an old friend of the bridegroom, and the ushers were Pierpont Morgan Hamilton and Laurens Morgan Hamilton, brothers of the bride; Francis R. Appleton, Jr., and Chalmers Wood, Jr. Immediately after the ceremony the reception was held at "Table Rock," the country place of the brides' parents, not far from the chapel.

Among the guests were Max F. Schmittberger, chief inspector of police in New York, and twenty-two police inspectors in full uniform. Also invited were the mayor, the members of the board of estimate and heads of city departments and officers of the junior police of New York. All the departments of the New York police sent to the bride notably fine wedding presents.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Woods (Miss Helen Morgan Hamilton) will occupy the home of her parents, Mr.

June 10 - 1916
Miss Marjorie Augusta Vreeland, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Vreeland of New York, and George Edward Von Gal of Danbury, were married yesterday at Rest-a-While, the Vreeland country place at Brewster, N. Y. Miss Ruth Quackenbos was maid of honor and Mrs. Edwin Green of Danbury was matron of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Theodora Von Gal, Miss Charlotte Werner, Miss Marion Feustruann, Miss Marguerite Jacqueline, all of New York; Miss Helen Bernard of Buffalo and Miss Katherine Dwinnell of Minneapolis. George Green acted as best man, and the ushers were Edward Green, Dalton Griffith, Harold Vreeland, R. Somers Vreeland, James F. Vreeland and T. Reed Vreeland.

June 10, 1916

Luncheon for Miss Folsom

The long list of charming affairs given these days in honor of Miss Olive Fenwick Folsom was augmented yesterday by the luncheon at which Mrs. William H. Parks was hostess in her home on Forest Park avenue. Luncheon was served during the early afternoon with covers laid for 12 and the table was attractive with pink sweet peas and lilies of the valley arranged in a low, flat centerpiece. The guests included Miss Folsom's bridal attendants and the two house guests at the Folsom home, Miss Dorothy Georgan of Kansas City, Mo., and Miss Ruth Pierson of Madison, N. J. After the luncheon the afternoon was devoted to auction bridge.

ENTERTAIN FOR BRIDE-ELECT

Miss Olive Fenwick Folsom Guest of Honor at Two Affairs

Miss Olive Fenwick Folsom was guest of honor at two charmingly informal affairs given yesterday in her honor by two of the young women who are to serve as aisle attendants at her marriage Saturday evening. The first was given by Miss Marjorie Rice of Long Hill street, who was hostess at a morning affair, which was in the nature of a party in honor of her house guest, Miss Folsom.

LUNCHEON TO MISS FOLSOM

Miss Dorothy Fulton of Ridgewood Terrace Entertains in Honor of Bride of Coming Week

Another prenuptial affair in honor of Miss Olive F. Folsom, whose marriage to Shannon Clay Douglass, Jr., of Kansas City, Mo., is to be an event of the coming week, was the luncheon given yesterday afternoon by Miss Dorothy Fulton in her home on Ridgewood terrace. The hostess is to serve Miss Folsom as one of 10 aisle girls upon her wedding day, and the luncheon guests included the other local young women of the group, these being:

DINNER FOR MISS FOLSOM

Announcement Is Made of Engagement of Hostess Miss Harriet Dickinson at Affair for To-night's Bride

Red roses and white sweet peas were used as the floral decorations for the dinner given last evening by Miss Harriet Dickinson in her home on Maple street in honor of Miss Olive Fenwick Folsom and her fiancé, Shannon Clay Douglass, Jr., of Kansas City, Mo., whose marriage will take place this evening in the home of the bride on Forest Park avenue. Covers were laid for 12. Miss Dickinson's guests included the members of the bridal party and some of the out of town guests already here. During the dinner announcement was made of the engagement of the hostess and John D. Stuart, son of Mr and Mrs William H. Stuart of Maple street, this adding another bit of sentiment to the bridal dinner.

Dancing was enjoyed after the dinner. The guests were, in addition to Miss Folsom and Mr Douglass, Miss Ruth Townsend of Montclair, N. J., who is to be the maid of honor, Miss Dorothy Georgan of Kansas City, Mo., Miss Harriet Douglass of Kansas City, Mr and Mrs William C. Bemis of this city, Irving Badger of Cambridge, William Fay of Brooklyn, John D. Stuart and Lawrence Baker of this city.

FOLSOM - DOUGLASS WEDDING

AT THE HOME OF THE BRIDE

June 10 1916
Ceremony Followed by Reception—

Attractive Decorations

Of all the mid-June weddings, probably the most charming and interesting was that of last evening when Miss Olive Fenwick Folsom, only daughter of Mr and Mrs James Leavitt Folsom, and Shannon Clay Douglass, Jr., son of Judge and Mrs Shannon Clay Douglass, Sr., of Kansas City, Mo., were married at the home of the bride's parents on Forest Park avenue, which was effectively decorated for the occasion in a color scheme of pink and green by Schlatter. Smilax and pink snapdragon with maidenhair ferns and palms were used for decorating the living room where the ceremony took place. The bookcases were completely banked by this pink and green arrangement, covering two sides of the room. The screen before which the ceremony was performed was of smilax and pink snapdragon at either end of which were palms. A canopy completed the decorations, being formed of pink snapdragon and smilax. In the dining room where Rebboli catered for the reception, the same form of decorating was used.

Only the members of the two immediate families witnessed the ceremony, which took place at 7.30 o'clock in the spacious living room, but a much larger number were bidden for the reception which followed at 8 o'clock. The bridal party was distinctive in the omission of the ushers, but the lack of men attendants was more than balanced by the presence of friends of the bride who served as ribbon bearers. There were 10 of these friends, charmingly gowned in evening attire, who preceded the bride as she descended the stairs from the second floor, and who picked up at the foot of the stairs the white satin ribbons with which they formed the aisle for the other members of the party. These young women included Mrs William Chaplin Bemis, Miss Harriet Dickinson, Miss Dorothy Fulton and Miss Marjorie Rice, all of this city, Miss Dorothy Georgan of Kansas City, Mo., Miss Ruth Pierson and Miss Miriam Williams of Madison, N. J., Miss Katherine Macham of Allentown, Pa., Miss Johanna Remer of Saginaw, Mich., and Miss Naomi Moerke of Oshkosh, Wis., these out-of-town girls being all former school friends of the bride at the Colonial school in Washington, D. C.

The color scheme of pink and green which was carried out so tastefully in the floral decorations was also closely adhered to in the gowns of the bride's two attendants. Her maid of honor was Miss Ruth Townsend of Montclair, N. J., who appeared in a frock of pale green satin with an overdress of self-toned tulle. The skirt was cut with a short full skirt, the tulle drapery falling in points which were tipped with silver. She carried a huge arm bouquet of Maryland roses and pink snapdragon showered with pink sweet peas and tied with Werbro silver gauze ribbon. Miss Townsend wore the gift of the bride, a crescent pin of pearls and sapphires.

The only other attendant of the bride was her train bearer, little Sally Tate, daughter of Mr and Mrs Dale S. Tate of Pineywoods avenue, who was a quaint and charming picture in green satin and tulle, made in empire style, short-waisted, and with the

DANA—WESTON—At Christ Church, Cambridge, Mass., on Saturday, June 10, by Rev. Prescott Everts assisted by Rev. William Appleton Law-
Mrs. Rob-
Duncan

151

the handsome girl. General Boss was much affected by this token

The long list of charming affairs given these days in honor of Miss Olive Fenwick yesterday by Mrs. William in her home. Luncheon was afternoon with the table sweet peas arranged in. The guests, the bride and bridesmaids, Dorothy and Mary N. J. Fernon.

M

in h
w age,
T 29
R
h
w
h
l

M

of
ris
of
of eq
D
w M u ed yo

A

u di ri
st
F
D
w ev
F la
in pa gu
ne
en
D lar ad
br

ne
Mi
Ru wh
Do
Mi
Mr
cit

Wife pageant to be given Shout the town forces

Castle Brand Cream Olive Oil

Guaranteed Absolutely Pure
Highest Grade Obtainable

Ask your grocer

The W. A. Castle Co
SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

DISTINCTIVE CORRESPONDENCE

The distinctive tone of our stationery allows you to add your own distinctive touch to your correspondence. Personality displayed in the monogram or family crest will accomplish this.

THE CROWELL COMPANY

ART STATIONERS AND ENGRAVERS

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

The Wild Rose Tea Room

Noonday Luncheon—Afternoon Tea

A delightfully cool and restful place. Wholesome foods daintily home cooked. Moderate prices.

WOMAN'S SHOP BUILDING

Fourth Floor—Phone 9114

CUMMINGS

Dressmaker 533 State St.

Maker of Dancing, Afternoon and Bridge Frocks

Telephone 2543—R

We specialize in Home Portraiture. Would be pleased to send portfolio showing our beautiful home portrait effects.

Bosworth Studio

Phone 757
317 Main Street

Harriette B. Bullman, G. M.

Medical massage; electricity baths; chronic nervous cases special attention. At homes by appointment.

317 MAIN ST.

Telephone 420

Dr. Hodges, Chiropodist

WOMAN'S SHOP BUILDING

Tel. 884. 417 Main St. Springfield

Hours:

8.30 to 12.30, 2 to 6 p. m.

Wed and Sat Even

Tate of Pineywoods avenue, who was

Fine Chocolates

319 MAIN STREET

SPRINGFIELD, MASS.

Mail Orders Carefully Packed and Shipped.

A New Suggestion for the Tea Table

Individual Tea Maker (3 Ball)

of new solid metal of sterling silver appearance. Not plated.

4 Ball Tea Maker, $6.00

6 Ball Tea Maker, $7.00

THE GEORGIAN CO

Jewelers and Silversmiths
13 Harrison Ave. 3d Nat. Bk. Bldg.

CARL RUST PARKER

Landscape Architect

F. A. S. L. A.

Designer of Gardens, small City Yards, Country Estates, Parks, Playgrounds, and Land Survey Divisions.

Specifications, Construction and Planting Plans furnished, Work supervised.

Third National Bank Building
Springfield, Mass.

Springfield
135 State St.
Holyoke
527 Dwight St.
Westfield
148 Elm St.
Northampton
145 Main St.

Hegy

ELMWOOD CLEANING and DYEING WORK

Afternoon

Ices

Special Dinner Luncheons to order

55-57 Sumner

Opp. Faith

Tel. 3896

The Hall Tea Room

An ideal place to entertain your friends. Special arrangements can be made for luncheons for small clubs any time.

a quaint and charming picture in green satin and tulle, made in empire style, short-waisted, and with tiny puff sleeves of tulle. Upon her head was a wreath of maidenhair fern and sweetheart roses.

Miss Folsom was a winsome picture in her charming gown of white satin and tulle with which was combined princess lace. The skirt was cut in short length but the double veil of tulle formed the train. The veil, which was finished with a band of satin, was caught into a Dutch cap of rosepoint lace with lilies of the valley. While the short length of the double veil shielded her face, the long fold of tulle fell from her shoulders to the floor. A ring of diamonds set in platinum, designed by the bridegroom, and his gift to the bride, was the only jewel she wore. She carried an immense bouquet of white orchids and lilies of the valley, showered with lilies of the valley and tied and showered with Werbro silver gauze.

The "Bridal chorus" from "Lohengrin" was played by Hosmer's orchestra as the bridal party took their places before the screen arranged in the living room, where they were awaited by Mr Douglass and his best man, Irving Badger of Cambridge, and Rev John M. McGann, pastor of Christ church, who performed the ceremony. During the ceremony the "Meditation" from "Thais" was played by the orchestra, who played later during the reception hours and for the dancing.

The bride and bridegroom were assisted during the reception by Mr and Mrs Folsom and Mr and Mrs Douglass, Sr. Mrs Folsom wore a handsome robe of pale orchid taffeta and self-toned tulle. The train of darker orchid shades was heavily brocaded in silver, while the taffeta was caught up over an underskirt of silver lace. Mrs Douglass was attired in a gown of white chiffon and satin with an overdrape of black lace. A corsage bouquet of pink roses added the only touch of color to the gown. Miss Harriet Douglass, who was also in the receiving line, together with Mr Badger, wore a short full-skirted frock of pink taffeta with trimmings of gold and silver lace. She carried yellow roses and forget-me-nots.

Late in the evening Mr and Mrs Douglass, Jr., left under a shower of rose petals for a wedding trip, the latter wearing a suit of blue serge and a hat to match. They are to make their home in Kansas City, Mo., where Mr Douglass is a lawyer. Mrs Douglass is a graduate of the Colonial school in Washington, D. C., and since her debut two seasons ago has been a popular member of the younger set, whose members will regret her departure to her new home in the middle West. Among the out-of-town guests present last evening beside the members of the bridal party were Mr and Mrs Shannon Clay Douglass, Sr., and Miss Harriet Douglass, Miss Virginia Reiger, Mrs Romaine Mace and Miss Mace, and T. S. Ridge, all of Kansas City, Mo., Mrs J. Spencer Turner and Miss Ross of New York, John Knox of Berkeley, Cal., and Miss Annie Folsom of Dover, N. H.

DANA—WESTON—At Christ Church, Cambridge, Mass., on Saturday, June 10, by Rev. Prescott Everts assisted by Rev. William Appleton Lawrence, Anstiss, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dickinson Weston, to William Butler Duncan Dana of New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert D. Weston of Cambridge, Mass., have issued invitations to the wedding of their daughter, Miss Anstiss Weston, to W. Butler Duncan Dana, son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Dana of New York, on Saturday in Christ Church, Cambridge. Mr. Dana was graduated from Harvard University in 1914 and is the grandson of the late Charles A. Dana of the "New York Sun."

from Giddings-Townsend, 10 A.M.
Miss Grace Louise Townsend, daughter of the late William B. Townsend and of Mrs. Alice C. Townsend of Wethersfield avenue, and Arthur Everett Giddings, son of Mr. and Mrs. Perry M. Giddings of East Hartford, were married yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of the bride's mother. The ceremony was performed by Rev. James W. Lord, pastor of St. John's Episcopal Church in East Hartford, who used the double ring Episcopal service. The bride was given in marriage by her mother and was attended by her sister, Mrs. D. L. Carroll, of Braintree, Mass., as matron of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Alice E. Townsend, sister of the bride, and her cousin, Miss Harriette Cocke. Harvey Goodwin of this city was the best man. Preceding the ceremony, Miss Alice Townsend sang "O Promise Me," accompanied by Mrs. F. B. Archibald of Longmeadow, Mass., who played Wagner's "Wedding March" from "Lohengrin" as a processional. An informal reception was held after the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Giddings will be at home after September 1 at No. 121 South street.

RICHTER BUYS ESTATE.

Local Broker Secures Property of the Late Demas Strong at Middle Haddam.

WILLIMANTIC, Saturday, June 10.
Gift To Gen. Boss, 1916

General Eugene S. Boss, who recently resigned as agent of the American Thread Company in this city, and who is held in high esteem in this city, both as a representative of the main manufacturing institution of the community and as a citizen, was yesterday morning called to the office of his son, Austin D. Boss, who is now the agent of the company here. There were gathered men with whom he had been connected in his efforts to make the plant here the great success that it has been. T. Frank Howie, superintendent of the dyeing and bleaching departments, in well chosen words presented to General Boss a gold asonic charm. The charm was made to order and is an elaborate one. On one side are the symbols of the Shriners and Trinity Chapter. On the other side are the symbols of the Knights Templar. There are several diamonds set in platinum. With the gift was a neat little ornamental folder on the leaves of which were the names of the contributors of the handsome gift. General Boss was much affected by this token.

Has Been With Willimantic Mills 58 Years, To Be Succeeded By Son, Austin Dunham Boss.

He died Jan 10, 1920
(Special to The Courant.) 1920
Willimantic, March 31.

Beginning tomorrow the big song at the local Thread Com General Eug duties to pe the cotton th fifty-eight y smaller pred mill bell, he morning an task either as a clerk a general man of the Willi

Enter

With this entered the mantic Lin 1858, as a now known present time the shipping Soon after, into the offi ing, situated eastern limi yards, and Retires After 58 Years house, he being under the direction of James M. Talcott, then the local agent of the company.

This was about the time that the company discontinued the manufacture of linen goods in what is now known as the spool shop on account of the difficulty of obtaining stock and also on account of the effects of the Crimean war. The company sold its linen machinery to a Worcester concern and replaced it with thread machinery. At that time the company was employing about 300 hands, the average pay for girls being about $3 a week and for men dresser tenders from $5 to $6 per week, the dresser tenders being looked upon as the best paid in the mill.

Went to New York.

In the fall of 1860 General Boss was sent to New York and placed in the selling department, then in charge of the late George S. Moulton and located at what was then known as College place, somewhere in the vicinity of Grand street. He remained there for nearly five years and in the summer of 1865, he returned to Willimantic and was appointed office assistant to the late A. B. Burleson, at that time the local agent of the company, remaining as office assistant and paymaster until 1875 when he was appointed secretary of the company and occupied a desk in the office of the late Austin Dunham at that time president and treasurer of the corporation. He served in that capacity until 1879 when he was appointed resident agent of the corporation, succeeding Mr. Burleson. That was the highest official position within the reach of any resident of Willimantic, the company being mainly owned and officered by Hartford people. General Boss has held that position ever since, although the duties and responsibilities as well as the emoluments have increased ten fold, making a continuous period of thirty-seven years during which he has been the managing head of the Willimantic Mills.

GEN. EUGENE S.

GEN. E. S. BOSS DIES IN WILLIMANTIC

Agent of American Thread Co. and Former State Senator.

Special to The Times.

1920

Willimantic, January 10.

This community was shocked to hear of the death at his home here early this morning of General Eugene S. Boss, 73, one of the most prominent manufacturers and politicians in the state. He had been in failing health since he retired from active work four years ago and had been under the care of a physician and nurse for some time.

The life story of Mr. Boss is that of the rapid rise of one whose schooldays were cut short, and who in his boyhood worked on a farm and in a grocery store and then entered the employ of the Willimantic Linen company as a dresser tender and worked his way up through the different departments. In the fall of 1860 he was sent to New York and put in the company's New York department, remaining there five years. Upon his return here he was made office assistant and he held that position until 1875, also acting as paymaster of the company.

The company had long before discontinued the making of linen goods and substituted thread machinery. The development in the plant was rapid and with it the climb to the top rung of the ladder by Mr. Boss. Gradually his positions with the thread company became more responsible and finally he assumed absolute control of the factory here, now one of the large branches of the American Thread company, which is employing close to 2,700 hands.

Honored By State.

His entrance into politics was also marked with remarkable success. He represented Windham at the sessions of 1877 and 1879 and later served as state

Seldom has one lifetime spanned

General Boss is recognized today as the dean of cotton thread manufacturers in this country, having been longer in the practical work of thread making than any man connected with the industry at the present time. When the people of England who came into the ownership at the time the Linen Company was absorbed by the American Thread Company about fifteen years ago, they were quick to recognize the value of his ability and ex-opt the plan him for en- so that for Willimantic st profitable ants owned ountry. Gen- l interest in osen one of or of the ad-

ates. life with the panies, there ent men who gained their ley's Staff.

d the republi- casting of his active and in- d counsels of al offices were ed to assume although he as a member ses under the

He has rep- ndham in the gislature sev- term in the member of the tion from the was commis- or Bulkeley's

he acquired s for many republican he has been ential electors e been a dele- national con- rs have been occasions he ublican nomi- his district,

go up higher. fine residence as Windham overlook the lead company spend his dem- pany of his ss Cummings Carolyn Cum- died several iness and po- oss has been a men as the wson C. Ives, and his son, Son.

or will be his oss, who has ince his grad- husetts Insti- d for several s assistant in t of the local inue to carry has made the prosperous. It ot to mention always taken matters tend-

AT P IN F

ing towards the betterment of Willi- mantic.

MISS LUCY HEWITT AND MISS MARION POST.

Candace Hewitt, daughter of E. R. Hewitt of New York and granddaughter of Peter Cooper has been running a training camp for girls near her father's country home in New Jersey, thirty miles from New York. The campers were all members of the younger society set. They did all the work of the camp themselves including tent-pitching, dish-washing, etc. They kept regular military hours to the sound of the bugle and at the end of their stay voted that they had had what Colonel Roosevelt would have called "a bully time." Lucy Hewitt, sister of Candace Hewitt, was the bugler of the camp and Marion Post, daughter of Mrs. William Stone Post, was the drummer.

Katharine Dahlgren is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eric Dahlgren of New York. Her mother was Lucy Drexel of Philadelphia. Miss Dahlgren never did anything so strenuous as this before in her life. But all the girls counted it fun when it was a feature of camp life at Captain Candace Hewitt's camp.

